KENNEDY LAMBASTS NIXON

He 'Halts Progress'

. . . IN CIVIL RIGHTS

Washington (UPI) — Charging President Nixon with turning his back on blacks "starving for the bread of hope," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Monday night the administration forfeited leadership in civil rights as no other in a century.

After progress under the last six presidents, "the march of history has been halted . . . the chain has broken, the progress stopped, there are no achievements to cite," Kennedy said.

"In American history, you have to go back to the era of Reconstruction to find a comparable abdication by the federal government of its responsibility for civil rights," Kennedy told the Washington Press Club.

"Twenty-five million black Americans starving for the bread of hope and notice, and all they have from the administration is a cake inscribed with names like Carswell and benign neglect, and opposition to every meaningful civil rights bill that Congress tries to pass.

Halfway Between

"Black America lies becalmed today, halfway between hope and desperation," Kennedy said. "And unless the administration acts more positively now, it would be a wiser man than I who could predict the direction we shall move when the wind begins to blow again."

In a major speech just three days before Nixon's State of the Union message to a joint session of Congress and the day before the opening of the politically explosive second session of the 92nd Congress, Kennedy took the administraton to task in virtually every field — but nowhere as hard as in the field of civil rights and in foreign policy.

In an address widely speculated on as being Kennedy's own State of the Union, he said "the first and most important issue" is the Vietnam war.

"If ever a president was elected to end a war, to wash away the stain brought on us by Vietnam, Richard Nixon was elected for that purpose."

"Now four years have passed since 1968," Kennedy said " . . . We know that thousands of soldiers of North and South Vietnam, and tens of thousands of innocent men and women and children, will die in Indochina in 1972, for the simple reason that President Nixon will not allow the Saigon government to falter until he is secure at home for another term of office."

Matched 'Only By Shame'

Kennedy added that the failure of the Vietnam policy is matched "only by the shame of our policy toward India and Pakistan.

"The India-Pakistan war has become the Achilles heel of the Nixon foreign policy," Kennedy said. "It demonstrates how warped our policy really is, how prostrate toward Peking our policy has really become."

While praising Nixon's China initiative, Kennedy also said "let us pray that history does not tell us that the price we paid was wrong, because we lost sight of other nations and deeper values."

Kennedy also criticized the administration for meeting the economic crises with "excuses instead of programs;" for ignoring the explosive cities; for proposing a welfare reform program that "is promotive in philosophy, pitiless in substance, and punitive in practice."

People Or Interests

Kennedy said the "central issue" on domestic policy is "are we going to have a government that is responsive to the people, or only the special interests.

"Do we want welfare only for Lockheed and the giant farmers, and for those who live in poverty?" Kennedy asked.

"Shall we spend our dollars on a space shuttle and on SST for a few to fly to the heavens, when the many here on Earth have simple unmet needs like homes and schools and health?"

Kennedy asked, "How can we have the confidence of the people, if we have leaders who stand squarely with the insurance industry and the American Medical Association against health reform, with the National Rifle Association against gun control, with the oil industry against tax reform, with the highway lobby against mass transit?"

Many Factors Involved In Freshness Of Meat

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of six articles by a Star staff writer who has been checking the freshness of foods sold.)

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Housewives may be most concerned about dates when buying fresh meat, but experts in the field indicate that other factors should also be considered in determining the freshness of the product.

In a survey conducted by The Star concerning freshness dating on meat products, all sources indicated that a certain amount of the responsibility for keeping meat fresh lies with the individual consumer.

Charles H. Adams, professor of animal science at UNL, said the "code-dating is not the only answer."

He indicated that there are several things a housewife should be aware of when buying and storing meats in her own home.

Prof. Adams mentioned that many women will shy away from buying meats that have turned a darker color in a store display case. He explained the color change as the result of gases in the air and the refraction of light on the surface of the meat reacting with the meat pigment. Although the color loss may detract from eye appeal, continued Adams, the product retains its nutritional value and wholesomeness.

Adams went on to say that spoilage organisms in meat need water to thrive. Ground beef that is bright red in color has a greater moisture content than older meat that becomes somewhat dehydrated.

When a product is no longer wholesome, said Adams, it will "smell bad." He indicated that frozen and processed meats should keep quite a long time with proper packing and handling.

Dr. D. C. Breeden, area supervisor of the federal meat and poultry inspection program, consumer marketing service, USDA, added that it would be "difficult from a regulatory standpoint to inform the consumer accurately" as to how long a meat product will remain fresh.

He said that "suspense dates" on perishable products might cause people to waste wholesome, safe and nutritious items by arbitrarily discarding them.

Breeden went on to say that it is the job of USDA to see that meat products are "sound, wholesome and properly marked." He added that there were no requirements concerning suspense dates of meats, although continued consumer pressure may lead to the development of regulations to control the industry.

From a regulatory standpoint, said Breeden, the real weakness comes once a meat product reaches the retail outlets. He agreed that the consumer often has a legitimate complaint, for the meat that he buys at the retail level "is not always what it seems."

Mac McCubbin, chief of the bureau of dairies and foods, also agrees that control is not as strict as it should be on the retail level.

From spot-checking done by his agency, McCubbin has found the most problems with ground beef. He said that in some cases retailers have added sulfite to the meat to give it a bright red color or preservatives such as benzoate of soda.

McCubbin added that there are state and federal laws requiring that hamburger contain not more than 30% fat and that no preservatives be added.

As far as freshness-dating meat products, McCubbin said that there are "so many variables" that it is hard to put a time limit on meat freshness. He added that a great deal depends on the quality and condition of the meat when it was butchered.

Violence Study Said Whitewash

Washington (AP) — A government-funded study cautiously concluded Monday that televised crime and violence contribute in only a small way to violence in America. Critics quickly sought to place a whitewash label on the findings.

"The evidence, more accurately the difficulty of finding evidence, suggests that the effect is small compared with many other possible causes, such as parental attitude or knowledge of an experience with the real violence of our society," said the surgeon general's Scientific Advisory Committee on Television and Social Behavior.

The 12 behavioral scientists said TV violence can trigger violent acts by aggressive children already prone to violence, but cautioned against generalizing on "a very complex issue, for which there are no simple answers."

Allegaions of a whitewash came even before the 289-page report was made public, because the former surgeon general William H. Stewart, allowed the networks to veto seven prospective committee members and because the final selection included two TV executives.

Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., called the report "heavily loaded in favor of the industryy" and "an invitation to escalate the volume of violence on television."

"The problem with this report," said Nicholas Johnson, a member of the Federal Communications Commission, "is that like so much of what the administration has done on these kinds of things, the cynicism of anybody really being interested in the truth is apprent from the beginning."

The committee itself said it feels there had been a serious error in the selection process.

"This study is not a whitewash." Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld insisted at a news conference. "The study shows for the first time a causal connection between violence shown on television and subsequent aggressive behavior by children."

The $1-million study represents 2½ years of effort.

It was requested by Sen. John O. Pastore, D.-R.I., who said he was troubled by the unanswered question of whether televised violence causes antisocial behavior by children.

"The evidence does indicate that televised violence may lead to increased aggressive behavior in certan subgroups of children," the committee said.

"The accumulated evidence, however, does not warrant the conclusion that televised violence has a uniformly adverse effect nor the conclusion that it has an adverse effect on the majority of children," the report added.

"It cannot even be said that the majority of the children in the various studies we have reviewed showed an increase in aggressive behavior in response to the violent fare to which they were exposed."

Outside factors which may account for high aggressiveness in some children, the report said, include underlying personality differences and parental attitudes and behavior such as affection, punishment and emphasis on nonaggression.

Although children begin developing regular TV viewing habits by age 5, younger children have difficulty distinguishing between reality and fantasy on shows they watch, the researchers said.

LES Rate Hike OKd By Council

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln Electric System (LES) customers will be paying more money on their monthly electric bills as a result of City Council approval Monday of an LES rate hike.

The rate boost, which averages 13%, goes into effect Jan. 24.

LES Administrator Walter Canney told the council that the increase is needed to meet the rising costs of wholesale power sold to the city by the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD).

Canney said that overall the rate hike is designed to increase LES revenues by $1.1 million, or 13.8%, during the remainder of the fiscal year that ends Aug. 31.

Only one person, Charles Kitchen, appeared before the council to protest the rate hike. Kitchen wanted to know why the increase was needed and asked if the hike were in line with wage and price control guidelines.

Canney replied that the NPPD increase in wholesale power went into effect Jan. 1st and will cost LES $659,000 through Aug. 31.

Canney added that LES needs to build up its revenue to assure an adequate cash reserve to cover costs of emergencies, such as winter snowstorms. He noted that last year's big storm cost LES around $300,000.

LES attorney Norman Krivosha said that under Phase 2 economic controls, wage-price decisions made by the LES Advisory Board (which recommended the rate hike) have not been subject to review by the Pay Board and Price Commission.

Council member Helen Boosalis said she was concerned that there was not an equity in rate increases between residential and commercial customers.

Canney had noted at the LES board meeting on Friday that the percentage increase in monthly bills will depend on the category of the customer and the amount of power actually used, thus resulting in rate increases ranging from 6.8% to 15%.

Russian Tanker Held In Turkey After Cables Cut

Istanbul, Turkey (AP) — The Russian tanker Samarkand has been ordered to remain here for investigation after its anchor was believed to have cut telephone cables in the Bosporus between the European and Asian sections of Istanbul.

Officials reported seven of 11 telephone cables were broken and said the damage would take six months to repair at a cost of 8 million to 10 million turkish lire — $533,000 to $667,000.

The 8,299-ton Samarkand was heading from the Sea of Marmara to the Black Sea when she dropped anchor Saturday because of a heavy snowstorm, the officials said. The cables were believed to have been cut when the ship raised anchor to depart.

Officials are investigating whether the ship was in a zone covered by a "no anchoring" sign on the shore.

Legislature Deluged With 143 New Bills

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Monday was showered with 143 new bills ranging in topic from commemoration of the American Revolution to taxation of trading stamps.

Senators poured 113 new proposals into the legislative hopper at their morning session, then reconvened after their afternoon committee meetings in order to beat the deadline for introduction of bills by individual senators.

Thirty more measures were submitted during the half-hour afternoon sitting.

The deadline day deluge brought the 10-day total for the 1972 session to 427.

Included in Monday's pile was a pair of blockbusters signed by Sen. Donald Elrod of Grand Island.

LB1417 would require reorganization of all schools into K-12 (kindergarten through 12th grade) districts as of the 1974-75 school year.

LB1418 would appropriate $89 million a year to fully fund the present formula for state aid to local schools.

On the tax front, Sen. Willard Waldo of DeWitt produced a bill (LB1468) applying a 3% tax on the gross sales of trading stamps to merchants, and a measure to increase the corporation income tax rate beyond the level earlier recommended by the legislative tax study committee.

Waldo's bill, LB1453, accepts the committee's recommendation to increase the base rate from 20% to 25% of the personal income tax rate, but also adds on a 2% surtax for income beyond $25,000.

Sen. Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox delivered his promised proposal to have the Legislature establish state sales and income tax rates. It was tagged as LB1356.

No-fault insurance bills came from Sens. J. James Waldron of Callaway and John DeCamp of Neligh.

DeCamp also sponsored LB1464, which would provide statutory "protection of privacy."

Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln introduced LB1339, which would establish a Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission to celebrate the 200th anniversary of independence in 1976.

Two University of Nebraska fieldhouse financing proposals were handed to the Legislature.

LB1433, signed by Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, would finance fieldhouse bonds at the rate of $2.4 million a year, provide $1.2 million in annual funding for two years to finance State Fairgrounds improvements, and channel remaining revenue from the 1971 cigarette tax increase into a legislative capital construction fund.

The bill sets a $12 million limit on fieldhouse costs.

Sen. E. Thomes Johnson of Fremont signed LB1446, authorizing the City of Lincoln to issue bonds for construction of the fieldhouse and providing for immediate payment of $2.4 million to the State Fair Board for Fairgrounds improvements.

Staring down a promised veto from Gov. J. James Exon, Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa introduced LB1466, which would appropriate $7.5 million in state matching funds for construction of municipal waste treatment facilities.

Sen Gerald Stromer of Kearney sponsored LB1431, proposing a vote of the people on a constitutional amendment to transform the Unicameral into a partisan legislature.

LB1432, signed by Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, would repeal the statutory authorization for proration of payments for aid to dependent children.

The state aid study committee introduced a package of proposals changing the school aid formula and limiting school district budgetary increases to 6% a year without a vote of the people.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln presented LB1349, which would require the Appropriations Committee to give all state agencies a hearing on their budget requests.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff signed LB1381, which would provide for a continuing study of wholesale public power districts by the Legislative Council executive board.

Among other constitutional amendments was Sen. Loran Schmit's LB1469, which would abolish the State Board of Equalization and Assessment as a constitutional body and provide for formation of a new board by statute.

Sen. George Syas of Omaha introduced LB1407, which would increase the food tax credit from $7 to $10 per person.

West Coast Dock Strike Is On Again

San Francisco (UPI) — An all-night bargaining session failed Monday and 15,000 longshoremen resumed the 100-day West Coast dock strike. The Nixon administration said only Congress may now be able to end it.

The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union reinstituted picket lines at 24 West Coast ports for the first time since a federal judge ordered them off under the Taft-Hartley law last Oct. 6.

The strike was renewed following marathon negotiations between the ILWU and the Pacific Maritime Association which cracked a 10-year impasse over container cargo but stalled on the financing of a $5.2 million guaranteed annual wage.

Oregon's Gov. Tom McCall said he would go to Washington, D.C. immediately to represent the personal concerns of the governors of seven Western states.

McCall said the governors of California, Washington, Hawaii, Alaska, Idaho and Montana agreed with him that immediate action must be taken to halt the walkout and prevent "economic disaster."

The Nixon administration, calling renewal of the 100-day strike "devastating," said only Congress now may be able to get the longshoremen back to work.

Bridges Makes Announcement

Harry Bridges, president of the ILWU, emerged from the marathon negotiations and announced the strike had resumed.

For the first time in a decade, it appeared the thorny issue of whether ILWU or Teamsters Union members would handle containerized cargo adjacent to the docks had been solved.

But the union and management could not agree on whether $5.2 million to be allocated as a guranteed annual wage should come from funds generated by the container settlement.

Top U.S. mediator J. Curtis Counts flew back to Washington. The White House said action by Congress "may be the only remedy" to prevent the strike from crippling the nation's economy.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz criticized congressional leaders for failure to pass a strike-control bill. He said farmers had already lost hundreds of millions of dollars.

"If the leaders in Congress really want to do something for farmers, they will stand up tomorrow and demand that the administration's legislation be passed immediately," Butz said.

Bridges' 15,000 ILWU members originally struck West Coast docks July 1 and stayed out for 100 days — a record — before the government scured a Taft-Hartley injunction Oct. 6 ordering them back to the docks of 80 days.

The injunction expired Christmas Day but the ILWU kept on working until Monday.

Negotiations were still going on when pickets went back to the docks, but the talks broke up soon after Bridges announced the strike had "officially resumed."

No-fault insurance bills came from Sens. J. James Waldron of Callaway and John DeCamp of Neligh.

DeCamp also sponsored LB1464, which would provide statutory "protection of privacy."

Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln introduced LB1339, which would establish a Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission to celebrate the 200th anniversary of independence in 1976.

Two University of Nebraska fieldhouse financing proposals were handed to the Legislature.

LB1433, signed by Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, would finance fieldhouse bonds at the rate of $2.4 million a year, provide $1.2 million in annual funding for two years to finance State Fairgrounds improvements, and channel remaining revenue from the 1971 cigarette tax increase into a legislative capital construction fund.

The bill sets a $12 million limit on fieldhouse costs.

Sen. E. Thomes Johnson of Fremont signed LB1446, authorizing the City of Lincoln to issue bonds for construction of the fieldhouse and providing for immediate payment of $2.4 million to the State Fair Board for Fairgrounds improvements.

Staring down a promised veto from Gov. J. James Exon, Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa introduced LB1466, which would appropriate $7.5 million in state matching funds for construction of municipal waste treatment facilities.

Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney sponsored LB1431, proposing a vote of the people on a constitutional amendment to transform the Unicameral into a partisan legislature.

LB1432, signed by Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, would repeal the statutory authorization for proration of payments for aid to dependent children.

The state aid study committee introduced a package of proposals changing the school aid formula and limiting school district budgetary increases to 6% a year without a vote of the people.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln presented LB1349, which would require the Appropriations Committee to give all state agencies a hearing on their budget requests.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff signed LB1381, which would provide for a continuing study of wholesale public power districts by the Legislative Council executive board.

Among other constitutional amendments was Sen. Loran Schmit's LB1469, which would abolish the State Board of Equalization and Assessment as a constitutional body and provide for formation of a new board by statute.

Sen. George Syas of Omaha introduced LB1407, which would increase the food tax credit from $7 to $10 per person.

West Coast Dock Strike Is On Again

San Francisco (UPI) — An all-night bargaining session failed Monday and 15,000 longshoremen resumed the 100-day West Coast dock strike. The Nixon administration said only Congress may now be able to end it.

The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union reinstituted picket lines at 24 West Coast ports for the first time since a federal judge ordered them off under the Taft-Hartley law last Oct. 6.

The strike was renewed following marathon negotiations between the ILWU and the Pacific Maritime Association which cracked a 10-year impasse over container cargo but stalled on the financing of a $5.2 million guaranteed annual wage.

Oregon's Gov. To mMcCall said he would fly to Washington, D.C. immediately to represent the personal concerns of the overnors of seven Western states.

McCall said the governors of California, Washington, Hawaii, Alaska, Idaho and Montana agreed with him that immediate action must be taken to halt the walkout and prevent "economic disaster."

The Nixon administration, calling renewal of the 100-day strike 'devastating," said only Congress now may be able to get the longshoremen back to work.

Bridges Makes Announcement

Harry Bridges, president of the ILWU, emerged from the marathon negotiations and announced the strike had resumed.

For the first time in a decade, it appeared the thorny issue of whether ILWU or Teamsters Union members would handle containerized cargo adjacent to the docks had been solved.

But the union and management could not agree on whether $5.2 million to be allocated as a guranteed annual wage should come from funds generated by the container settlement.

Top U.S. mediator J. Curtis Counts flew back to Washington. The White House said action by Congress "may be the only remedy" to prevent the strike from crippling the nation's economy.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz critizied congressional leaders for failure to pass a strike-control bill. He said farmers had already lost hundreds of millions of dollars.

"If the leaders in Congress really want to do something for farmers, they will stand up tomorrow and demand that the administration's legislation be passed immediately," Butz said.

Bridges' 15,000 ILWU members originally struck West Coast docks July 1 and stayed out for 100 days — a record — before the government secured a Taft-Hartley injunction Oct. 6 ordering them back to the docks of 80 days.

The injunction expired Christmas Day but the ILWU kept on working until Monday.

Negotiations were still going on when pickets went back to the docks, but the talks broke up soon after Bridges announced the strike had "officially resumed."

Challenge Boils Down To Two Major Themes . . .

Is Death Penalty Necessary Or Unacceptable To Society?

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

Washington (AP) — The first constitutional challenge to the use of the death penalty boils down to two major themes. For those against, it is a punishment unacceptable to modern society and arbitrary in application; for those in favor, it is necessary for the protection of society.

The threads run through the briefs filed in the four cases the court will consider before it rules sometime in the next five months on whether execution is cruel and unusual punishment within the meaning of the Eighth Amendment.

"The real danger concerning cruel and unhuman laws is that they will be enacted in the form such that they can be applied sparsely and spottily to unhappy minorities, whose numbers are so few, whose plight is so invisible, and whose persons are so unpopular that society can readily bear to see them suffer torments which would not for a moment be acceptable as penalties of general application to the populace," said the brief for Ernest Aikens.

All Four Are Black

Aikens is one of two condemned murderers whose case is before the court. The other two cases involve death penalties for rape. All four men are black, convicted of crimes against whites.

"The conclusion is inescapable, we think," said Antony G. Amsterdam in his brief in the Aikens case, "that this rare penalty, inflicted upon the smallest handful of murderers is not part of the regular criminal law machinery of California or of any other state.

"It is a freakish aberration, a random extreme act of violence, visibly arbitrary and discriminatory — a penalty reserved for unusual application, because, if it were regularly used, it would affront universally shared standards of public decency. Such a penalty—not law but terror—has no place in a democratic government."

Ronald M. George, responding for the state of California, argued:

"The deep-rooted history of capital punishment in this country and in our cultural and religious heritage, and the widespread support for the death penalty in the majority of our population and to most segments of our society, disproves the assertion that the death penalty is a barbaric relic of the past.

'Recognition Of Need'

"The failure of our almost annual effort in the California legislature to abolish the death penalty and the concurrent expansion of the list of federal and state capital offenses, are indicative of the continuing recognition of the need for the death penalty as a protection of society. . .

"Nothing has happened in the 180-year history of the Constitution and in the 300-year history of capital punishment in this nation, which can alter the fact of the framers' contemplation of the death penalty as a form of punishment of necessity available to the states for the protection of society in a case such as the one at the bar."

Aikens was 20 years old at the time that he killed Mrs. Kathleen Nell Dodd in Ventura, Calif., in 1962. He was condemned to death in that case and sentenced to life for a murder he committed at age 17.

In the second murder case, that of William Henry Furman of Georgia, Amsterdam wrote in his brief that "at the heart of the argument is the principle that the Eighth Amendment condemns the penalty which is so oppressive that it can command public acceptance only by sporadic, exceedingly rare and arbitrary imposition."

Georgia Asst. Atty. Gen. Dorothy T. Beasley argued that "the threat of the death penalty for armed robbery palpably serves as a deterrent; it is common knowledge that robbers frequently accomplish their evil ends with unloaded weapons. Can it be said that this is not because they are aware that an armed robbery can draw the death penalty but an unarmed robbery cannot."

One-Day Trial

In the case of Lucious Jackson of Georgia, who was condemned for rape after a one-day trial, the argument against the death penalty was "the punishment of death of rape in the Southern states can be accounted for exclusively by racial considerations. . .

"This sort of rare, terrorist infliction is precisely the evil against which the Eighth Amendment must guard if that amendment is to serve a function among the guarantees of rights in a democratic society."

Mrs. Beasley responded that "the utter disregard shown by rapists for values which society holds at least as high as the value of life, and in some cases higher . . . warrant death as a commensurate penalty. . .

"The victim in a rape, the woman or child, can never escape the memory, can never avoid the indelibility of the tarnishing experience."

Disproportionately

In the case of Elmer Brane of Texas, another condemned rapist, the claim was also made that the death penlaty for that offense is a Southern phenomenon assessed highly disproportionately against the blacks.

"The imposition of death penalty for rape is both a tool and product of racial discrimination," wrote attorney Melvin Bruder in his brief, "visited upon Negroes, thereby rendering its 'unusual' within the national framework."

Charles Alan Wright, responding for Texas wrote, "If capital punishment is constitutionally permissible for some crimes it is permissible for rape . . . the death penalty may be regarded as a superior deterrent for rape, as for murder . . . rape has always been regarded as one of the most serious of crimes, its incidence is rising sharply and a legislature does not act unreasonably in concluding to retain the death penalty for rape."

ELECTRIC CHAIR . . . 'cruel and unusual?'

Conscience Must Decide If Death Is Unusual Punishment, Court Told

Washington (AP) — The evolving national conscience must govern the meaning of the Eighth Amendment in condemning capital punishment, lawyers contended Monday in asking the Supreme Court to declare the death penalty unconsitutional.

"The death penalty is virtually unanimously repudiated by the conscience of contemporary society," argued Stanford University law professor Anthony G. Amsterdam.

The high court set up the historic confrontation over the Constitution by accepting the appeals of four cases, two of murder and two for rape, in in which the defendants were condemned to death.

A ruling on the issue is expected before the court term ends in June. It will directly affect nearly 700 condemned men and women on death rows in 34 states.

Forty-one states and the federal government still have the death pentalty.

The high court often has considered capital cases but only on individual, procedural grounds.

The sole question before the court now is whether the death penalty constitutes the "cruel and unusual punishment" which is prohibited by the Eighth Amendment.

Amsterdam, arguing for the two murder defendants, suggested that the test is whether the punishment would be acceptable to the general conscience and standards of decency if applied generally.

His own answer was no.

The death penalty, he said, is rarely applied and then only to minority members, the powerless, "the personally ugly and socially unacceptable."

Amsterdam appeared for Ernest James Aikens Jr., who was convicted of murder in California and for William Henry Furman, convicted of murder in Georgia.

Aiken's case presented the broadcast challenge to the death penalty. His attorneys said they make no claim that the death penalty should not apply to their triple-murder defendant if indeed the penalty is found to be constitutional.

The lawyers in Furman's case made the same general arguments but said there are indications Furman is mentally ill and that to submit him to the death penalty without mental examination would constitute cruel and unusual punishment.

Arguing Aikens case, California Asst Atty. Gen. Ronald M. George said national regjection of the death penalty as claimed by Amsterdam does not exist. He said an increase in the number of juries which decree the death penalty is a more accurate measure of national sentiment than the unofficial moratorium on executions in the United States, which attorneys for Aikens cited.

N.J. Execution Law Is Declared Invalid

Trenton, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled Monday that under present state law persons convicted of murder in New Jersey can no longer be given the death penalty. The ruling lifted the threat of execution for the 20 men now on the state's death row.

The court accepted the conclusion of the U.S. Supreme Court that the New Jersey murder law was unconstitutional because it subjects a defendant to the death penalty only if he pleads innocent rather than no defense.

The gist of the previous death penalty statute was that if an accused person wished to plead innocent, he had to virtually bet his life in the case. However, if he pleaded no defense, he could not legally be sentenced to death. In New Jersey, a defendant may not plead guilty to murder.

The nation's highest court had set aside the death penalty for Victor R. Funicello, convicted in a New Jersey murder case in 1961. In its decision, the high court cited a previous ruling that overturned a federal kidnaping statute on the issue of innocent and no defense pleas.

Arguments To Be Heard On Segregation Outside Dixie

From Press Reports

Washington—The Supreme Court, for the first time, agreed Monday to hear argument on claims of segregation in a northern public school system.

The case accepted for review from Denver, where a group of black and Spanish-surnamed school children contend they were segregated by school board planning and policy rather than by segregation laws.

The court will hold an oral hearing sometime later this term and issue a ruling by the end of June.

The case was taken on without comment except for the notation that Justice Byron R. White would not participate. The reason for the self-disqualification was not given, although White is from Colorado. He has supported all civil rights advances by the high court.

New Men Take Part

The eight remaining justices, including the new men, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist, will participate.

While the Supreme Court has ruled that segregation laws in southern and border states are unconstitutional, it has not reached the issue of school segregation in states which had no such laws.

In other actions, the court:

—By an 8 to 1 vote affirmed a decision dismissing the claim that the New Jersey school system is unconstitutional because some school districts have a high percentage of minority group students. The court gave no reason for its summary disposition in the case. Justice William O. Douglas dissented.

—Agreed to decide in a Portland, Ore., case whether the constitutional right of free speech gives protesters the blanket privilege to distribute political pamphlets and conduct rallies on private business properties such as suburban shopping centers. The court ruled in 1968 that centers may not prohibit such activities directly aimed at stores or businesses at the center itself but has never ruled whether nonrelated demonstrations can be banned.

—Agreed to decide in a North Carolina case whether property owners who claim their homes were damaged by sonic booms may sue the Air Force.

—Permitted backers of the late Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski to participate in the government's effort to overturn the election of United Mineworkers Union President W. A. (Tony) Boyle but refused by a 6 to 1 vote to permit them to raise new challenges at this point in the court proceedings.

—Let stand lower court decisions that reputed underworld kingpin Simone Rizzo (Sam the Plumber) DeCalvacante freely pleaded guilty to charges of masterminding a $20-million-a-year interstate gambling ring.

Mujib Orders Guerrillas To Surrender Arms

(c) New York Times News Service

Dacca, Pakistan — Prime Minister Sheik Mujibur Rahman, in a move to deal with one of Bangladesh's most serious problems, Monday ordered all former guerrilla fighters to surrender their arms within 10 days. Bands of the former guerrillas have engaged in increasing lawlessness and have taken control of administrative powers in some rural areas.

Trio Accused Of Subversion

Moscow — Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, accused members of an American congressional group of subversive activities while touring the Soviet Union. One of the group, Rep. James H. Scheuer, was expelled and others were said to have sought out Zionist Jews and distributed religious materials.

1971 Output Sluggish

Washington — The Federal Reserve Board said industrial production rose by 0.7% in December to end 1971 on a strong upward note. The board noted, however, that the resumption of coal mining was part of the reason for the increase. Industrial output for the entire year was described as sluggish.

Canadian Airports Close

New York — Canadian air traffic controllers went on strike and forced the closing of all of Canada's 116 airports and the rerouting of international flights that normally crossed Canadian air space.

Northern Segregation Pondered

Washington — For the first time, the Supreme Court has agreed to hear an appeal that concerns the use of busing to reduce segregation in cities outside the South. (More on Page 3.)

Two-Thirds In Violation

Washington — Spot checks by Internal Revenue Service agents showed that about two-thirds of the nation's retail establishments were in violation of government price-posting regulations. An IRS spokesman said 60 to 70% of the 36,000 stores checked either did not have their base prices displayed or displayed them incorrectly.

Phone Price Hike OKd

Albany, N.Y. — A $160 million increase in telephone rates was approved by the Public Service Commission. The commission sought to soften the increase by ordering the telephone company to pay $1.50 monthly rebates to customers who received the worst service. This increase, along with a "temporary" $100 million hike last summer, raised rates 29% since last July.

Heroin Smuggling Charged

New York — Twenty-three men were charged with smuggling 1,500 pounds of heroin into the United States in the past two years. Two New York men were the only Americans named in the sealed indictment, which had been handed up by a federal grand jury Jan. 4, and which was opened here following the arrests of six of the defendants in France.

Death Penalty Invalid

Subsidized Loans Cost Taxpayers $6.5 Billion

. . . Reform Proposed; Harris Attacks System

Washington (AP) — Federally subsidized loans of all kinds are costing taxpayers up to $6.5 billion yearly, a congressional economic panel was told Monday.

Dr. Murray L. Wiedenbaum of Washington University in St. Louis told the Joint Economic Committee also that in 1970 alone the use of governmental credit power "resulted in hidden but very real government subsidies in excess of $5 billion."

Wiedenbaum proposed reform of credit subsidies in testimony which followed a full-scale attack on the subsidy system by Sen. Fred Harris D-Okla.

Referring to $63 billion in all subsidies identified in fiscal 1970 by a committee staff study, Harris said subsidies have the same relationship to 20th century politics as patronage did to the political life of the 19th century.

"With our honeycomb system of endless subsidies most special-interest legislation is already on the books" Harris said.

'Monied Interests'

"The monied interests in this country therefore give to political parties not so much in order to gain new advantages as in order to protect existing advantages" Harris said.

"This combination of heavy government involvement in the economy and of a scandalous system of campaign financing makes it highly unlikely that the Congress will ever embark on a course of fundamental reform," Harris said.

Harris called for reforms to disclose precisely who receives subsidy payments and said each subsidy should be analyzed "in terms of the monetary impact to different income brackets.

"For example, we should know how much of the $7 billion to $13 billion slips through the capital gains loophole to the 10% income bracket, the upper 20% and so on," he suggested.

Wiedenbaum focused his testimony on direct low-interest federal loans, guaranteed and insured loans, interest subsidy payments and loans by federally sponsored agencies.

All of these programs are growing in popularity and, since they are not included in the federal budget, "they seem to be a relatively painless way of achieving some national objective," Wiedenbaum said.

"At the heart of a subsidy is a political decision to give to some at the expense of others," Wiedenbaum added.

Hughes Favors Muskie

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, once a presidential contender himself, Monday endorsed the presidential bid of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

Adding his name to the growing roster of Democratic senators backing Muskie, Hughes said he is sure his party's frontrunner "will fairly represent all members of our party — including the minorities, the disadvantaged and the young.

Hughes said he believes Muskie has "proved his right" to be the Democratic Party's standard bearer.

"In terms of compassion, integrity, staying power, experience and judgment, I am fully convinced that Senator Muskie has proved himself the best qualified candidate in the field," Hughes said.

In Washington, Muskie also gained the endorsement of three more Democratic senators, Mike Gravel of Alaska, Quentin N. Burdick of North Dakota and Lee Metcalf of Montana.

Women Tip Scales For Anti-Marxists

Santiago, Chile (AP)— The women's vote was the decisive factor in stunning victories for the anti-Marxist opposition in Chile's special congressional elections.

Final returns showed Monday that women tipped the scales for Christian Democrat Rafael Moreno in his successful senatorial contest in the provinces of O'Higgins and Colchagua south of this capital.

They also gave lawyer Sergio Diez, a member of the right-wing National Party, an overwhelming victory over a woman Leftist in his race for House deputy in Linares Province, about 200 miles south of Santiago.

Moreno, 36, an agronomist who headed agrarian reform programs in the previous Christian Democratic government, received 77,611 votes in Sunday's balloting, compared to 68,338 votes for Socialist Hector Olivares, 48, a deputy and union leader who was the candidate of the leftist Popular Unity government.

World News

In Linares, Diez, 47, a former deputy, received 29,990 votes in this agricultural region to 21,165 votes for Maria Eliana Mery, a 34-year-old housewife who was the government candidate. Her brother, an agrarian reform official, became a leftist hero in Linares after he was clubbed to death in 1969 while taking part in the expropriation of a farm from a National Party member.

The big victory for the opposition in the two elections, which were regarded as popularity tests for President Salvador Allende's programs to "open the door to socialism" in Chile, sent anti-Marxists into the streets to celebrate and the Allende cabinet into a special meeting.

Progovernment newspapers, while acknowledging defeat, emphasized the increase in voting strength by the left in the three provinces from the 1970 presidential elections.

After a three-hour meeting of Popular Unity Party chiefs, the coalition issued a statement saying that the election results "do not involve a pronouncement" by the voters on government policies.

The statement said the government "continues to enjoy extraordinarily solid mass support," but it added: "There was agreement on the need to improve efforts by the parties to incorporate the woman in the process of changes."

Computer Fired; People Better

Sacramento, Calif. (UPI) — George Gustafson has just folded, spindled and mutilated a computer.

Gustafson, executive secretary of the state teacher preparation and licensing commission, fired the machine and switched to human beings. The move cut teacher credential processing time by 900%.

Gustafson Monday described his demodernization program as "converting credential processing from a complex and costly automated system to a streamlined, fully manual operation."

In other words, Gustafson said: "It was easier to do it by hand. We got rid of a million and a half dollars worth of computer."

By taking this giant step backwards, Gustafson said, he was also able to reduce the staff from 240 persons to 106. At the same time, getting rid of the new computer cut the credential processing period from an average of 95 days down to the current average of 10.

Since August the department has cut its force by 80 employes.

Kennedy Is Out Of Florida Poll

Tallahassee, Fla. (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., officially notified Florida Secretary of State Richard B. Stone Monday that he is not a candidate for president and does not "presently intend" to become one.

Kennedy asked Stone to delete his name from the ballot for Florida's first primary March 14.

'A Tree Grows In Brooklyn' Author Dies

Chapel Hill, N.C. (AP) — Betty Smith, author of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," died Monday at a convalescent home in Shelton, Conn. She was 75.

A native of Brooklyn, Miss Smith moved to Chapel Hill in the late 1930s to study under the late Professor Frederick H. Koch and Paul Green, a playwright.

Two of Miss Smith's books were made into motion pictures. These were "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" and "Joy in the Morning."

U.S. Planes See Heavy Action

Saigon (AP) — U.S. warplanes attacked across wide areas of Indochina in a massive campaign Monday to blunt an anticipated North Vietnamese offensive. U.S. officers said it was one of the heaviest days of air action since autumn.

Three U.S. helicopters supporting South Vietnamese ground operations were shot down. An American crewman in one chopper downed 17 miles southwest of Da Nang was killed.

Crewman in the other two escaped without injury.

Scores of B52 heavy bombers and smaller Navy and Air Force tactical aircraft mounted more than 200 strikes against North Vietnamese supply routes and depots ranging from the beginning of the Ho Chi Minh Trail along the Laos-North Vietnam border 255 miles southward to its exit near central South Vietnam.

The heavy bombing campaign brought retaliatory strikes from the North Vietnamese who are trying to keep open their only supply line to the South.

U.S. fighters escorting bombers on raids against the northern part of the trail exchanged missile fire with North Vietnamese antiaircraft defenses along the North Vietnamese border near the Ben Karai Pass, a key entry point to the supply network 35 to 45 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

North Vietnamese gunners fired three surface to air missiles—SAMs—at American planes, and the escorts fired back twice at the enemy's antiaircraft defenses with air to ground missiles. The U.S. Command said one SAM site and one antiaircraft artillery radar site were believed destroyed.

New York Times News Summary

Mujib Orders Guerrillas To Surrender Arms

(c) New York Times News Service

Dacca, Pakistan — Prime Minister Sheik Mujibur Rahman, in a move to deal with one of Bangladesh's most serious problems, Monday ordered all former guerrilla fighters to surrender their arms within 10 days. Bands of the former guerrillas have engaged in increasing lawlessness and have taken control of administrative powers in some rural areas.

Trio Accused Of Subversion

Moscow — Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, accused members of an American congressional group of subversive activities while touring the Soviet Union. One of the group, Rep. James H. Scheuer, was expelled and others were said to have sought out Zionist Jews and distributed religious materials

1971 Output Sluggish

Washington — The Federal Reserve Board said industrial production rose by 0.7% in December to end 1971 on a strong upward note. The board noted, however, that the resumption of coal mining was part of the reason for the increase. Industrial output for the entire year was described as sluggish.

Canadian Airports Close

New York — Canadian air traffic controllers went on strike and forced the closing of all of Canada's 116 airports and the rerouting of international flights that normally crossed Canadian air space.

Northern Segregation Pondered

Washington — For the first time, the Supreme Court has agreed to hear an appeal that concerns the use of busing to reduce segregation in cities outside the South. (More on Page 3.)

Two-Thirds In Violation

Washington — Spot checks by Internal Revenue Service agents showed that about two-thirds of the nation's retail establishments were in violation of government price-posting regulations. An IRS spokesman said 60 to 70% of the 36,000 stores checked either did not have their base prices displayed or displayed them incorrectly.

Phone Price Hike OKd

Albany, N.Y. — A $160 million increase in telephone rates was approved by the Public Service Commission. The commission sought to soften the increase by ordering the telephone company to pay $1.50 monthly rebates to customers who received the worst service. This increase, along with a "temporary" $100 million hike last summer, raised rates 29% since last July.

Heroin Smuggling Charged

New York — Twenty-three men were charged with smuggling 1,500 pounds of heroin into the United States in the past two years. Two New York men were the only Americans named in the sealed indictment, which had been handed up by a federal grand jury Jan. 4, and which was opened here following the arrests of six of the defendants in France.

Death Penalty Invalid

Trenton, N.J. — The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled the state's death penalty was unconstitutional. (More on Page 3.)

Subsidized Loans Cost Taxpayers $6.5 Billion

. . . Reform Proposed; Harris Attacks System

Washington (AP) — Federally subsidized loans of all kinds are costing taxpayers up to $6.5 billion yearly, a congressional economic panel was told Monday.

Dr. Murray L. Wiedenbaum of Washington University in St. Louis told the Joint Economic Committee also that in 1970 alone the use of governmental credit power "resulted in hidden but very real government subsidies in excess of $5 billion."

Wiedenbaum proposed reform of credit subsidies in testimony which followed a full-scale attack on the subsidy system by Sen. Fred Harris D-Okla.

Referring to $63 billion in all subsidies identified in fiscal 1970 by a committee staff study, Harris said subsidies have the same relationship to 20th century politics as patronage did to the political life of the 19th century.

"With our honeycomb system of endless subsidies most special-interest legislation is already on the books" Harris said.

'Monied Interests'

"The monied interests in this country therefore give to political parties not so much in order to gain new advantages as in order to protect existing advantages" Harris said

"This combination of heavy government involvement in the economy and of a scandalous system of campaign financing makes it highly unlikely that the Congress will ever embark on a course of fundamental reform," Harris said.

Harris called for reforms to disclose precisely who receives subsidy payments and said each subsidy should be analyzed "in terms of the monetary impact to different income brackets.

"For example, we should know how much of the $7 billion to $13 billion slips through the capital gains loophole to the 10% income bracket, the upper 20% and so on," he suggested

Wiedenbaum focused his testimony on direct low-interest federal loans, guaranteed and insured loans, interest subsidy payments and loans by federally sponsored agencies.

All of these programs are growing in popularity and, since they are not included in the federal budget, "they seem to be a relatively painless way of achieving some national objective." Wiedenbaum said.

"At the heart of a subsidy is a political decision to give to some at the expense of others," Wiedenbaum added.

Hughes Favors Muskie

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, once a presidential contender himself, Monday endorsed the presidential bid of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

Adding his name to the growing roster of Democratic senators backing Muskie, Hughes said he is sure his party's frontrunner "will fairly represent all members of our party — including the minorities, the disadvantaged and the young.

Hughes said he believes Muskie has "proved his right" to be the Democratic Party's standard bearer.

"In terms of compassion, integrity, staying power, experience and judgment, I am fully convinced that Senator Muskie has proved himself the best qualified candidate in the field," Hughes said.

In Washington, Muskie also gained the endorsement of three more Democratic senators, Mike Gravel of Alaska, Quentin N. Burdick of North Dakota and Lee Metcalf of Montana.

Women Tip Scales For Anti-Marxists

Santiago, Chile (AP) — The women's vote was the decisive factor in stunning victories for the anti-Marxist opposition in Chile's special congressional elections.

Final returns showed Monday that women tipped the scales for Christian Democrat Rafael Moreno in his successful senatorial contest in the provinces of O'Higgins and Colchagua south of this capital.

They also gave lawyer Sergio Diez, a member of the right-wing National Party, an overwhelming victory over a woman Leftist in his race for House deputy in Linares Province, about 200 miles south of Santiago.

Moreno, 36, an agronomist who headed agrarian reform programs in the previous Christian Democratic government, received 77,611 votes in Sunday's balloting, compared to 68,338 votes for Socialist Hector Olivares, 48, a deputy and union leader who was the candidate of the leftist Popular Unity government.

World News

In Linares, Diez, 47, a former deputy, received 29,990 votes in this agricultural region to 21,165 votes for Maria Eliana Mery, a 34-year-old housewife who was the government candidate. Her brother, an agrarian reform official, became a leftist hero in Linares after he was clubbed to death in 1969 while taking part in the expropriation of a farm from a National Party member.

The big victory for the opposition in the two elections, which were regarded as popularity tests for President Salvador Allende's programs to "open the door to socialism" in Chile, sent anti-Marxists into the streets to celebrate and the Allende cabinet into a special meeting.

Progovernment newspapers, while acknowledging defeat, emphasized the increase in voting strength by the left in the three provinces from the 1970 presidential elections.

After a three-hour meeting of Popular Unity Party chiefs, the coalition issued a statement saying that the election results "do not involve a pronouncement" by the voters on government policies.

The statement said the government "continues to enjoy extraordinarily solid mass support," but it added: "There was agreement on the need to improve efforts by the parties to incorporate the woman in the process of changes."

'A Tree Grows In Brooklyn' Author Dies

Chapel Hill, N.C. (AP) — Betty Smith, author of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," died Monday at a convalescent home in Shelton, Conn. She was 75.

A native of Brooklyn, Miss Smith moved to Chapel Hill in the late 1930s to study under the late Professor Frederick H Koch and Paul Green, a playwright.

Two of Miss Smith's books were made into motion pictures. These were "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" and "Joy in the Morning."

U.S. Planes See Heavy Action

Saigon (AP) — U.S. warplanes attacked across wide areas of Indochina in a massive campaign Monday to blunt an anticipated North Vietnamese offensive. U.S. officers said it was one of the heaviest days of air action since autumn.

Three U S helicopters supporting South Vietnamese ground operations were shot down. An American crewman in one chopper downed 17 miles southwest of Da Nang was killed.

Crewman in the other two escaped without injury.

Scores of B52 heavy bombers and smaller Navy and Air Force tactical aircraft mounted more than 200 strikes against North Vietnamese supply routes and depots ranging from the beginning of the Ho Chi Minh Trail along the Laos-North Vietnam border 255 miles southward to its exit near central South Vietnam.

The heavy bombing campaign brought retaliatory strikes from the North Vietnamese who are trying to keep open their only supply line to the South.

US fighters escorting bombers on raids against the northern part of the trail exchanged missile fire with North Vietnamese antiaircraft defenses along the North Vietnamese border near the Ben Karai Pass, a key entry point to the supply network 35 to 45 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

North Vietnamese gunners fired three surface to air missiles—SAMs—at American planes, and the escorts fired back twice at the enemy's antiaircraft defenses with air to ground missiles. The U.S. Command said one SAM site and one antiaircraft artillery radar site were believed destroyed.

Computer Fired; People Better

Sacramento, Calif. (UPI) — George Gustafson has just folded, spindled and mutilated a computer.

Gustafson, executive secretary of the state teacher preparation and licensing commission, fired the machine and switched to human beings. The move cut teacher credential processing time by 90%.

Gustafson Monday described his demodernization program as "converting credential processing from a complex and costly automated system to a streamlined, fully manual operation."

In other words, Gustafson said: "It was easier to do it by hand. We got rid of a million and a half dollars worth of computer."

By taking this giant step backwards, Gustafson said, he was also able to reduce the staff from 240 persons to 106. At the same time, getting rid of the new computer cut the credential processing period from an average of 95 days down to the current average of 10.

Since August the department has cut its force by 80 employes.

Kennedy Is Out Of Florida Poll

Tallahassee, Fla. (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., officially notified Florida Secretary of State Richard B. Stone Monday that he is not a candidate for president and does not "presently intend" to become one.

Kennedy asked Stone to delete his name from the ballot for Florida's first primary March 14.

Challenge Boils Down To Two Major Themes . . .

Is Death Penalty Necessary Or Unacceptable To Society?

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

Washington (AP) — The first constitutional challenge to the use of the death penalty boils down to two major themes. For those against, it is a punishment unacceptable to modern society and arbitrary in application; for those in favor, it is necessary for the protection of society.

The threads run through the briefs filed in the four cases the court will consider before it rules sometime in the next five months on whether execution is cruel and unusual punishment within the meaning of the Eighth Amendment.

"The real danger concerning cruel and unhuman laws is that they will be enacted in the form such that they can be applied sparsely and spottily to unhappy minorities, whose numbers are so few, whose plight is so invisible, and whose persons are so unpopular that society can readily bear to see them suffer torments which would not for a moment be acceptable as penalties of general application to the populace," said the brief for Ernest Aikens.

All Four Are Black

Aikens is one of two condemned murderers whose case is before the court. The other two cases involve death penalties for rape. All four men are black, convicted of crimes against whites.

"The conclusion is unescapable, we think," said Antony G. Amsterdam in his brief in the Aikens case, "that this rare penalty, inflicted upon the smallest handful of murderers is not part of the regular criminal law machinery of California or of any other state.

"It is a freakish aberration, a random extreme act of violence, visibly arbitrary and discriminatory — a penalty reserved for unusual application, because, if it were regularly used, it would affront universally shared standards of public decency. Such a penalty—not law but terror—has no place in a democratic government."

Ronald M. George, responding for the state of California, argued:

"The deep-rooted history of capital punishment in this country and in our cultural and religious heritage, and the widespread support for the death penalty in the majority of our population and to most segments of our society, disproves the assertion that the death penalty is a barbaric relic of the past.

'Recognition Of Need'

"The failure of our almost annual effort in the California legislature to abolish the death penalty and the concurrent expansion of the list of federal and state capital offenses, are indicative of the continuing recognition of the need for the death penalty as a protection of society. . .

"Nothing has happened in the 180-year history of the Constitution and in the 300-year history of capital punishment in this nation, which can alter the fact of the framers' contemplation of the death penalty as a form of punishment of necessity available to the states for the protection of society in a case such as the one at the bar."

Aikens was 20 years old at the time that he killed Mrs. Kathleen Nell Dodd in Ventura, Calif., in 1962. He was condemned to death in that case and sentenced to life for a murder he committed at age 17.

In the second murder case, that of William Henry Furman of Georgia, Amsterdam wrote in his brief that "at the heart of the argument is the principle that the Eighth Amendment condemns the penalty which is so oppressive that it can command public acceptance only by sporadic, exceedingly rare and arbitrary imposition."

Georgia Asst. Atty. Gen. Dorothy T. Beasley argued that "the threat of the death penalty for armed robbery palpably serves as a deterrent; it is common knowledge that robbers frequently accomplish their evil ends with unloaded weapons. Can it be said that this is not because they are aware that an armed robbery can draw the death penalty but an unarmed robbery cannot."

One-Day Trial

In the case of Lucious Jackson of Georgia, who was condemned for rape after a one-day trial, the argument against the death penalty was "the punishment of death of rape in the Southern states can be accounted for exclusively by racial considerations. . .

"This sort of rare, terrorist infliction is precisely the evil against which the Eighth Amendment must guard if that amendment is to serve a function among the guarantees of rights in a democratic society."

Mrs. Beasley responded that "the utter disregard shown by rapists for values which society holds at least as high as the value of life, and in some cases higher . . . warrant death as a commensurate penalty. . .

"The victim in a rape, the woman or child, can never escape the memory, can never avoid the indelibility of the tarnishing experience."

Disproportionately

In the case of Elmer Branc of Texas, another condemned rapist, the claim was also made that the death penlaty for that offense is a Southern phenomenon assessed highly disproportionately against the blacks.

"The imposition of death penalty for rape is both a tool and product of racial discrimination," wrote attorney Melvin Bruder in his brief, "visited upon Negroes, thereby rendering its 'unusual' within the national framework."

Charles Alan Wright, responding for Texas wrote, "If capital punishment is constitutionally permissible for some crimes it is permissible for rape . . . the death penalty may be regarded as a superior deterrent for rape, as for murder . . . rape has always been regarded as one of the most serious of crimes, its incidence is rising sharply and a legislature does not act unreasonably in concluding to retain the death penalty for rape."

ELECTRIC CHAIR . . . 'cruel and unusual?'

Conscience Must Decide If Death Is Unusual Punishment, Court Told

Washington (AP) — The evolving national conscience must govern the meaning of the Eighth Amendment in condemning capital punishment, lawyers contended Monday in asking the Supreme Court to declare the death penalty unconsitutional.

"The death penalty is virtually unanimously repudiated by the conscience of contemporary society," argued Stanford University law professor Anthony G. Amsterdam.

The high court set up the historic confrontation over the Constitution by accepting the appeals of four cases, two of murder and two for rape, in in which the defendants were condemned to death.

A ruling on the issue is expected before the court term ends in June. It will directly affect nearly 700 condemned men and women on death rows in 34 states.

Forty-one states and the federal government still have the death pentalty.

The high court often has considered capital cases but only on individual, procedural grounds.

The sole question before the court now is whether the death penalty constitutes the "cruel and unusual punishment" which is prohibited by the Eighth Amendment.

Amsterdam, arguing for the two murder defendants, suggested that the test is whether the punishment would be acceptable to the general conscience and standards of decency if applied generally.

His own answer was no.

The death penalty, he said, is rarely applied and then only to minority members, the powerless, "the personally ugly and socially unacceptable."

Amsterdam appeared for Ernest James Aikens Jr., who was convicted of murder in California and for William Henry Furman, convicted of murder in Georgia.

Aiken's case presented the broadcast challenge to the death penalty. His attorneys said they make no claim that the death penalty should not apply to their triple-murder defendant if indeed the penalty is found to be constitutional.

The lawyers in Furman's case made the same general arguments but said there are indications Furman is mentally ill and that to submit him to the death penalty without mental examination would constitute cruel and unusual punishment.

Arguing Aikens case, California Asst. Atty. Gen. Ronald M. George said national regjection of the death penalty as claimed by Amsterdam does not exist. He said an increase in the number of juries which decree the death penalty is a more accurate measure of national sentiment than the unofficial moratorium on executions in the United States, which attorneys for Aikens cited.

N.J. Execution Law Is Declared Invalid

Trenton, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled Monday that under present state law persons convicted of murder in New Jersey can no longer be given the death penalty. The ruling lifted the threat of execution for the 20 men now on the state's death row.

The court accepted the conclusion of the U.S. Supreme Court that the New Jersey murder law was unconstitutional because it subjects a defendant to the death penalty only if he pleads innocent rather than no defense.

The gist of the previous death penalty statute was that if an accused person wished to plead innocent, he had to virtually bet his life in the case. However, if he pleaded no defense, he could not legally be sentenced to death. In New Jersey, a defendant may not plead guilty to murder.

The nation's highest court had set aside the death penalty for Victor R. Funicello, convicted in a New Jersey murder case in 1961. In its decision, the high court cited a previous ruling that overturned a federal kidnaping statute on the issue of innocent and no defense pleas.

Arguments To Be Heard On Segregation Outside Dixie

From Press Reports

Washington—The Supreme Court, for the first time, agreed Monday to hear argument on claims of segregation in a northern public school system.

The case accepted for review is from Denver, where a group of black and Spanish-surnamed school children contend they were segregated by school board planning and policy rather than by segregation laws.

The court will hold an oral hearing sometime later this term and issue a ruling by the end of June.

The case was taken on without comment except for the notation that Justice Byron R. White would not participate. The reason for the self-disqualification was not given, although White is from Colorado. He has supported all civil rights advances by the high court.

New Men Take Part

The eight remaining justices, including the new men, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist, will participate.

While the Supreme Court has ruled that segregation laws in southern and border states are unconstitutional, it has not reached the issue of school segregation in states which had no such laws.

In other actions, the court:

—By an 8 to 1 vote affirmed a decision dismissing the claim that the New Jersey school system is unconstitutional because some school districts have a high percentage of minority group students. The court gave no reason for its summary disposition in the case. Justice William O. Douglas dissented.

—Agreed to decide in a Portland, Ore., case whether the constitutional right of free speech gives protesters the blanket privilege to distribute political pamphlets and conduct rallies on private business properties such as suburban shopping centers. The court ruled in 1968 that centers may not prohibit such activities directly aimed at stores or businesses at the center itself but has never ruled whether nonrelated demonstrations can be banned.

—Agreed to decide in a North Carolina case whether property owners who claim their homes were damaged by sonic booms may sue the Air Force.

—Permitted backers of the late Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski to participate in the government's effort to overturn the election of United Mineworkers Union President W. A. (Tony) Boyle but refused by a 6 to 1 vote to permit them to raise new challenges at this point in the court proceedings.

—Let stand lower court decisions that reputed underworld kingpin Simone Rizzo (Sam the Plumber) DeCalvacante freely pleaded guilty to charges of masterminding a $20-million-a-year interstate gambling ring.

Question: —"I'm a bachelor, 49. This may sound trivial but it annoys the devil out of me that everyone in my family calls me 'Uncle John'. It's okay for my assorted nieces and nephews to use this since I am their Uncle John. But why should my two brothers and three sisters call me this, too? And all their friends? It makes me feel peculiar—like a doddering old codger. Why can't they just call me John?"

Answer: —Unmarried middle-aged males traditionally get labeled "Uncle." It probably began centuries ago when folks felt sorry for unmarried males and assumed a cozy title signifying a definite relationship would make the individual feel less lonely and more a definite part of the family. Also, grownups tend to use designations which their children use. They hear the children use the term so much.

Question: — "I'm 68, shut in a good bit due to arthritis in both legs, and spend my days watching television. Now my doctor tells me I'll endanger my eyes unless I limit my TV watching to an hour a day. What am I expected to do—sit and stare at the four walls?"

Answer: What did shut-ins do before television? Learn to do things with your hands—try toymaking, leathercraft, woodworking, and weaving. Use your telephone in getting acquainted with every elder citizen in your community. Invite people to your home for visits. Get a phonograph and obtain "talking books" from your library. Chances are you'll get more kicks from these channels than you've been getting from the television variety.

Purse Snatcher Shoots Victim 3 Times For $6

Dallas (UPI) — Ida Walker, 43, went to St. Paul's Hospital to visit a sick relative.

As she was walking through the hospital parking lot toward her car after the visit, a man tried to grab her purse but Mrs. Walker jerked it back.

"Lady, I want that purse," the man said.

"No, I need my purse," Mrs. Walker said. "I have all my personal belongings in it and need it. If you get my purse, you are going to have to kill me."

The man then backed away, pulled out a gun and shot Mrs. Walker three times in the head, grabbed the purse and ran.

Mrs. Walker related the incident to police before she died. She said the purse contained $6.

EVENTS
IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The pace of activity in the nation picks up today, this being the opening day for the 1972 session of Congress. It will be one of those more unusual years, one in which we also elect a president for the nation.

Also, we will be electing 33 members of the Senate and all members of the House of the Representatives. The elections will add flavor to what would be, in any event, a decisive time for law-making. The two major parties will be jockeying for a favorable position with the voters, seeking to show the wisdom of their ways and the folly of the opposition.

There will be ample opportunity for them to do this. When President Nixon gives his State of the Union message this week, he could save a lot of time by pulling out last year's speech. He outlined "six great goals" in 1971 and not one of the five requiring congressional action has yet been adopted.

In looking for expansion of the economy in 1971, the President was on his own because economic policy is determined largely at the federal level from the office of the president. How Nixon has done on this score will be reflected, of course, in a multitude of congressional actions.

Specific presidential objectives still remaining on the House and Senate agenda include revenue-sharing, welfare reform, executive reorganization, health insurance and environmental clean-up.

Important decisions remain to be made in the area of foreign aid, national defense, agriculture, crime control, transportation, poverty and consumer protection. In the area of presidential goals, assuming Nixon does not change them this week, executive reorganization is the least likely to make it to final approval.

There isn't any question that the government is getting too big to handle but the problem remains of what to do about it. The reorganization suggested by Nixon would consolidate seven administrative departments into four superagencies with direct access to the White House.

The difficulty is that no one seems sure whether that would be an improvement or not. It might provide in theory a better system of control but it also could result in some operations being lost in a huge departmental network of bureaucracy.

And governmental reorganization has less glamor, probably, than any of the other issues facing the House and Senate. It is not the kind of thing that gets the voters very excited and that will be important this year in the legislative halls.

There is not much question that progress will be made in the other areas of presidential concern and perhaps final action taken. What the form of this action will be, however, is still subject to considerable debate.

Revenue-sharing, welfare reform, health insurance and environmental clean-up, despite the time they have been around, are still relatively new subjects. About all we really know to date is that we have not done a very good job in any of those areas but we have not come up with answers of any universal appeal.

In welfare reform, health insurance and anti-poverty programs, the nation still grapples with the complexity of human nature and social influences still not fully understood. The fundamental problems has been that you can do good things for people but it doesn't always turn out good.

Also, the cost of meeting the needs of the disadvantaged members of our society has turned out to be far greater than anyone ever thought it might be. We wonder if, in the end, the answer might not prove to be the elimination of all social welfare programs and the establishment of a single guaranteed minimum wage for everyone.

Of this the citizens can be sure — the coming session of Congress will greatly affect the lives of all of us. There is hardly a facet of life that will not be touched either directly or indirectly in the coming months of legislative work in Washington.

Additionally, the posture of our nation in relation to the rest of the world will be cut and fitted at least a little differently than it is at the moment. The coming months will be exciting and significant ones for all of us.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE
Stanford Proceeds To Fire Professor

NEW YORK—Stanford University's long—and expensive—struggle to kick a revolutionary-radical off its faculty proves something many parents were beginning to fear was only an Establishment hangup.

That it just might be possible, after all, to fire a professor who finds it more exciting to incite student riots than to lecture on the subject he's hired to teach.

Even if he has that long-hallowed academic protection called "tenure."

Even if his wife joins him at a press conference toting a carbine (she said it wasn't loaded) to symbolize the source of political power.

And even if he calls the decision to oust him a "witch hunt" . . . and says he hopes it will ignite a violent reaction on campus.

Sounds like the plot of a cheap movie, doesn't it. But it's the latest episode in the sorry saga of H. Bruce Franklin, associate professor of English and self-styled advocate of armed revolution. He's supposed to be an expert on Herman Melville, but he seems more interested in Mao than Mobby Dick.

Now, a facilty advisory board has found him guilty of inciting student occupation of a campus computer center last February and of encouraging them to resist a police order to get on about their business. (Like studying, maybe?)

This was just two months before a national survey suggested that one of the forces behind the explosive wave of college riots during 1969 was a scattering of radical professors who condoned violence and egged on revolutionary students.

Franklin says he wasn't doing any such thing; he was merely giving students at a nighttime rally a "broad radical analysis" of the situation.

The university didn't exactly rush into its verdict. It spent $37,000 to convert a classroom into a courtroom . . . hired ushers and court reporters . . . and spent five hours a day, six days a week, for six weeks collecting 4,200 pages of testimony from 100 witnesses.

Then, in true cliff-hanger style, it mulled over the evidence for two months before deciding the university could do without Franklin's educational contributions.

Franklin called it a "fascist" repudiation of his freedom of expression and said he hoped it would provoke a revolutionary protest from the students, adding that "whatever happens is not enough."

Something did happen, all right. But not much.

Some radical professors announced a fund-raising drive to pay for a civil court challenge of his dismissal. And a few campus supporters moved into the university chapel to spend the night. (Praying for his reinstatement?)

Meanwhile, back at the administration building, President Richard W. Lyman backed the board's verdict and bumped it upstairs to the board of trustees, with a side comment about how it's almost unprecedented to fire a prof with tenure.

A visiting law professor ventured the opinion that "the eyes of many universities" will be focused on the trustees' decision. Let's hope a lot of radical professors are paying attention, too.

'Guess What? I Learned What De Jure And De Facto Mean'

(Herblock is on vacation)

Reconciliation Sought

President Ali Bhutto of Pakistan has made an extraordinary offer in hopes of reuniting what was the eastern part of his country and is now independent Bangladesh with the West. Bhutto said he would quit politics and turn over the government to Bangladesh Prime Minister Sheik Mujib Bahman if the new state would rejoin Pakistan.

The offer has little chance of being accepted. Bhutto grabbed the reins of power too late in Pakistan to effect a reconciliation. Mujib, who credits Bhutto with saving his life while he was a prisoner under sentence of death in West Pakistan, has nevertheless said that all ties between Bangladesh and Pakistan are forever broken. And he also accuses Pakistan of committing history's biggest mass murder in trying to suppress the independence movement. By his count, three million East Pakistanis died, and he wants former Pakistan President Yahya Khan, whom President Nixon admires, charged with genocide.

Bhutto is a flamboyant politician who has the reputation of being gutty when the situation demands. His latest offer may be judged a grandstand play because it will doubtless be rejected, but there still is something admirable about it. Bhutto is seeking unity whatever the personal cost.

Another leftist leader, Chile's Marxist President Salvador Allende, is in trouble. His Popular Unity government suffered stunning setbacks in two special congressional elections over the weekend. Allende himself said the elections were "extraordinarily important." Anti-Marxist opposition united behind a single candidate in each of the elections, one for a Senate seat, the other for a seat in the Chamber of Deputies.

Neither election changed the balance of parties in Chile's Congress, but the results were seen as a sharp rebuke to the policies of the Marxist chief executive. There has been a steady erosion in Allende's popularity and it was partly for that reason that Allende arranged for Fidel Castro's three-week trip to Chile last year.

Allende's government took power through a democratic, constitutional process. If the downward trend in popularity continues, it will be interesting to see if that government uses unconstitutional means to stay in power.

'Friendly' America Impresses

For history's sake, it should be noted that on Jan. 16, 1972, an important world leader said something nice about the United States.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt met with President Nixon over the holiday season and then stayed on in Florida for a two-week vacation. Just returned home, Brandt Sunday reflected on his visit in an interview with the New York Times.

"I sensed how much inner strength there is these United States," he said, "how much down-to-earth helpfulness and friendliness there are among the Americans themselves and toward strangers." This was different, he said, "from the picture of Americans one is given" in Western Europe.

Brandt said he was particularly impressed by the hospitality and friendliness extended to him and his family in Florida, by "how many Americans are working as volunteers" in hospitals, schools and other social institutions and, in contrast to European conditions, "how much more considerate Americans are in highway traffic, how considerate they are of others altogether . . ."

The German leader said he has been in the United States "many times," but almost always on official business in the big cities. The Florida vacation was a "new experience" for him.

Brandt's reactons should be comforting to the people of this country and we hope they gain wide exposure. The U.S. gets a black eye in Europe and elsewhere because everything that is bad here gets played up. This once, we're glad to see drugs, racism, crime, poverty and aggression take a back seat. Chancellor Brandt got out and saw some of the country and liked what he saw.

JAMES RESTON
Mystery Of 'Leaks' May Not Be Political; Copying Machine Appears To Be Culprit

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration is now trying to fathom a mystery. Why, it wants to know, are so many more government secrets now leaking to the press? Who is responsible for these breaches of security, and what is to be done about them? The FBI and the military intelligence services are now scrambling desperately for the answer.

There are many theories. The political theory is that the federal civil servants, most of them appointed during the long executive domination of the Democratic party, are trying to embarrass the present Republican administration.

The philosophical theory is that the anti-war bureaucrats are handing over to the press any documents that might show the difference between what the President and his closest associates are saying in public and what they are saying in private. And if you study the disclosures of the Pentagon Papers and the Anderson Papers, there is obviously something to these political and philosophical theories.

Nevertheless, the guess here is that the real explanation is not primarily political or philosophical, but scientific and technical. The real source of the leaks is Chester Carlson, who invented the electrostatic copying or Xerox system, which now dominates the federal government and influences the flow of information in every other institution in the country.

Every government department, agency, bureau, section, sub-section, secretary's office, assistant secretary's office, and secretary to the assistant secretary has a copying machine, or access to one, and copying, filing, and circulating has become a rule in Washington and even a disease.

Washington is really run by intelligent women secretaries, who are constantly being asked by forgetful cabinet members, what about this and that, so they keep the records, and Xerox whatever they might forget.

The Xerox system is so simple that nobody in this town can do without it. Henry Kissinger has a meeting of the principal advisers to the President in the cabinet room of the White House to discuss what to do about the Indo-Pakistani crisis, and naturally, he wants a record of what is said, which is recorded by the official rappoeteur, and then Xeroxed for the participants, and circulated so that everybody concerned knows what was said and what they are supposed to do about it.

Switch now to the Xerox or copying room in the basement of the White House. The operator, unless he is policed, can punch 10, or 11, or 15 copies of the secret record, and circulate them as he likes. The possibilities of leaks are obvious.

Every copy going to any authorized person in the Kissinger meeting on the Indo-Pakistani war can easily and quickly be Xeroxed and circulated to the "responsible persons" in his own department, passing through aides and secretaries, who have other Xerox machines, and while most of them merely pass the message along to its intended receiver, anybody along the line can intercept and duplicate the message and circulate it at will, or so it seems.

It would be hard to prove that the recent security leaks are the result of anti-Nixon, anti-war sentiments within the Civil Service or the foreign service of the United States. The tradition in both serves the President, no matter what he does, but once secrets are copied and circulated widely by Zerox, the elements of accident and disclosure are obviously far greater than ever in the past.

Quick modern electrostatic copying has had a much greater influence on security and diplomacy than is generally realized. The theory was that, if you could copy documents quickly, you could expanded knowledge, information and truth, and while there is a lot to be said for this, it has worked out in surprising ways.

For example, ambassadors or foreign service officers of the United States abroad, who used to be able to send their dissents privately to the State Department or the president now have to calculate that their dissents will be copied and circulated in Washington, so they tend to be cautious.

So maybe the mystery is not political or philosophical but merely technical. Paradoxically, the copying machines which were intended to expand informaton and truth are going in the opposite direction. The Xerox is not increasing security but diminishing it. It is not encouraging honest dissent, but blocking it.

Beyond this, it is overwhelming officials here in paper work and keeping them from the definition and resolution of their main problems.

Unwarranted Tickets

Lincoln, Neb.

As one of the many volunteers for the recent Cerebral Palsy Telethon, we were appalled to discover after leaving East High School's parking lot at 2:00 a.m., Sunday morning, to see the Police Department had ticketed many of the cars parked on the campus.

How disgustingly legal can the Police Department become when hundreds of people are contributing their time, effort and money for such a worthwhile project, only to discover the police have nothing better to do than give you a ticket for it?

We feel that all those tickets should be voided or the money collected go directly into the Cerebral Palsy fund.

Two Masters

Winnetoon, Neb.

In the past few months we have been hearing so much about the need for legislation for the farmers so that he, too, can bargain for a price like business people do.

Several congressmen got together and came up with a half dozen different bills. Most of them have been drawn to the whims and desires of farm organizations.

So now we have the Sisk Bill, and as far as I know, the Sat Bill and for what they amount to, they could just as well be known as the "Set and Sat Bills." Anyone who has read them knows there is absolutely no teeth in them, at all, so why the bills? Just another effort to keep the farmer confused — to make him believe that next year will be better — and we've been waiting for "next year" for the last 18 years.

What we in the NFO would like to know is, why do we need any legislation at the farm level, at all? Fifty years ago, the Cappers-Volstead Act was passed to give the farmer all the bargaining rights he needs as of now. Have people forgotten that this is what NFO is operating under since its beginning in 1955? Legal in every respect, we have been and will continue to prove so in the courts.

It is also just because it puts the farmer in the same position as a businessman instead of approaching the processor as a beggar and asking, "What will it please you to give ME?"

Other farm organizations need new legislation because it is legally impossible for them to operate under the Cappers-Volstead Act. NFO is the only farm organization that is working for a price for farmers and only that. To this end we are dedicated.

Almost all other large farm organizations are in the buying and selling of farm products, in direct competition with farmers, and I don't care how many laws are passed — they can never work!

The Sisk Bill, for example, will consist of a presidentially appointed, three-member board, who will no doubt be corporation-controlled and vertical intergration-minded, and will know or care as much about farmers' needs for collective bargaining as does Secretary Butz.

I think it's safe to say that 99 per cent of the farmers believe in God. Then pick up the Holy Bible and read Matthew, Ch. 6, Verse 24 or Luke 16:13. "No man can serve two masters, for either he will hate the one and love the other, or . . . etc."

Therefore, I just can't see how any bill can be passed for these farm organizations in which they hope to please both the buyer and the sellers. It is utterly impossible!

Only the NFO is trying to please the farmers.

No Secrecy

Lincoln, Neb.

Amendment to the committee's rules so that vote in an executive session shall be public. Come now. The senator from the west can do better than that. He is always preparing amendments to the state constitution for people to vote on in an election year.

So let's make this one, no secrecy in government, "behind the people, in front of the people, no secrecy, ever."

IGNATIUS

Not So New

Lincoln, Neb.

Speaking of legislative stupidity, as in The Star's January 13 editorial, I wish hired historians could tell our Legislature in what century and by what nation each proposed new law was enacted, found stupid and repealed.

From ancient history we learn that no one ever learns
To keep his cotton-pickin' fingers off the stove that burns.
Our current Legislature and our current Congress, too,
Are pestered with requests to try some stunts described as new,
But many innovations seeming new beneath the sun

ALDEN S. METCALF

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My little niece, 2 months old, died suddenly. We are heartbroken and shocked at the suddenness as she was a perfectly healthy, happy and beautiful baby. She was put to bed perfectly all right, no fever, cough or cold yet the next morning she was found dead. She had just had her complete baby checkup two days before. The fireman took her to the hospital. All they would say was that it was "bronchitis." How could this be?—Mrs. M.S.

These co-called "crib deaths" are a terrible shock. In most cases the only explanation is that, in very small babies, infections can start with frightening abruptness, and they often attack the respiratory organs. The windpipe is so tiny that infection and congestion can close it off very quickly—which is what evidently occurred in this tragic case. Infection of the bronchial tubes ("bronchitis") was the answer. Ways are being sought to prevent these "crib deaths." But the solution is not yet apparent.

Note to R.S.: Climate may make an arthritis patient more comfortable, or less, but climate does not cause the diseases—not even the damp climate to which you refer.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter underwent a minor operation six weeks ago for a kidney infection, but she still has the infection and I cannot get a straight story from the doctor as to her present condition. I am thinking of asking him for a written report because in the past I have found that written reports by doctors are precise and to the point and, most of all, understandable. What do you think of my asking the doctor for a report summarizing his findings and recommendations?—E.J.E.

I see no objection to asking for a report and it will serve as a record if the trouble continues and she subsequently is treated by some other physician.

Keep in mind, however, that kidney infections are likely to be stubborn and recurrent, and it is difficult to estimate how quickly the problem can be overcome.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write about polycythemia of the blood, cause and treatment. Why are the fingers affected?—D.J.N.

Polycythemia means an increase in the red blood cells—not as common as the opposite condition, a lack of sufficient red cells (anemia). But a not especially uncommon condition, either.

There are two forms of polycythemia. One is secondary to some other condition, such as chronic lung disease, congenital heart disease, blood vessel abnormalities, or obesity.

The other form is primary. That is, not caused by some other disease condition. Then it is called polycythemia vera. (Its cause is not known.)

Anyway, with a greatly increased supply of red cells, parts of the body will have a dusky, congested appearance. That is the case with the fingers, and the nails may be dusky or dark. The face usually has a ruddy hue. Flushing of the skin and headache are common intial symptoms.

It is not unusual for the condition to be discovered incidental to examination or treatment for a heart attack, stroke or some other illness.

Treatment, aside from correcting the underlying cause when there is one, is to reduce the red cell count. Sometimes this can be accomplished by the use of radioactive phosphorus, to suppress red cell formation. Another method is simply drawing off a certain amount of blood periodically.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After two weeks in the hospital, my lung condition was diagnosed as histoplasmosis. What is the cause of this, is it fatal, or what is the cuhe? — Mrs. J. M.

This is a fungus infection which can range from very minor to very severe (rare). Many people (we now know) encounter it, think it is nothing more than an attack of flu, and get over it readily. In other instances, the fungus can attack other organs, and the disease then can resemble a considerable number of widely divergent diseases ranging from anemia to tuberculosis, so it is virtually impossible to deschibe any particular pattern for the disease. Most cases require no treatment.

Note to Mrs. A.B.: I simply don't know whether there is any danger in the toy you mention, or whether the plastic can be toxic, but it's only about a 10-cent phone call from where you live to the Food and Drug Administration branch office in the city. Why not check with them?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why is a gain in weight quite commonly reported by those who have conquered the tobacco habit? My brother-in-law gained 20 pounds and said he feels that the only way to prevent a further gain would be to resume smoking. Are the taste buds the real culprits? — N. A. E.

This may be an oversimplification, although smoking does dull the sense of taste to some extent. But the psychological explanation for such weight gain is that the person switches from one habit to another. Instead of lighting up, he substitutes nibbling a piece of candy or whatever.

Anyone who has the will power to stop smoking can stop snacking, too—if he is aware of the problem.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our 18-year-old niece has petit mal and is taking Dilantin and phenobarbital daily. She drinks at least two quarts of cola daily. We tell her this is bad for her, but she doesn't believe it. Will you please give your opinion? — Mrs. C. E.

Drinking two quarts of cola a day under the best of circumstances would be begging some kind of trouble.

In your niece's case, it is even more unadvisable since cola contains caffeine which should be avoided in petit mal, a convulsive condition. Caffeine is a stimulant.

I suggest you have your niece's doctor deliver a few discreet words of advice to the young girl at the earliest convenience.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The pace of activity in the nation picks up today, this being the opening day for the 1972 session of Congress It will be one of those more unusual years, one in which we also elect a president for the nation

Also, we will be electing 33 members of the Senate and all members of the House of the Representatives The elections will add flavor to what would be, in any event, a decisive time for law-making The two major parties will be jockeying for a favorable position with the voters, seeking to show the wisdom of their ways and the folly of the opposition

There will be ample opportunity for them to do this. When President Nixon gives his State of the Union message this week, he could save a lot of time by pulling out last year's speech. He outlined "six great goals" in 1971 and not one of the five requiring congressional action has yet been adopted.

In looking for expansion of the economy in 1971, the President was on his own because economic policy is determined largely at the federal level from the office of the president How Nixon has done on this score will be reflected, of course, in a multitude of congressional actions

Specific presidential objectives still remaining on the House and Senate agenda include revenue-sharing, welfare reform, executive reorganization, health insurance and environmental clean-up

Important decisions remain to be made in the area of foreign aid, national defense, agriculture, crime control, transportation, poverty and consumer protection. In the area of presidential goals, assuming Nixon does not change them this week, executive reorganization is the least likely to make it to final approval.

There isn't any question that the government is getting too big to handle but the problem remains of what to do about it. The reorganization suggested by Nixon would consolidate seven administrative departments into four superagencies with direct access to the White House

The difficulty is that no one seems sure whether that would be an improvement or not It might provide in theory a better system of control but it also could result in some operations being lost in a huge departmental network of bureaucracy.

And governmental reorganization has less glamor, probably, than any of the other issues facing the House and Senate. It is not the kind of thing that gets the voters very excited and that will be important this year in the legislative halls.

There is not much question that progress will be made in the other areas of presidential concern and perhaps final action taken. What the form of this action will be, however, is still subject to considerable debate.

Revenue-sharing, welfare reform, health insurance and environmental clean-up, despite the time they have been around, are still relatively new subjects About all we really know to date is that we have not done a very good job in any of those areas but we have not come up with answers of any universal appeal.

In welfare reform, health insurance and anti-poverty programs, the nation still grapples with the complexity of human nature and social influences still not fully understood The fundamental problems has been that you can do good things for people but it doesn't always turn out good

Also, the cost of meeting the needs of the disadvantaged members of our society has turned out to be far greater than anyone ever thought it might be. We wonder if, in the end, the answer might not prove to be the elimination of all social welfare programs and the establishment of a single guaranteed minimum wage for everyone.

Of this the citizens can be sure — the coming session of Congress will greatly affect the lives of all of us. There is hardly a facet of life that will not be touched either directly or indirectly in the coming months of legislative work in Washington.

Additionally, the posture of our nation in relation to the rest of the world will be cut and fitted at least a little differently than it is at the moment The coming months will be exciting and significant ones for all of us

Stanford Proceeds To Fire Professor

NEW YORK—Stanford University's long—and expensive—struggle to kick a revolutionary-radical off its faculty proves something many parents were beginning to fear was only an Establishment hangup.

That it just might be possible, after all, to fire a professor who finds it more exciting to incite student riots than to lecture on the subject he's hired to teach

Even if he has that long-hallowed academic protection called "tenure."

Even if his wife joins him at a press conference toting a carbine (she said it wasn't loaded) to symbolize the source of political power.

And even if he calls the decision to oust him a "witch hunt" and says he hopes it will ignite a violent reaction on campus.

Sounds like the plot of a cheap movie, doesn't it. But it's the latest episode in the sorry saga of H Bruce Franklin, associate professor of English and self-styled advocate of armed revolution He's supposed to be an expert on Herman Melville, but he seems more interested in Mao than Mobby Dick

Now, a facilty advisory board has found him guilty of inciting student occupation of a campus computer center last February and of encouraging them to resist a police order to get on about their business. (Like studying, maybe?)

This was just two months before a national survey suggested that one of the forces behind the explosive wave of college riots during 1969 was a scattering of radical professors who condoned violence and egged on revolutionary students.

Franklin says he wasn't doing any such thing; he was merely giving students at a nighttime rally a "broad radical analysis" of the situation.

The university didn't exactly rush into its verdict. It spent $37,000 to convert a classroom into a courtroom . . . hired ushers and court reporters . . . and spent five hours a day, six days a week, for six weeks collecting 4,200 pages of testimony from 100 witnesses.

Then, in true cliff-hanger style, it mulled over the evidence for two months before deciding the university could do without Franklin's educational contributions.

Franklin called it a "fascist" repudiation of his freedom of expression and said he hoped it would provoke a revolutionary protest from the students, adding that "whatever happens is not enough"

Something did happen, all right But not much

Some radical professors announced a fund-raising drive to pay for a civil court challenge of his dismissal. And a few campus supporters moved into the university chapel to spend the night (Praying for his reinstatement?)

Meanwhile, back at the administration building, President Richard W. Lyman backed the board's verdict and bumped it upstairs to the board of trustees, with a side comment about how it's almost unprecedented to fire a prof with tenure.

A visiting law professor ventured the opinion that "the eyes of many universities" will be focused on the trustees' decision. Let's hope a lot of radical professors are paying attention, too

Reconciliation Sought

President Ali Bhutto of Pakistan has made an extraordinary offer in hopes of reuniting what was the eastern part of his country and is now independent Bangladesh with the West. Bhutto said he would quit politics and turn over the government to Bangladesh Prime Minister Sheik Mujib Bahman if the new state would rejoin Pakistan

The offer has little chance of being accepted. Bhutto grabbed the reins of power too late in Pakistan to effect a reconciliation Mujib, who credits Bhutto with saving his life while he was a prisoner under sentence of death in West Pakistan, has nevertheless said that all ties between Bangladesh and Pakistan are forever broken. And he also accuses Pakistan of committing history's biggest mass murder in trying to suppress the independence movement. By his count, three million East Pakistanis died, and he wants former Pakistan President Yahya Khan, whom President Nixon admires, charged with genocide

Bhutto is a flamboyant politician who has the reputation of being gutty when the situation demands His latest offer may be judged a grandstand play because it will doubtless be rejected, but there still is something admirable about it. Bhutto is seeking unity whatever the personal cost

Another leftist leader, Chile's Marxist President Salvador Allende, is in trouble. His Popular Unity government suffered stunning setbacks in two special congressional elections over the weekend. Allende himself said the elections were "extraordinarily important" Anti-Marxist opposition united behind a single candidate in each of the elections. one for a Senate seat, the other for a seat in the Chamber of Deputies

Neither election changed the balance of parties in Chile's Congress, but the results were seen as a sharp rebuke to the policies of the Marxist chief executive. There has been a steady erosion in Allende's popularity and it was partly for that reason that Allende arranged for Fidel Castro's three-week trip to Chile last year.

Allende's government took power through a democratic, constitutional process. If the downward trend in popularity continues, it will be interesting to see if that government uses unconstitutional means to stay in power.

'Friendly' America Impresses

For history's sake, it should be noted that on Jan. 16, 1972, an important world leader said something nice about the United States

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt met with President Nixon over the holiday season and then stayed on in Florida for a two-week vacation Just returned home, Brandt Sunday reflected on his visit in an interview with the New York Times

"I sensed how much inner strength there is these United States" he said, "how much down-to-earth helpfulness and friendliness there are among the Americans themselves and toward strangers" This was different, he said, "from the picture of Americans one is given in Western Europe

Brandt said he was particularly impressed by the hospitality and friendliness extended to him and his family in Florida, by "how many Americans are working as volunteers" in hospitals, schools and other social institutions and, in contrast to European conditions, "how much more considerate Americans are in highway traffic, how considerate they are of others altogether"

The German leader said he has been in the United States "many times," but almost always on official business in the big cities. The Florida vacation was a "new experience" for him

Brandt's reactons should be comforting to the people of this country and we hope they gain wide exposure The US gets a black eye in Europe and elsewhere because everything that is bad here gets played up. This once, we're glad to see drugs, racism, crime poverty and aggression take a back seat Chancellor Brandt got out and saw some of the country and liked what he saw.

JAMES RESTON

Mystery Of 'Leaks' May Not Be Political; Copying Machine Appears To Be Culprit

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration is now trying to fathom a mystery Why, it wants to know are so many more government secrets now leaking to the press? Who is responsible for these breaches of security, and what is to be done about them? The FBI and the military intelligence services are now scrambling desperately for the answer

There are many theories. The political theory is that the federal civil servants, most of them appointed during the long executive domination of the Democratic party, are trying to embarrass the present Republican administration.

The philosophical theory is that the anti-war bureaucrats are handing over to the press any documents that might show the difference between what the President and his closest associates are saying in public and what they are saying in private And if you study the disclosures of the Pentagon Papers and the Anderson Papers, there is obviously something to these political and philosophical theories.

Nevertheless, the guess here is that the real explanation is not primarily political or philosophical, but scientific and technical The real source of the leaks is Chester Carlson, who invented the electrostatic copying or Xerox system, which now dominates the federal government and influences the flow of information in every other institution in the country

Every government department, agency, bureau, section, sub-section, secretary's office, assistant secretary's office, and secretary to the assistant secretary has a copying machine, or access to one, and copying, filing, and circulating has become a rule in Washington and even a disease

Washington is really run by intelligent women secretaries, who are constantly being asked by forgetful cabinet members, what about this and that, so they keep the records, and Xerox whatever they might forget.

The Xerox system is so simple that nobody in this town can do without it. Henry Kissinger has a meeting of the principal advisers to the President in the cabinet room of the White House to discuss what to do about the Indo-Pakistani crisis, and naturally, he wants a record of what is said, which is recorded by the official rapporteur, and then Xeroxed for the participants, and circulated so that everybody concerned knows what was said and what they are supposed to do about it

Switch now to the Xerox or copying room in the basement of the White House. The operator, unless he is policed, can punch 10, or 11, or 15 copies of the secret record, and circulate them as he likes. The possibilities of leaks are obvious

Every copy going to any authorized person in the Kissinger meeting on the Indo-Pakistani war can easily and quickly be Xeroxed and circulated to the "responsible persons" in his own department, passing through aides and secretaries, who have other Xerox machines, and while most of them merely pass the message along to its intended receiver, anybody along the line can intercept and duplicate the message and circulate it at will, or so it seems.

It would be hard to prove that the recent security leaks are the result of anti-Nixon, anti-war sentiments within the Civil Service or the foreign service of the United States. The tradition in both serves the President, no matter what he does, but once secrets are copied and circulated widely by Xerox, the elements of accident and disclosure are obviously far greater than ever in the past

Quick modern electrostatic copying has had a much greater influence on security and diplomacy than is generally realized The theory was that, if you could copy documents quickly, you could expanded knowledge, information and truth, and while there is a lot to be said for this, it has worked out in surprising ways

For example, ambassadors or foreign service officers of the United States abroad, who used to be able to send their dissents privately to the State Department or the president now have to calculate that their dissents will be copied and circulated in Washington, so they tend to be cautious

So maybe the mystery is not political or philosophical but merely technical. Paradoxically, the copying machines which were intended to expand informaton and truth are going in the opposite direction. The Xerox is not increasing security but diminishing it. It is not encouraging honest dissent, but blocking it

Beyond this, it is overwhelming officials here in paper work and keeping them from the definition and resolution of their main problems.

Unwarranted Tickets

Lincoln, Neb.

As one of the many volunteers for the recent Cerebral Palsy Telethon, we were appalled to discover after leaving East High School's parking lot at 2:00 a.m., Sunday morning, to see the Police Department had ticketed many of the cars parked on the campus.

How disgustingly legal can the Police Department become when hundreds of people are contributing their time, effort and money for such a worthwhile project, only to discover the police have nothing better to do than give you a ticket for it?

We feel that all those tickets should be voided or the money collected go directly into the Cerebral Palsy fund

In the past few months we have been hearing so much about the need for legislation for the farmers so that he, too, can bargain for a price like business people do.

Several congressmen got together and came up with a half dozen different bills Most of them have been drawn to the whims and desires of farm organizations

So now we have the Sisk Bill, and as far as I know, the Sat Bill and for what they amount to, they could just as well be known as the "Set and Sat Bills" Anyone who has read them knows there is absolutely no teeth in them, at all, so why the bills? Just another effort to keep the farmer confused — to make him believe that next year will be better — and we've been waiting for "next year" for the last 18 years.

What we in the NFO would like to know is, why do we need any legislation at the farm level, at all? Fifty years ago, the Cappers-Volstead Act was passed to give the farmer all the bargaining rights he needs as of now Have people forgotten that this is what NFO is operating under since its beginning in 1955? Legal in every respect, we have been and will continue to prove so in the courts.

It is also just because it puts the farmer in the same position as a businessman instead of approaching the processor as a beggar and asking, "What will it please you to give ME?"

Other farm organizations need new legislation because it is legally impossible for them to operate under the Cappers-Volstead Act. NFO is the only farm organization that is working for a price for farmers and only that To this end we are dedicated

Almost all other large farm organizations are in the buying and selling of farm products, in direct competition with farmers, and I don't care how many laws are passed — they can never work!

The Sisk Bill, for example, will consist of a presidentially appointed, three-member board, who will no doubt be corporation-controlled and vertical intergration-minded, and will know or care as much about farmers' needs for collective bargaining as does Secretary Butz

I think it's safe to say that 99 per cent of the farmers believe in God Then pick up the Holy Bible and read Matthew, Ch 6, Verse 24 or Luke 16:13. "No man can serve two masters, for either he will hate the one and love the other, or . . . etc"

Therefore, I just can't see how any bill can be passed for these farm organizations in which they hope to please both the buyer and the sellers. It is utterly impossible!

Only the NFO is trying to please the farmers.

Lincoln, Neb.

Amendment to the committee's rules so that vote in an executive session shall be public. Come now. The senator from the west can do better than that. He is always preparing amendments to the state constitution for people to vote on in an election year.

So let's make this one, no secrecy in government, "behind the people, in front of the people, no secrecy ever."

Not So New

Lincoln, Neb.

Speaking of legislative stupidity, as in The Star's January 13 editorial, I wish hired historians could tell our Legislature in what century and by what nation each proposed new law was enacted, found stupid and repealed

From ancient history we learn that no one ever learns
To keep his cotton-pickin' fingers off the stove that burns
Our current Legislature and our current Congress, too
Are pestered with requests to try some stunts described as new,
But many innovations seeming new beneath the sun
Were balance weighed and wanting found in ancient Babylon

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My little niece, 2 months old, died suddenly. We are heartbroken and shocked at the suddenness as she was a perfectly healthy, happy and beautiful baby. She was put to bed perfectly all right, no fever, cough or cold yet the next morning she was found dead. She had just had her complete baby checkup two days before. The fireman took her to the hospital. All they would say was that it was "bronchitis." How could this be?—Mrs. M.S.

These co-called "crib deaths" are a terrible shock In most cases the only explanation is that, in very small babies, infections can start with frightening abruptness, and they often attack the respiratory organs The windpipe is so tiny that infection and congestion can close it off very quickly—which is what evidently occurred in this tragic case Infection of the bronchial tubes ("bronchitis") was the answer Ways are being sought to prevent these 'crib deaths." But the solution is not yet apparent.

Note to R S: Climate may make an arthritis patient more comfortable, or less, but climate does not cause the diseases—not even the damp climate to which you refer.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter underwent a minor operation six weeks ago for a kidney infection, but she still has the infection and I cannot get a straight story from the doctor as to her present condition. I am thinking of asking him for a written report because in the past I have found that written reports by doctors are precise and to the point and, most of all, understandable. What do you think of my asking the doctor for a report summarizing his findings and recommendations?—E.J.E.

I see no objection to asking for a report and it will serve as a record if the trouble continues and she subsequently is treated by some other physician

Keep in mind, however, that kidney infections are likely to be stubborn and recurrent, and it is difficult to estimate how quickly the problem can be overcome

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write about polycythemia of the blood, cause and treatment. Why are the fingers affected?—D.J.N.

Polycythemia means an increase in the red blood cells—not as common as the opposite condition, a lack of sufficient red cells (anemia). But a not especially uncommon condition, either

There are two forms of polycythemia One is secondary to some other condition, such as chronic lung disease, congenital heart disease, blood vessel abnormalities, or obesity.

The other form is primary That is not caused by some other disease condition Then it is called polycythemia vera. (Its cause is not known.)

Anyway, with a greatly increased supply of red cells, parts of the body will have a dusky, congested appearance. That is the case with the fingers, and the nails may be dusky or dark The face usually has a ruddy hue Flushing of the skin and headache are common initial symptoms.

It is not unusual for the condition to be discovered incidental to examination or treatment for a heart attack, stroke or some other illness

Treatment, aside from correcting the underlying cause when there is one, is to reduce the red cell count. Sometimes this can be accomplished by the use of radioactive phosphorus, to suppress red cell formation. Another method is simply drawing off a certain amount of blood periodically.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After two weeks in the hospital, my lung condition was diagnosed as histoplasmosis. What is the cause of this, is it fatal, or what is the cure? — Mrs. J. M.

This is a fungus infection which can range from very minor to very severe (rare) Many people (we now know) encounter it think it is nothing more than an attack of flu and get over it readily In other instances, the fungus can attack other organs and the disease then can resemble a considerable number of widely divergent diseases ranging from anemia to tuberculosis, so it is virtually impossible to describe any particular pattern for the disease Most cases require no treatment

Note to Mrs A B · I simply don't know whether there is any danger in the toy you mention or whether the plastic can be toxic but it's only about a 10-cent phone call from where you live to the Food and Drug Administration branch office in the city Why not check with them?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why is a gain in weight quite commonly reported by those who have conquered the tobacco habit? My brother-in-law gained 20 pounds and said he feels that the only way to prevent a further gain would be to resume smoking. Are the taste buds the real culprits? — N. A. E.

This may be an oversimplification, although smoking does dull the sense of taste to some extent But the psychological explanation for such weight gain is that the person switches from one habit to another Instead of lighting up, he substitutes nibbling a piece of candy or whatever

Anyone who has the will power to stop smoking can stop snacking, too—if he is aware of the problem

Note to T Y Contrary to your friends' gloomy predictions, diverticulosis seldom will "turn into cancer"

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our 18-year-old niece has petit mal and is taking Dilantin and phenobarbital daily. She drinks at least two quarts of cola daily. We tell her this is bad for her, but she doesn't believe it. Will you please give your opinion? — Mrs. C. E.

Drinking two quarts of cola a day under the best of circumstances would be begging some kind of trouble.

In your niece's case, it is even more unadvisable since cola contains caffeine which should be avoided in petit mal, a convulsive condition. Caffeine is a stimulant.

I suggest you have your niece's doctor deliver a few discreet words of advice to the young girl at the earliest convenience.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Son's Vietnamese Widow Asks Financial Help, Share of Estate

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: "My wife and I are retired here in New Jersey, near our daughter who is very dear to us. Our only other child, Harry, was killed in Vietnam three years ago. He had a Vietnamese wife and two babies. She got her U.S. citizenship and last year moved to California. When they arrived we went out to see them, but didn't hit it off too well—maybe because her English was very poor. Last month we had a surprise visit from the girl who said she needed a little financial help and hoped her children would receive in our will whatever would have been Harry's. She was pleasant but matter of fact. She stayed only two hours and then took a plane back. Are we obligated to her?"

Answer: Maybe she's trying to get something for nothing. But maybe she's just a scared, unhappy widow who needs sympathy and understanding. Check with your lawyer. He'll likely confirm that legally you have no obligations. However, you will probably feel some concern for these grandchildren. Have your lawyer find out exactly how much government benefits they are receiving and whether this is sufficient for their well-being. Try to go to California and get to know the girl and babies better. They may prove lovable and deserving, and may add richly to your happiness.

Question: —"I'm a bachelor, 49. This may sound trivial but it annoys the devil out of me that everyone in my family calls me 'Uncle John'. It's okay for my assorted nieces and nephews to use this since I am their Uncle John. But why should my two brothers and three sisters call me this, too? And all their friends? It makes me feel peculiar—like a doddering old codger. Why can't they just call me John?"

Answer: —Unmarried middle-aged males traditionally get labeled "Uncle." It probably began centuries ago when folks felt sorry for unmarried males and assumed a cozy title signifying a definite relationship would make the individual feel less lonely and more a definite part of the family. Also, grownups tend to use designations which their children use. They hear the children use the term so much.

Question: — "I'm 68, shut in a good bit due to arthritis in both legs, and spend my days watching television. Now my doctor tells me I'll endanger my eyes unless I limit my TV watching to an hour a day. What am I expected to do—sit and stare at the four walls?"

Answer: What did shut-ins do before television? Learn to do things with your hands—try toymaking, leathercraft, woodworking, and weaving. Use your telephone in getting acquainted with every elder citizen in your community. Invite people to your home for visits. Get a phonograph and obtain "talking books" from your library. Chances are you'll get more kicks from these channels than you've been getting from the television variety.

Writes novelist E. M Forster: "I don't feel the least hostile to young people or bothered about them. I don't understand them, of course. But when I was young the elderly didn't understand me. It's a perfectly natural process."

Purse Snatcher Shoots Victim 3 Times For $6

Dallas (UPI) — Ida Walker, 43, went to St. Paul's Hospital to visit a sick relative.

As she was walking through the hospital parking lot toward her car after the visit, a man tried to grab her purse but Mrs. Walker jerked it back.

"Lady, I want that purse," the man said.

"No, I need my purse," Mrs. Walker said. "I have all my personal belongings in it and need it. If you get my purse, you are going to have to kill me."

The man then backed away, pulled out a gun and shot Mrs. Walker three times in the head, grabbed the purse and ran.

Mrs. Walker related the incident to police before she died. She said the purse contained $6.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

The dawn sea is mother-of-pearl. "Mobay" town is still asleep. The winter tourists are slugabed, dreaming calypso rhythms.

"Ahnd she say, 'Mahn, you
'ave de afflick-shun,
" 'I mus' give you de injeck-shun . . .' "

Montego Bay. Once Manteca Bay — they hunted wild pig for lard. Now the noon day sun takes the lard off the tame tourist.

The first sun comes over the hills, and sea turns deep painter's blue. The first breath of trade wind stirs the lacy flame tree.

The trade wind that carried the treasure fleets. Drake and Hawkins sailed on the wind to raid the Spanish Main. It carried Morgan to Panama. And the Spanish sails caught the wind when they left Jamaica to the English at Runaway Bay.

The Chinese are getting ready for the New Year. Jamaica Chinese. Doctors. Lawyers. Grocery keepers. Real estate owners. Buying Hong Kong firecrackers.

They have never seen the brown-sailed junks coming at sundown to the Typhoon Shelter. Smelled the winds blowing off the South China Sea.

They can speak the Jamaica English patois. Sing-song Cantonese they learned at home.

It is the Year of the Rat. A good year for thieves. A bad year for marriages. Maybe a good year for rats. I am a defender of the poor laboratory rat. A rat bugged by Science. In the interests of mankind.

I doubt it.

The calypso music comes at night to Miranda Hill, high above the lights of Montego Bay.

Four Jamaicans. A long drum played with the fingers. A homemade instrument—a box the player sits on and pushes little buttons that produce a bass. A guitar player who sings. A man on a banjo plucking a single note melody.

They speak patois to each other—you can't understand it. They seem to have some private joke going. Any questions sends them into soft giggles.

"Don't roll those bloodshot eyes at me,
"I knows you's been out on a spree . . ."

(Perhaps he's a zombie. The slave laborers that Haiti witch doctors raise from the dead at night and return to the grave at dawn.)

We asked him his name. He said shyly: "Wesley, sah." They all giggled softly. It must be an inside joke.

The morning wind blows through the sugar cane. Turns it in waves to gray, then to green again. The rippled blue sea is flashed with instant sun diamonds.

The two-foot cane knife—a machete in Latin America—is a "cutlass" in Jamaica. The cutlass is the weapon in many newspaper accounts.

Elmer, on trial for chopping up the brother of his girl friend, denies he was carrying the cutlass for that purpose.

"I was going to peel me orange, sah," he told the judge.

Malpractice Limitation Bill Delayed In Committee

By United Press International

The Legislature Judiciary Committee decided Monday more information was needed before it would act on a bill to impose a six-year absolute limit on malpractice suits.

The bill, LB1132, sponsored by Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice, would impose the six-year limit on the filing of any suit against physicians or any other professional person. Included would, for example, be attorneys and architects.

Lincoln attorney Flavel Wright, representing the State Medical Association, said the law now on the books is in effect "open ended" on time.

It does state a two-year limit, but the attorney said the courts have held the time doesn't begin running until the source of a possible suit has been discovered.

Iowa Case Cited

As a result of such interpretations, he said, citing an Iowa case as an example, it is possible to file suit 25 years after the fact.

He, along with association president Dr. Roger Mason of McCook, also told the committee such a limitation would tend to at least level off increasing malpractice insurance.

But Lincoln attorney James Bruckner, representing the Nebraska Association of Trial Attorneys, said the measure is an attempt by the medical profession to nullify peoples' rights.

He also said neither the profession nor the insurance industry has promised to cut rates if such a law is pased.

An argument in favor of a definite time limit, Bruckner said, has been that after a certain number of years nave passed no records are available for a defense.

Works Both Ways

However, he said, that works both ways and in a malpractice suit the person filing has to have some records on which to base his case.

If they are available for the filing, he said, then they are also available for the defense.

Figures Asked

He also said about 80% of the state now has open-ended laws similar to Nebraska's. Wright said he didn't think there were quite that many and the committee asked that the number be provided before it acts on the bill.

The committee advanced a bill, LB1162, which would allow acting municipal judges to step in and ease the court case load.

The committee also advanced a bill, LB1095, which would revise provisions in the state's alcohol control act passed by the Legislature last year.

The committee was told the bill would specifically provide for both breath and body fluid tests by enforcement officers. The law passed last year, said Ralph Nelson, attorney for the city of Lincoln, was "cloudy" on that issue.

Solons Set Debate On Power Suit

The Legislature Monday decided to spend Tuesday morning discussing a request by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff to have the state intervene in a pending lawsuit involving the construction of a nuclear power plant at Fort Calhoun.

The resolution would ask that the state intervene "in order that the public interest shall be fully protected."

Now in Douglas County District Court, the suit involves payment by the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) of about $7 million to Peter Kiewit Sons' Co., one of the plant's principal contractors.

The Tuesday debate was set after Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha suggested the resolution might affect a scheduled Jan. 20 sale of about $170 million in revenue bonds by OPPD.

Carpenter, however, disputed that contention and said he has been advised the resolution will not affect the bond sale.

He suggested that discussion of the resolution might take several hours since "this is one of the most important things this body will deliberate this session."

"In 40 years, this Legislature has never attempted to find out what these public power districts have been doing," Carpetner said. "What these districts have done represents a conspiracy against the people and I can prove it."

Legislature Airs Tax For Tourism

The Legislature gave some consideration Monday to a proposal which would apply a one per cent tax on hotel, motel and campground fees, but recessed without taking action.

The bill, Lincoln Sen. Roland Luedtke's LB650, contained the tax in its original form last session, but the provision was stripped by amendment. No final action had been taken on the bill, however, and it was carried over to the 1972 session.

Sen. Duke Snyder of Omaha attempted Monday to get the tax back into the bill. Under it, the money collected via the tax would go to the promotion of tourism.

"This is the guts of the bill," Snyder said, noting that it is a common practice in other states and that the burden of the tax would be born "primarily by the out-of-state visitor."

But several senators rose to dispute that contention, Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook saying that his information reveals that as much as 80% of the tax revenues would come from Nebraskans.

Luedtke agreed that conventioning businessmen would pay a large share of the tax money, but said that the tourism and convention promotion would ultimately aid Nebraska business anyway.

"If any group in this state would be willing to help, I would think it would be the businessmen," Luedtke said.

Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa, however, said that it would merely require a host of smaller Nebraska motel customers to "pay through the nose to aid businesses along the interstate."

Resolution 19, sponsored by Sens. Jerome Warner of Waverly and William Swanson of Lincoln, was approved 36-0.

Warner noted that the wheel taxes and registration fees "are as much a tax as property or sales taxes" and said citizens should get federal income tax credit for paying them.

The resolution had been introduced in the Unicameral last week.

Malpractice Limitation Bill Delayed In Committee

By United Press International

The Legislature Judiciary Committee decided Monday more information was needed before it would act on a bill to impose a six-year absolute limit on malpractice suits

The bill, LB1132, sponsored by Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice, would impose the six-year limit on the filing of any suit against physicians or any other professional person. Included would, for example, be attorneys and architects.

Lincoln attorney Flavel Wright, representing the State Medical Association, said the law now on the books is in effect "open ended" on time

It does state a two-year limit, but the attorney said the courts have held the time doesn't begin running until the source of a possible suit has been discovered

Iowa Case Cited

As a result of such interpretations he said, citing an Iowa case as an example it is possible to file suit 25 years after the fact

He, along with association president Dr Roger Mason of McCook, also told the committee such a limitation would tend to at least level off increasing malpractice insurance

But Lincoln attorney James Bruckner, representing the Nebraska Association of Trial Attorneys, said the measure is an attempt by the medical profession to nullify peoples' rights.

He also said neither the profession nor the insurance industry has promised to cut rates if such a law is pased

An argument in favor of a definite time limit, Bruckner said, has been that after a certain number of years have passed no records are available for a defense

Works Both Ways

However, he said, that works both ways and in a malpractice suit the person filing has to have some records on which to base his case

If they are available for the filing, he said, then they are also available for the defense.

"So lets not shoot him (the citizen) out of the saddle before he gets a chance to prove his case," Bruckner said

Figures Asked

He also said about 80% of the state now has open-ended laws similar to Nebraska's. Wright said he didn't think there were quite that many and the committee asked that the number be provided before it acts on the bill

The committee advanced a bill LB1162, which would allow acting municipal judges to step in and ease the court case load

The committee also advanced a bill, LB1095, which would revise provisions in the state's alcohol control act passed by the Legislature last year.

The committee was told the bill would specifically provide for both breath and body fluid tests by enforcement officers. The law passed last year, said Ralph Nelson, attorney for the city of Lincoln, was "cloudy" on that issue

Solons Set Debate On Power Suit

The Legislature Monday decided to spend Tuesday morning discussing a request by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff to have the state intervene in a pending lawsuit involving the construction of a nuclear power plant at Fort Calhoun

The resolution would ask that the state intervene "in order that the public interest shall be fully protected"

Now in Douglas County District Court, the suit involves payment by the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) of about $7 million to Peter Kiewit Sons' Co., one of the plant's principal contractors.

The Tuesday debate was set after Sen Glenn Goodrich of Omaha suggested the resolution might affect a scheduled Jan 20 sale of about $170 million in revenue bonds by OPPD

Carpenter, however disputed that contention and said he has been advised the resolution will not affect the bond sale

He suggested that discussion of the resolution might take several hours since "this is one of the most important things this body will deliberate this session."

"In 40 years, this Legislature has never attempted to find out what these public power districts have been doing," Carpenter said "What these districts have done represents a conspiracy against the people and I can prove it"

Legislature Airs Tax For Tourism

The Legislature gave some consideration Monday to a proposal which would apply a one per cent tax on hotel, motel and campground fees, but recessed without taking action

The bill, Lincoln Sen Roland Luedtke's LB650, contained the tax in its original form last session, but the provision was stripped by amendment. No final action had been taken on the bill, however, and it was carried over to the 1972 session.

Sen. Duke Snyder of Omaha attempted Monday to get the tax back into the bill. Under it, the money collected via the tax would go to the promotion of tourism.

"This is the guts of the bill," Snyder said, noting that it is a common practice in other states and that the burden of the tax would be born "primarily by the out-of-state visitor"

But several senators rose to dispute that contention, Sen Richard Lewis of Holbrook saying that his information reveals that as much as 80% of the tax revenues would come from Nebraskans.

Luedtke agreed that conventioning businessmen would pay a large share of the tax money, but said that the tourism and convention promotion would ultimately aid Nebraska business anyway.

"If any group in this state would be willing to help, I would think it would be the businessmen," Luedtke said.

Sen Herb Nore of Genoa, however, said that it would merely require a host of smaller Nebraska motel customers to "pay through the nose to aid businesses along the interstate."

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

The dawn sea is mother-of-pearl. "Mobay" town is still asleep. The winter tourists are slugabed, dreaming calypso rhythms.

"Ahnd she say, 'Mahn, you 'ave de afflick-shun,
" 'I mus' give you de injeck-shun . . .' "

The first sun comes over the hills, and sea turns deep painter's blue. The first breath of trade wind stirs the lacy flame tree.

The trade wind that carried the treasure fleets. Drake and Hawkins sailed on the wind to raid the Spanish Main. It carried Morgan to Panama. And the Spanish sails caught the wind when they left Jamaica to the English at Runaway Bay.

The Chinese are getting ready for the New Year. Jamaica Chinese. Doctors. Lawyers. Grocery keepers. Real estate owners. Buying Hong Kong firecrackers.

They have never seen the brown-sailed junks coming at sundown to the Typhoon Shelter. Smelled the winds blowing off the South China Sea.

It is the Year of the Rat. A good year for thieves. A bad year for marriages. Maybe a good year for rats. I am a defender of the poor laboratory rat. A rat bugged by Science. In the interests of mankind.

I doubt it.

Four Jamaicans. A long drum played with the fingers. A homemade instrument—a box the player sits on and pushes little buttons that produce a bass. A guitar player who sings. A man on a banjo plucking a single note melody.

They speak patois to each other—you can't understand it. They seem to have some private joke going. Any questions sends them into soft giggles.

"Don't roll those bloodshot eyes at me,
"I knows you's been out on a spree . . ."

(Perhaps he's a zombie. The slave laborers that Haiti witch doctors raise from the dead at night and return to the grave at dawn.)

We asked him his name. He said shyly: "Wesley, sah." They all giggled softly. It must be an inside joke.

The morning wind blows through the sugar cane. Turns it in waves to gray, then to green again. The rippled blue sea is flashed with instant sun diamonds.

The two-foot cane knife—a machete in Latin America—is a "cutlass" in Jamaica. The cutlass is the weapon in many newspaper accounts.

Elmer, on trial for chopping up the brother of his girl friend, denies he was carrying the cutlass for that purpose.

"I was going to peel me orange, sah," he told the judge.

Venereal Disease Incidence Rising In Lincoln

By LYNN ZERSCHOING
Star Staff Writer

A discouraging picture of the venereal disease (VD) increase in Lincoln, like that of the nation, is painted by County-City Health director Dr. George Underwood.

Dr. Underwood said in an interview that VD incidence is on the increase in the city and has approximately doubled within the past year.

He pointed out that the number of people in the city infected with VD is comparatively lower than in other large metropolitan cities, but added, "We're still pretty high."

Report Being Prepared

The 1971 report on VD incidence in the city will not be completed for several months Dr. Underwood said.

He added that preliminary investigation indicates that there are seasonal trends in VD incidence, increasing in early fall, following summer vacations, and during school and university vacation periods.

For every case of VD reported, from three to five others go unreported. He noted that the overwhelming number of VD cases reported in Lincoln are gonorrhea.

100 to 1 Ratio

"The ratio is about 100 to 1 — we see very little syphilis here," Dr. Underwood said.

He attributed the lower incidence of syphilis to the fact that the modern treatment for gonorrhea also cures syphilis. Penicillin is the chief antibiotic.

The health director attributed the rise of VD to "terrific ignorance and increasing use of birth control pills."

More Sexual Freedom

The use of birth control pills has resulted in more sexual freedom and has relieved women of the fear of pregnancy.

"It makes them feel safe," he said.

However, the "pill" does not prevent VD, as did the contraceptive device formerly used extensively by men There is a national push to return to this device as a method of birth control. Dr Underwood said.

"I don't think we can affect the sexual mores of individuals." he added

Vaccine Sought

Scientists are also working on a vaccine to provide immunity to gonorrhea, but so far there is no real break-through, he noted

Dr. Underwood said he feels the only way to eliminate the VD problem is through a comprehensive sex education program in the public schools.

However, at the present time there is no coordination between the Lincoln Public Schools and the Health Dept. dealing with both sex and drug education programs for high school youth. Under state law the Health Dept. can provide aid to schools only upon their request.

Dr. Underwood added that the education job would take a full generation.

"This is the only way to get sex education across, since the school have a captured audience," Dr. Underwood commented.

VD instruction should be one of the major aspects of the sex education program and "not those diagrams that show how the egg and sperm travel — that's essentially physiology," he said.

He added, "Kids talk about sex anyway — but they usually get a bum steer."

To provide more public information on VD the Health Dept., in conjunction with the State Department of Health, has been conducting two free clinics a week on Mondays and Fridays at the County-City Health Dept building. In addition, the State Health Dept. recently started another clinic, at 38th St. and Adams, to diagnose and treat VD. On the average about 15 to 18 people a week walk into the clinics held at the County-City Health Dept.

Major Setback

However, one of the major setbacks in getting teenagers to volunteer for VD treatment is the state law which requires doctors to report VD to parents of young people 16 years of age and younger

Attorney Gary Snowden, who represents the State Health Dept., said that if a youth is 16 and still dependent upon his or her parents, the law also requires the doctor to inform the parents.

Snowden noted that a proposed bill will be introduced in this session of the legislature which would abolish this requirement — thus making it easier for teenagers to seek treatment. Iowa recently passed a similar law.

Dr. Underwood noted that, because of the law, it is his department's policy not to treat 15 and 16-year-olds without the parents' knowledge and consent. This policy creates a problem.

"Kids aren't going to get mixed up with their parents on this and thus won't come in for help," he said.

This situation has forced the County-City Health Dept. to resort to court order to treat people believed to have contracted VD.

"We hate to do this. However, passage of the proposed law would help and we would be able to treat more VD cases," Dr. Underwood said.

He cited a case in which a 19-year-old youth had infected over a half dozen women and the Health Dept. had to track them down.

Confidential VD Care Measure Is Advanced

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Unicameral's Public Health and Welfare Committee Monday advanced a bill allowing minors to be treated for venereal disease without requiring notification of parents.

The bill, LB1096, passed on a 5 to 2 vote after a heated exchange between committee member Glenn Goodrich of Omaha and the bill's sponsor, Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln.

"It just really grabs me," Goodrich said, "when somebody starts stepping between me and my children."

Goodrich Rebuked

"Well, God bless Sen. Goodrich because he knows what his kids are doing all the time — even though you don't go on dates with them," Barnett answered.

"You have the attitude that 'I want to know 'cause I want to stop 'em!" he added.

The Lincoln lawmaker answered that the real question the bill raises is does society want to cure venereal disease or inform parents.

All those present at the hearing testified in favor of the bill.

A Lincoln minister, Rev. Don Bredthauer, related to the committee an incident involving a 16-year-old girl who came to him for help after contracting VD. Bredthauer said the girl had refused treatment out of fear of her parents' reaction if they found out. Currently, all VD-treatment of minors must be relayed to parents.

"How do you convince a 16-year-old girl," Bredthauer said, "that the effects of the disease are worse than the anger of her parents.

"Any law which puts human life in jeopardy is a bad law," he stated.

Smith Supports Bill

Support for the bill was also voiced by State Health Director Dr. Henry Smith.

Smith said early detection and treatment were essential due to venereal diseases' short incubation period and the fact that a delay can seriously jeopardize health and cause complications. Kansas, Smith noted, currently has a law similar to LB1096.

Another official from the Health Dept., Russell Murray who serves as director of communicable disease control, emphasized the gravity of the problem.

"Gonorrhea has been the most commonly reported communicable disease in the state for the last 5 years. Each month about 100 cases are reported involving youth between the ages of 15 and 19."

When asked if the bill would cause a decrease in VD's incidence, Murray said there would be an immediate increase due to treatment of reluctant cases but in the long run incidence should decrease.

4,500 Cases Reported

Currently, the cases of gonorrhea in Nebraska are increasing at the rate of "better than 1,000 per year," according to Murray. 4,500 cases were reported in 1971.

In other action, the committee advanced two other measures to general file.

On another 5 to 2 vote, a bill which would change the status of the Commission on Drug Abuse to the Commission on Drugs was passed.

The bill, LB1114, would take the commission from under the State Crime Commission and make it a full executive commission answering only to the Legislature and the governor.

Gale Oleson, chairman of the commission, said the change would eliminate the negative connotations drug users associate with the Crime Commission and the word "abuse" and, therefore, also would improve the commission's effectiveness.

LB1158 was also forwarded. This bill clairifies a water agreement between Omaha's Municipal Utilities District and the cities of Ralston, Papillion and La Vista.

3 Homestead Exemption Measures Introduced

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Two proposals to provide age and income qualifications for continuation of homestead tax exemptions were laid before the Legislature's Revenue Committee Monday for its consideration.

A third alternative — wiping out the entire tax exemption program — was also received by the committee and held for later action.

Homestead tax exemptions are now provided to all Nebraskans living in owner-occupied homes at the rate of 25% of the first $1,500 of actual value, or 20% of the first $4,000 of actual value.

In an amended version of LB1084, Sen. Terry Carpenter proposed altering the formula to provide an exemption on 50% of the first $10,000 of actual value only for persons 65 or older with a limited income.

In order to qualify, household income in terms of federal adjusted gross income (not including Social Security payments and certain pension payments) would need to be limited to $2,800 a year for a single person, $3,550 for a couple with one spouse 65 or older, and $4,300 for a couple both 65 or older.

That would direct the homestead exemption program to the people who need the most help, Carpenter said.

Desire Own Home

What older Nebraskans want most, he said, is to be able to afford to "live in a house they can call their own."

Sen. Orval Keyes of Springfield presented LB 1161, which would provide an exemption of 90% on the first $10,000 of actual value for persons 65 or older, or whose income is $7,500 a year or less.

"That would help people living on a fixed income," Keyes said.

Both the Carpenter and Keyes bills would leave undisturbed the current 90% homestead tax exemption for disabled veterans.

Sen. Willard Waldo of DeWitt urged repeal of the entire program through LB1133.

In its current limited form, Waldo said, "it is not of much benefit to anyone. It's a little dribble here, a little dribble there . . . not enough to really do much good."

It costs the state more than $6½ million a year and helps only homeowners at the expense of tenants, "who generally are the ones in the most need," Waldo said.

The Nebraska Homebuilders Association opposed all three bills, arguing that the homestead exemption should continue to be applied to all homeowners and thus encourage home ownership.

Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, who authored the homestead tax exemption act, suggested that it be raised to 20% of the first $8,000 of actual value, with special benefits for the aged.

A fourth bill given public hearing, LB1090, signed by Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell, would extend the federal income tax investment credit to the state income tax system.

Whitney said such a move would spur economic growth in the state, but State Tax Commissioner William Peters warned that the loss of revenue at the 7% federal rate could read $25 million a year.

Whitney said he intended to hold the state credit to 1%, but Peters also opposed that proposal which, he noted, would cost between $3 million and $4 million annually.

'DON'T EAT THE TROPHY'

Colossal Cattle Co. Wins Clean Sweep Of Events

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Denver — Colossal Cattle Co. Shalco Division at Minature made a clean sweep of the Angus sale show here Monday at the National Western Livestock Show.

The company won the championship and the first places in every age group which they had entered.

Nebraska ranchers picked off seven of the first 10 places in the pre-sale judging of Hereford bulls. The placings were made by the crowd observing the bull show.

The champion bull is owned by Eldon King of Kilgore and Ed Winters of Hemingford.

Adams Brothers of Kilgore had bulls in fourth and sixth place, Upstream Ranch of Taylor picked off the fifth and eighth place, and W. Everett Brown of Valentine collected seventh and ninth place.

The Shelco Division of Colossal at Minatare showed the junior Angus champion and the senior champion is owned by the S & W Ranch of Purdum, the Oleo Ranch of North Platte and Forest Toyne of Sedgwick, Colo.

Tom Deets of Kearney showed the Poland China barrow, and Frederick Adam of Wilcox showed the grand champion paint horse stallion.

Secretary of the Treasury John Connally has been dropped from the list of speakers at the American National Cattlemen's convention which begins Wednesday. Newsmen were told that Connally had to stay in Washington to help prepare President Nixon's State of the Union speach.

Earl Butz, secretary of agriculture, is still scheduled to address the cattlemen Thursday morning. Butz is expected to announce new Department of Agriculture policies affecting meat imports and to discuss several subjects of interest to livestock producers.

Tapering Off Now Reported In Influenza, Related Cases

Influenza and influenza-related cases appear to be tapering off in southeast Nebraska, according to a check with hospital authorities in the area Monday.

Dr. Henry D. Smith, State Department of Health director, said Monday there is sufficient similarity between flu cases in the state and the confirmed A2, or Hong Kong, Cmaha case to believe that the Hong Kong variety is present in Nebraska.

Dr. Smith said he had reported to the State Health Board that influenza had been encountered in the state for at least three-plus weeks. He said cases in Lincoln are waning. An increase in outstate cases was noted since the holidays, he added.

Peak Believed Reached

Meanwhile, at Hebron where a local physician attributed the death of a teenager to influenza,

Dr. R. E. Penry of Hebron said Monday he is still seeing lots of patients, a situation that has remained the same for the last four or five days.

He said more patients there are seeking medical advice in the early stages of flu since the sudden death last Friday of 14-year-old Kurt Albert McLaughlin of Hebron, which the physician attributed to an "Asian-like type of influenza."

Visitors Restricted

Hospital authorities at Hebron said there are about 10 flu patients there now and visitors are still being restricted.

At Fairbury, one of the first towns in the state to enforce a ban on visitors earlier this month, flu cases seem to be tapering off, a spokesman for the hospital said. There are about 10 cases hospitalized now, compared to 20 at the peak, it was reported.

A spokesman at St. Mary's Hospital in Nebraska City said 10 flu patients are being treated there with two admitted Monday. However, the peak seemed to have been reached there about two weeks ago with 20 or more flu patients treated at that time, the spokesman said.

No Flu Cases

The situation at Crete is reported subsiding now. In fact there are no flu cases at the hospital at the present time, a Crete hospital authority reported. Their heaviest flu patient load came early in December, he stated.

The ban on visitors has been relaxed at Beatrice Lutheran Hospital since the flu patient peak was reached there about a week ago, a spokesman revealed.

Both Seward Memorial Hospital at Seward and Nemaha County Hospital at Auburn continue to restrict visitors although flu cases at both places are reported dwindling.

Authorities at Mary Lanning Hospital in Hastings and at Community Hospital in Falls City reported only a few flu cases had been hospitalized in either of those cities.

Meanwhile, State Health Department officers await a report on the cause of death of a two-year-old Lincoln child earlier this month. Laboratory tests were requested after influenza was suspected as the cause of death. Health officials have declined to identify the child until the tests are complete.

Youths Fleeing Service Described As 'Patriots'

Omaha (AP) —Young men who left the United States to avoid military service "should be hailed as patriots," former U.S. Sen. Ernest Gruening of Alaska said Monday.

"They should not be condemned as slackers or draft dodgers," Gruening said in a news conference at Eppley Airfield here.

He was in the Omaha area for appearances of behalf of South Dakota Sen. George McGovern's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Gruening, 84, said McGovern is the one Democratic presidential aspirant who opposes extending the draft. He criticized Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota as late entries into the antiwar ranks.

Gruening said the draft resisters "refused to fight a thoroughly unjustified and obscene war and refused to lend their bodies and souls to an infamous war."

Gruening, one of two senators to vote against the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin resolution which was used as a legal basis for escalating the conflict, accused President Nixon of "lying to the American people just as Lyndon B. Johnson did."

The recent American bombings in Vietnam are "just further evidence President Nixon has been bamboozling the American people," the former senator said.

"As a matter of fact," said Gruening, "Nixon never had any intention of ending the war. In 1969, we were fighting in one country Vietnam. He Nixon extended the war to Laos and Cambodia."

He charged the President is the "jailer" of American prisoners in Vietnam, adding: "The prisoners will come out as soon as Nixon fulfills his campaign promise to end the war."

In an address at Thomas Jefferson High School in Council Bluffs, Iowa, Monday, Gruening charged that "we have the beginnings of a police state."

U.S. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell's request to wire tap without a court order, the no-knock law which would allow enforcement officers to enter a home without notice, and the military's snooping on private citizens are the first indications of a police state, he said.

State Farm Total Drops To 72,000

Washington (UPI) — The operating farms in Nebraska fell from 73,000 in 1970 to 72,000 last year, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced.

The USDA figures, projected into 1972, predict a drop of 1,000 more farms by the end of the year.

The state had 132,000 farms in 1951, but this number fell off sharply to 90,000 by 1961.

The USDA said more efficient operations created mergers of smaller farms into larger units.

Expansion of cities and highway construction caused loss of about 200,000 acres of land in the last 20 years.

Confidential VD Care Measure Is Advanced

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Unicameral's Public Health and Welfare Committee Monday advanced a bill allowing minors to be treated for venereal disease without requiring notification of parents.

The bill, LB1096, passed on a 5 to 2 vote after a heated exchange between committee member Glenn Goodrich of Omaha and the bill's sponsor, Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln.

"It just really grabs me," Goodrich said, "when somebody starts stepping between me and my children."

Goodrich Rebuked

"Well, God bless Sen. Goodrich because he knows what his kids are doing all the time — even though you don't go on dates with them," Barnett answered.

"You have the attitude that 'I want to know 'cause I want to stop 'em!" he added.

The Lincoln lawmaker answered that the real question the bill raises is does society want to cure venereal disease or inform parents.

All those present at the hearing testified in favor of the bill.

A Lincoln minister, Rev. Don Bredthauer, related to the committee an incident involving a 16-year-old girl who came to him for help after contracting VD. Bredthauer said the girl had refused treatment out of fear of her parents' reaction if they found out. Currently, all VD-treatment of minors must be relayed to parents.

"How do you convince a 16-year-old girl," Bredthauer said, "that the effects of the disease are worse than the anger of her parents.

"Any law which puts human life in jeopardy is a bad law," he stated.

Smith Supports Bill

Support for the bill was also voiced by State Health Director Dr. Henry Smith.

Smith said early detection and treatment were essential due to venereal diseases' short incubation period and the fact that a delay can seriously jeopardize health and cause complications. Kansas, Smith noted, currently has a law similar to LB1096.

Another official from the Health Dept., Russell Murray who serves as director of communicable disease control, emphasized the gravity of the problem.

"Gonorrhea has been the most commonly reported communicable disease in the state for the last 5 years. Each month about 100 cases are reported involving youth between the ages of 15 and 19."

When asked if the bill would cause a decrease in VD's incidence, Murray said there would be an immediate increase due to treatment of reluctant cases but in the long run incidence should decrease.

4,500 Cases Reported

Currently, the cases of gonorrhea in Nebraska are increasing at the rate of "better than 1,000 per year," according to Murray. 4,500 cases were reported in 1971.

In other action, the committee advanced two other measures to general file.

On another 5 to 2 vote, a bill which would change the status of the Commission on Drug Abuse to the Commission on Drugs was passed.

The bill, LB1114, would take the commission from under the State Crime Commission and make it a full executive commission answering only to the Legislature and the governor.

Gale Oleson, chairman of the commission, said the change would eliminate the negative connotations drug users associate with the Crime Commission and the word "abuse" and, therefore, also would improve the commission's effectiveness.

LB1158 was also forwarded. This bill clairifies a water agreement between Omaha's Municipal Utilities District and the cities of Ralston, Papillion and La Vista.

3 Homestead Exemption Measures Introduced

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Two proposals to provide age and income qualifications for continuation of homestead tax exemptions were laid before the Legislature's Revenue Committee Monday for its consideration.

A third alternative — wiping out the entire tax exemption program — was also received by the committee and held for later action.

Homestead tax exemptions are now provided to all Nebraskans living in owner-occupied homes at the rate of 25% of the first $1,500 of actual value, or 20% of the first $4,000 of actual value.

In an amended version of LB1084, Sen. Terry Carpenter proposed altering the formula to provide an exemption on 50% of the first $10,000 of actual value only for persons 65 or older with a limited income.

In order to qualify, household income in terms of federal adjusted gross income (not including Social Security payments and certain pension payments) would need to be limited to $2,800 a year for a single person, $3,550 for a couple with one spouse 65 or older, and $4,300 for a couple both 65 or older.

That would direct the homestead exemption program to the people who need the most help, Carpenter said.

Desire Own Home

What older Nebraskans want most, he said, is to be able to afford to "live in a house they can call their own."

Sen. Orval Keyes of Springfield presented LB 1161, which would provide an exemption of 90% on the first $10,000 of actual value for persons 65 or older, or whose income is $7,500 a year or less.

"That would help people living on a fixed income," Keyes said.

Both the Carpenter and Keyes bills would leave undisturbed the current 90% homestead tax exemption for disabled veterans.

Sen. Willard Waldo of DeWitt urged repeal of the entire program through LB1133.

In its current limited form, Waldo said, "it is not of much benefit to anyone. It's a little dribble here, a little dribble there . . . not enough to really do much good."

It costs the state more than $6½ million a year and helps only homeowners at the expense of tenants, "who generally are the ones in the most need," Waldo said.

The Nebraska Homebuilders Association opposed all three bills, arguing that the homestead exemption should continue to be applied to all homeowners and thus encourage home ownership.

Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, who authored the homestead tax exemption act, suggested that it be raised to 20% of the first $8,000 of actual value, with special benefits for the aged.

A fourth bill given public hearing, LB1090, signed by Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell, would extend the federal income tax investment credit to the state income tax system.

Whitney said such a move would spur economic growth in the state, but State Tax Commissioner William Peters warned that the loss of revenue at the 7% federal rate could read $25 million a year.

Whitney said he intended to hold the state credit to 1%, but Peters also opposed that proposal which, he noted, would cost between $3 million and $4 million annually.

Tapering Off Now Reported In Influenza, Related Cases

Influenza and influenza-related cases appear to be tapering off in southeast Nebraska, according to a check with hospital authorities in the area Monday.

Dr. Henry D. Smith, State Department of Health director, said Monday there is sufficient similarity between flu cases in the state and the confirmed A2, or Hong Kong, Omaha case to believe that the Hong Kong variety is present in Nebraska.

Dr. Smith said he had reported to the State Health Board that influenza had been encountered in the state for at least three-plus weeks. He said cases in Lincoln are waning. An increase in outstate cases was noted since the holidays, he added.

Peak Believed Reached

Meanwhile, at Hebron where a local physician attributed the death of a teenager to influenza,

Dr. R. E. Penry of Hebron said Monday he is still seeing lots of patients, a situation that has remained the same for the last four or five days.

He said more patients there are seeking medical advice in the early stages of flu since the sudden death last Friday of 14-year-old Kurt Albert McLaughlin of Hebron, which the physician attributed to an "Asian-like type of influenza."

Visitors Restricted

Hospital authorities at Hebron said there are about 10 flu patients there now and visitors are still being restricted.

At Fairbury, one of the first towns in the state to enforce a ban on visitors earlier this month, flu cases seem to be tapering off, a spokesman for the hospital said. There are about 10 cases hospitalized now, compared to 20 at the peak, it was reported.

A spokesman at St. Mary's Hospital in Nebraska City said 10 flu patients are being treated there with two admitted Monday. However, the peak seemed to have been reached there about two weeks ago with 20 or more flu patients treated at that time, the spokesman said.

No Flu Cases

The situation at Crete is reported subsiding now. In fact there are no flu cases at the hospital at the present time, a Crete hospital authority reported. Their heaviest flu patient load came early in December, he stated.

The ban on visitors has been relaxed at Beatrice Lutheran Hospital since the flu patient peak was reached there about a week ago, a spokesman revealed.

Both Seward Memorial Hospital at Seward and Nemaha County Hospital at Auburn continue to restrict visitors although flu cases at both places are reported dwindling.

Authorities at Mary Lanning Hospital in Hastings and at Community Hospital in Falls City reported only a few flu cases had been hospitalized in either of those cities.

Meanwhile, State Health Department officers await a report on the cause of death of a two-year-old Lincoln child earlier this month. Laboratory tests were requested after influenza was suspected as the cause of death. Health officials have declined to identify the child until the tests are complete.

He was in the Omaha area for appearances of behalf of South Dakota Sen. George McGovern's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Gruening, 84, said McGovern is the one Democratic presidential aspirant who opposes extending the draft. He criticized Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota as late entries into the antiwar ranks.

Gruening said the draft resisters "refused to fight a thoroughly unjustified and obscene war and refused to lend their bodies and souls to an infamous war."

Gruening, one of two senators to vote against the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin resolution which was used as a legal basis for escalating the conflict, accused President Nixon of "lying to the American people just as Lyndon B. Johnson did."

The recent American bombings in Vietnam are "just further evidence President Nixon has been bamboozling the American people," the former senator said.

"As a matter of fact," said Gruening, "Nixon never had any intention of ending the war. In 1969, we were fighting in one country Vietnam. He Nixon extended the war to Laos and Cambodia."

He charged the President is the "jailer" of American prisoners in Vietnam, adding: "The prisoners will come out as soon as Nixon fulfills his campaign promise to end the war."

In an address at Thomas Jefferson High School in Council Bluffs, Iowa, Monday, Gruening charged that "we have the beginnings of a police state."

U.S. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell's request to wire tap without a court order, the no-knock law which would allow enforcement officers to enter a home without notice, and the military's snooping on private citizens are the first indications of a police state, he said.

Venereal Disease Incidence Rising In Lincoln

By LYNN ZERSCHOING
Star Staff Writer

A discouraging picture of the venereal disease (VD) increase in Lincoln, like that of the nation, is painted by County-City Health director Dr. George Underwood.

Dr. Underwood said in an interview that VD incidence is on the increase in the city and has approximately doubled within the past year.

He pointed out that the number of people in the city infected with VD is comparatively lower than in other large metropolitan cities, but added, "We're still pretty high."

Report Being Prepared

The 1971 report on VD incidence in the city will not be completed for several months, Dr. Underwood said.

He added that preliminary investigation indicates that there are seasonal trends in VD incidence, increasing in early fall, following summer vacations, and during school and university vacation periods.

For every case of VD reported, from three to five others go unreported. He noted that the overwhelming number of VD cases reported in Lincoln are gonorrhea.

100 to 1 Ratio

"The ratio is about 100 to 1 — we see very little syphilis here," Dr. Underwood said.

He attributed the lower incidence of syphilis to the fact that the modern treatment for gonorrhea also cures syphilis. Penicillin is the chief antibiotic.

The health director attributed the rise of VD to "terrific ignorance and increasing use of birth control pills."

More Sexual Freedom

The use of birth control pills has resulted in more sexual freedom and has relieved women of the fear of pregnancy.

"It makes them feel safe," he said.

However, the "pill" does not prevent VD, as did the contraceptive device formerly used extensively by men. There is a national push to return to this device as a method of birth control, Dr. Underwood said.

"I don't think we can affect the sexual mores of individuals," he added.

Vaccine Sought

Scientists are also working on a vaccine to provide immunity to gonorrhea, but so far there is no real break-through, he noted.

Dr. Underwood said he feels the only way to eliminate the VD problem is through a comprehensive sex education program in the public schools.

However, at the present time there is no coordination between the Lincoln Public Schools and the Health Dept. dealing with both sex and drug education programs for high school youth. Under state law the Health Dept. can provide aid to schools only upon their request.

Dr. Underwood added that the education job would take a full generation.

"This is the only way to get sex education across, since the school have a captured audience," Dr. Underwood commented.

VD instruction should be one of the major aspects of the sex education program and "not those diagrams that show how the egg and sperm travel — that's essentially physiology," he said.

He added, "Kids talk about sex anyway — but they usually get a bum steer."

To provide more public information on VD the Health Dept., in conjunction with the State Department of Health, has been conducting two free clinics a week on Mondays and Fridays at the County-City Health Dept. building. In addition, the State Health Dept. recently started another clinic, at 38th St. and Adams, to diagnose and treat VD. On the average about 15 to 18 people a week walk into the clinics held at the County-City Health Dept.

Major Setback

However, one of the major setbacks in getting teenagers to volunteer for VD treatment is the state law which requires doctors to report VD to parents of young people 16 years of age and younger.

Attorney Gary Snowden, who represents the State Health Dept., said that if a youth is 16 and still dependent upon his or her parents, the law also requires the doctor to inform the parents.

Snowden noted that a proposed bill will be introduced in this session of the legislature which would abolish this requirement — thus making it easier for teenagers to seek treatment. Iowa recently passed a similar law.

Dr. Underwood noted that, because of the law, it is his department's policy not to treat 15 and 16-year-olds without the parents' knowledge and consent. This policy creates a problem.

"Kids aren't going to get mixed up with their parents on this and thus won't come in for help," he said.

This situation has forced the County-City Health Dept. to resort to court order to treat people believed to have contracted VD.

"We hate to do this. However, passage of the proposed law would help and we would be able to treat more VD cases," Dr. Underwood said.

He cited a case in which a 19-year-old youth had infected over a half dozen women and the Health Dept. had to track them down.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have definitely decided upon a divorce, but due to economic reasons, we are forced to live together for a few more months.

In the meantime he is carrying on a correspondence with some lady who is a "future prospect," and her letters come to the house. I, of course, read all the mail that comes here if I see it first. My husband says I have no business to open his mail. I say as long as we are living under one roof, I can read whatever comes here. What do you say?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I say your husband is right. Furthermore, there is a federal law which also says so.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't ask anyone else because they might think I was bragging.

My aunt died a few months ago and she left me her beautiful full length mink coat. It is just like new, fits me perfectly, and I feel like a queen in it.

Now the problem: My husband and I are in moderate circumstances, and he doesn't think I ought to wear it to church. He also doesn't want me to wear it around his place of business. He says I shouldn't wear it when I go out for dinner because it might get stolen if I leave it in a checkroom, and if I leave it on the back of my chair, it might look like I'm showing off.

I can't sell it because my uncle is still living and he gets pleasure out of seeing me wear it.

So what do you suggest?

THE LADY IN MINK

DEAR LADY: I suggest that if you were to wear it only when and where your husband thinks you should, it is going to be "good as new" for the next 10 years. If I were you, I'd wear it for all dress up occasions and quit worrying about what people "might" think.

DEAR ABBY: I lost (or somebody stole) my wallet. Fortunately it was right after Christmas so there wasn't much money in it. My driver's license and credit cards will have to be replaced, which will be a terrible inconvenience, but it's not fatal.

What cannot be replaced is something I had cut out of your column and had carried around for almost five years. It was a "confidential" to remind people who still had their mothers to thank them for all the things she taught them. Can you remember which one it was, and print it again?

A FAN IN AMSTERDAM, N.Y.

DEAR FAN, Was it, "Confidential to anyone for whom it is not yet too late: The gestation period of a mother's advice is anywhere from one week to 50 years. Losing one's mother before having thanked her for the many precious things she taught you is one of life's greatest tragedies"?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ENJOYS MIXED DOUBLES" in BEVERLY HILLS:

Are you talking about TENNIS or MARTINIS?

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
3 ♦	Dble	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ♥	Pass	5 NT
Pass	6 ♥	Pass	7 ♠

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

The steady overbidder eventually either becomes an expert card player or faces early bankruptcy. Not that South was way off base in this deal — in fact, all his bids were fully justified.

Having discovered that North had two aces and two kings from his Blackwood responses, South decided to go all the way in the hope that North might also have either a queen or some other hidden treasure that woul produce a thirteenth trick.

North didn't have the queen that South was hoping for, but he made the hand anyhow.

Declarer won the diamond lead and realized that West probably had seven diamonds for his opening bid. West was therefore likely to be short in hearts and clubs, and this in turn meant that East would probably have to guard both those suits as trumps were led — in which case a squeeze on hom might eventually develop.

Accordingly, South took five rounds of trumps, producing this position:

North
♥ A K 7

West
♦ Q J 10 7
♣ 10 4 3

East
♥ Q J 10
♣ Q J 9 2

South
♠ 9 8
♥ 6 5 2
♣ 8 7

When South now led still another spade, discarding a heart from dummy, East got squeezed. He could not part with a heart, for that would allow declarer to cash the A-K and win the last trick with the six of hearts.

So East discarded a club. This did him no good, either, because declarer cashed the A-K of clubs and ruffed the five to establish the six as the all-important thirteenth trick.

The spell of bitter cold temperatures has come and gone, hopefully not to return again this season. During those freezing hours and days, most social activity came to a standstill. There were however, certain occasions that could not be postponed whatever the weather. We here are referring to those special days that come up once each year, such as birthdays and anniversaries.

The Kimballcrest home of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Burns was the site of a birthday party held on Friday evening, Jan. 14. It may have been cold and windy outside, but all was warm and cozy in the Burns home as a group of their daughter's friends gathered to extend their warm wishes for another happy year.

The guest of honor was Miss Lorie Burns whose ninth birthday actually fell on Saturday, Jan. 15.

Among the guests who shared in the party fun and refreshments including pizza, ice cream and cake, were Andgela Bickford, Tammy Traudt, Lori Mehser, Sandra Ridgeway, Lisa Renner, Lorie's aunts, Sona and Su Lynn Burns; and her sister, Christy Burns.

Nine days earlier — on Wednesday, Jan. 5, to be exact — Miss Christy Burns was in the spotlight on the occasion of her 11th birthday — and the refreshment menu for the after-school celebration was the same, consisting of pizza, ice cream and cake.

But the guest list was not the same. This time the party guests included Christy's friends — in addition to her aunts, Sonya and Su Lynn Burns, and her sister, Lorie Burns. Joining in on the fun were Michelle Piranio, Tammie Duffek, Lori Allen, and Lisa Powell.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward Rack of Trendwood and their son, Mike, recently returned from a visiting vacation to the east.

The travelers' destination was Dr. Rack's hometown of Reading, Pa., where they were guests at the home of Dr. Rack's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Rack.

During their two-week stay, they also were entertained by Dr. Rack's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stoltz; and his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stoltz, and family, all of Reading.

On New Year's eve, the Racks were invited to a dinner and cocktail party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Joseph.

One of the highlights of the trip, particularly for five-year-old Mike, was the four-story-tall pagoda situated in the mountains. The pagoda, it seems, is visible from every part of the city, both day and night.

Many new baby things are filling the home of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Mendoza in Southbrook Summit in preparation for the homecoming of Mrs. Mendoza and the newest addition, Lorraine Kay Mendoza. Mr. and Mrs. Mendoza's daughter was born on Saturday, Jan. 15, and when she does arrive at home sometime this week, she will be greeted by her brother, Phillip Edward Mendoza, II.

Mrs. Mendoza is the former Linda Bindrum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bindrum, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mendoza are the paternal grandparents.

MISS PATRICIA BOTKIN

There will be interest in the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Patricia Botkin, daughter of Mrs. Joy Botkin, and the late Mr. Botkin, to Robert Engelbrecht, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Engelbrecht of Syracuse, which is announced this morning by the bride-elect's mother.

Miss Botkin is a former coed at the University of Nebraska.

Mr. Engelbrecht, who attended Kansas State University at Manhattan, Kan., and the University of Nebraska, now is engaged in farming.

TOWN TALK

Life goes on — but never quite as usual when January — or February — or even March are around. It might seem that January is a little out of character during this particular visit—bright blue weather one day, bright white ground covering another.

Now if January would develop more of a sturdy character when it comes to sunny skies and mild temperatures, we might get some of our transplants in Arizona and Florida to come home to stay. They, however, are dubious concerning January's generosity with sun and warmth.

* * *

Before long, we are told, there is to be quite an exodus to Europe — and to Spain and Portugal. But since we can't mention just who is definitely going where, we may as well skip the whole thing until homecoming time.

* * *

Weather, good or bad, has absolutely no influence when it comes to parties.

It was cold last Saturday evening, but the group of guests for which Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Watson were host and hostess at their home didn't mind. They had been invited to a "Le Bistro" party and the menu was French Onion soup and all of its accouterments — plus "mousse au chocolat"—the dessert which, naturally, was in keeping with the French atmosphere of the party.

* * *

There is a party next Saturday evening, too. This time it's a dinner dance, and the diners and dancers will be the members of the University of Nebraska-Nebraska Wesleyan University Dance Club. The festivities begin with a social hour at 7 o'clock—dinner is at 8 o'clock, and dancing begins at 9 o'clock.

And oh, by the way—the party is to be held at Hotel Lincoln.

Reservations for the affair are to be made by Wednesday, Jan. 19, with the dance club presidents, Dr. and Mrs. Joe Wampler and we'll save you time thumbing through the telephone book. The number is 466-7627.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have definitely decided upon a divorce, but due to economic reasons, we are forced to live together for a few more months.

In the meantime he is carrying on a correspondence with some lady who is a "future prospect," and her letters come to the house. I, of course, read all the mail that comes here if I see it first. My husband says I have no business to open his mail. I say as long as we are living under one roof, I can read whatever comes here. What do you say?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I say your husband is right. Furthermore, there is a federal law which also says so.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't ask anyone else because they might think I was bragging.

My aunt died a few months ago and she left me her beautiful full length mink coat. It is just like new, fits me perfectly, and I feel like a queen in it.

Now the problem: My husband and I are in moderate circumstances, and he doesn't think I ought to wear it to church. He also doesn't want me to wear it around his place of business. He says I shouldn't wear it when I go out for dinner because it might get stolen if I leave it in a checkroom, and if I leave it on the back of my chair, it might look like I'm showing off.

I can't sell it because my uncle is still living and he gets pleasure out of seeing me wear it.

So what do you suggest?

THE LADY IN MINK

DEAR LADY: I suggest that if you were to wear it only when and where your husband thinks you should, it is going to be "good as new" for the next 10 years. If I were you, I'd wear it for all dress up occasions and quit worrying about what people "might" think.

DEAR ABBY: I lost (or somebody stole) my wallet. Fortunately it was right after Christmas so there wasn't much money in it. My driver's license and credit cards will have to be replaced, which will be a terrible inconvenience, but it's not fatal.

What cannot be replaced is something I had cut out of your column and had carried around for almost five years. It was a "confidential" to remind people who still had their mothers to thank them for all the things she taught them. Can you remember which one it was, and print it again?

A FAN IN AMSTERDAM, N.Y.

DEAR FAN, Was it, "Confidential to anyone for whom it is not yet too late: The gestation period of a mother's advice is anywhere from one week to 50 years. Losing one's mother before having thanked her for the many precious things she taught you is one of life's greatest tragedies"?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ENJOYS MIXED DOUBLES" in BEVERLY HILLS:

Are you talking about TENNIS or MARTINIS?

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

The bidding:

Pass	6 ♥	Pass	7 ♠

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

The steady overbidder eventually either becomes an expert card player or faces early bankruptcy. Not that South was way off base in this deal — in fact, all his bids were fully justified.

Having discovered that North had two aces and two kings from his Blackwood responses, South decided to go all the way in the hope that North might also have either a queen or some other hidden treasure that woul produce a thirteenth trick.

North didn't have the queen that South was hoping for, but he made the hand anyhow.

Declarer won the diamond lead and realized that West probably had seven diamonds for his opening bid. West was therefore likely to be short in hearts and clubs, and this in turn meant that East would probably have to guard both those suits as trumps were led — in which case a squeeze on hom might eventually develop.

Accordingly, South took five rounds of trumps, pcoducing this position:

North

East

♣ QJ92

South

When South now led still another spade, discarding a heart from dummy, East got squeezed. He could not part with a heart, for that would allow declarer to cash the A-K and win the last trick with the six of hearts.

So East discarded a club. This did him no good, either, because declarer cashed the A-K of clubs and ruffed the five to establish the six as the all-important thirteenth trick.

Tuesday Meetings Planned

"Comets In The Sky" will be the topic of the program to be presented by Mrs. W. R. Van Horn at the Tuesday morning, Jan. 18, meeting of PEO Chapter GV.

The 10 o'clock program meeting will be preceded by a coffee at 9:30 o'clock.

The coffee and meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William Edgecomb, 2925 Calvert.

The members of Chapter DX, PEO, will be entertained at a salad luncheon on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 18.

Hostess for the 12:30 o'clock event will be Mrs. Vaulx Risser. Mrs. I. L. Hathaway, Mrs. Don Pieper, and Miss Helen Scott will be assisting hostesses.

The program will be presented by Mrs. Scott Bukey. Mrs. Bukey will review the book, "Tell Me A Story."

The program for the Tuesday morning, Jan. 18, meeting of PEO Chapter FW will be a travelogue of London presented by Mrs. James Porter.

The 1:15 o'clock meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. M. E. Hatfield. Mrs. R. A. Read will serve as assisting hostess.

Wholesome colored comics, feature stories with plenty of pictures and the big entertainment section are a few reasons why nearly everyone reads the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Beatrice Street Proposal Is Advanced

Southeast nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — A proposed $370,000 improvement of East Court Street gained second-round approval Monday night and appeared headed for City Council passage at its next meeting.

There were no negative votes after the possibility of using federal funds was examined and rejected. Board of Public Works Chairman George Schmucker said it appeared that a federal allocation would result in greater expenditures and that the city "would lose a measure of control."

A letter on this possibility from the State Roads Department indicated that a federal project would probably mean the removal of all parking from the street.

Three abutting property owners indicated their support of the improvement but urged that the city as a whole pay a greater share than has been projected. Noting that the estimated assessment to individual property owners is $5 per front foot, Bill Johnson said this is disproportionate to the "$1 to $1.50 which has generally been assessed on other major arterials."

"This is the fourth repaving of thisroute in two generations," said Johnson. "It seems this council should have the courage to tap the general fund for more."

Councilman S. H. Shick said, however, that the measure already calls for 80 to 85% of the project as a general obligation. Mayor Bob Sargent also defended the project.

Joining Johnson were Clarence Hollman and George Fulton, both claiming that the improvement is "too heavy a burden" to property owners. Fulton said it would fall particularly hard on several elderly widows within the area.

Known as repaving district 52, the proposal calls for an asphalt overlay between 7th and 19th streets and a widening of a portion of the segment.

On another matter, the council voted to reopen the Youth Center in the City auditorium basement. A recent meeeting with the Mayor's Advisory Council resulted in an agreement which was ratified Monday night.

Steve Winter appeared before the council and said he and six other adult sponsors will supervise the center. It is to be open nightly and on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

The center was closed recently when it was discovered it was being operated without supervision.

The council briefly discussed one and six-year street plans for presentation at a public hearing Febr. 7. The one-year plan calls for $89,000 in improvements to eight segments.

The council also:

FROM FOUR FIRMS ON REE chief for recommendation Apparent low was by Lenlz Motors for ambler Ambassadors, $10,770

—discussed maintesance problems of Memorial Drive but took no action after Schmucker said its location in flood plain makes any resurfacing impractical

Civil Defense Coordinators Attend Three-Day Seminar

Nearly 30 county and city Civil Defense coordinators are participating in a three-day seminar and workshop which opened Monday in Lincoln.

Local coordinators are being briefed by state and federal officials on changes in the Civil Defense (CD) structure to play a greater assistance role in the event of natural or man-caused disasters.

Robert Prentiss, state CD information officer, said the organization's traditional role in the event of nuclear attack is not being abandoned, but is evolving into a new concept of readiness and capability to assist in natural or man-made disasters such as blizzards, flooding, tornadoes and explosions

In addition to briefings and workshops, Prentiss said the conferees will participate Tuesday in a simulated natural disaster training exercise involving widespread destruction from a tornado.

Prentiss said observers from North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas are attending the Nebraska conference because similar seminars are planned later in those states.

Parolee Dies In Denver of Head Wound

Denver (UPI) — A Nebraska State Penitentiary parolee died Sunday at Denver General Hospital of a gunshot wound to the head.

Police said the victim, Willie Nicolson, 35, had been living in Denver since his release from the prison at Lincoln.

Police were holding William Pruitt, 34, Denver, in connection with the shooting. Investigators said Nicolson shot Pruitt in the left hip last year, an incident which led to Nicolson being sent to the Nebraska prison.

Sister Paschala Elected Head Of Board Of Health

The acting chairman of the State Board of Health was unanimously selected as the Board's new chairman replacing the Rev Elwin Bergstraesser of Blair

Sister Paschala Noonan of McCook is believed to be the board's first female chairman. Dr. William Higgins of Lincoln was also elected to the post of vice-chairman.

In other action, the board went on record against LB1286 which would create a separate advisory council on cancer. Board members indicated an already existing over-abundance of such advisory groups.

Food Industry Report Issued In Nebraska

The State Department of Economic Development has released a comprehensive report on the food processing industry in Nebraska.

Research Director Ron Mertens described the report as one in a series of inventories and feasibility studies published by the division. The report is an inventory of resources in Nebraska which are available to the food processing industry.

Jerry Bahr, research analyst who supervised work on the study, said one of the conclusions drawn from the study was that Nebraska is presently producing a wide variety of raw materials at a record level.

"We further concluded that Nebraska's potential in agricultural production is far in excess of current production," he said. "The statistics also show that Nebraska's labor force is highly productive, that Nebraska has a high quality water supply and that the central location of the state allows ready access to manufacturing markets across the U.S. and overseas, and a large consumer market."

Bahr said the book has been distributed already to chambers of commerce and development groups in the state, and it will also be distributed to food processors, farmers and agri-businessmen

Nebraska EOC Meet Wednesday

The Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday, director Reid Devoe announced Monday.

Devoe said the meeting will be held at the commission's offices, located at 233 S. 14th St. in the capital city.

Havelock Businessman Files For Lancaster County Commissioner

James Studnicka of 6837 Ballard said in filing that the "obvious dissension between the members of the county board and its general lack of cooperation has prompted me to file for candidacy."

Studnicka is the first person

James Studnicka

to file for the post now held by Democrat William Grossman — the only commissioner post up for election this year.

Studnicka said he is running on the "premise of cooperation not only with other county commissioners but also with city and state governmental officials as well as for economy and efficiency in county government."

A third of the county budget now goes for administrative expenses, Studnicka said noting that "through increased consolidation these unnecessary expenditures could be pared and the money rechanneled to those areas where it is so desperately needed."

A native Lincolnite, Studnicka is graduate of the University of Nebraska, taught at Pius X High School in 1963 and was a department store manager in Cheyenne, Wyo. from 1965 to 1969.

Studnicka is currently president of the Havelock Businessmen's Assn. and a member of the Lincoln Zoning Appeals Board.

JudgeDenney Rules Against Hide Away

Omaha (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Robert V. Denney ruled Monday that topless dancing at the Hide Away Lounge is not a form of "expression" protected by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Denney thus refused to prevent the city from enforcing its revocation of the lounge's liquor license.

"No substantial federal question" was involved, Denney's ruling said.

The City Council revoked the Hide Away license last month after Frank C. Paladino 3rd, lounge operator, challenged a city ordinance by having topless dancing at the lounge.

Last week, attorney Walter Matejka, representing the lounge, asked the federal court temporarily to reopen the lounge, pending a Douglas County District Court appeal of the city closing.

Law Not Valid

Montpelier, Vt. (UPI) — The State Supreme Court Friday declared the state's 125-year-old abortion statute unconstitutional.

When are you going to start salting away some of your good intentions?

Everybody wants to save money. Unfortunately, most of us seem to have a rough time actually doing it. We start, then we stop. The money never piles up.

The Payroll Savings Plan is the easy way to start saving; the painless way to keep saving. Your money gets a chance to pile up because the amount you specify is automatically set aside from your paycheck and used to buy U. S. Savings Bonds.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U. S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year).

That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970. . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

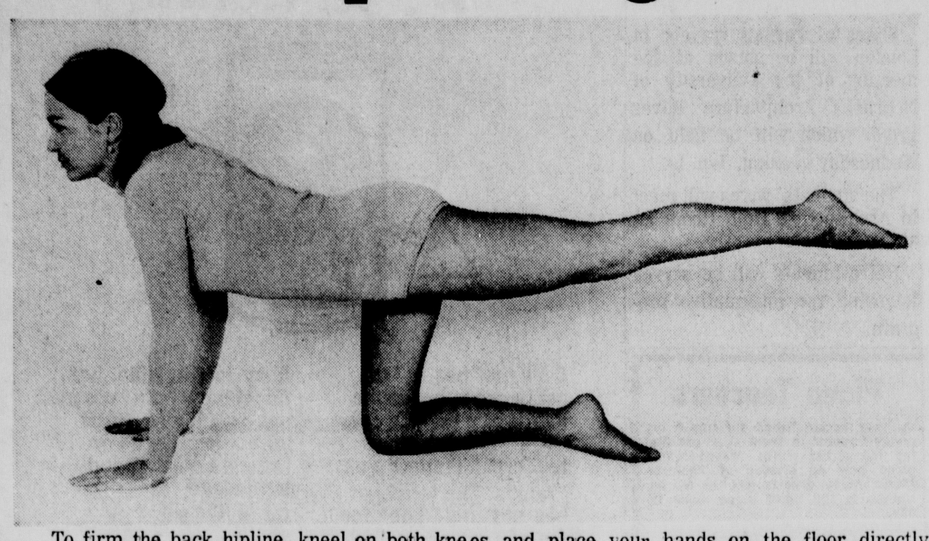
Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's a great way to make today's good intentions pay off tomorrow.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

The U.S. Government does not pay for this advertisement. It is presented as a public service in cooperation with The Department of the Treasury and The Advertising Council.

Beauty Program



To firm the back hipline, kneel on both knees and place your hands on the floor directly under your shoulders. Bend your left knee up toward your abdomen. Straighten your left leg backward to make a straight line from your toe to your head. Return to position and do the same thing with your right leg. Continue, alternating left and right.

Josephine Lowman

Remember how it seemed forever from one Christmas to another when you were a child? Now the weeks go by so rapidly that it makes us dizzy and they turn into a month before a woman can say, "I've lost 10 pounds," that is, unless she is determined.

For those of you who are just checking in, this is the seventh day of my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan (Bip). Thousands and thousands of women are following this course to see how much they can improve their appearance in that length of time. Most of them wish to lose from 15 to 20 pounds during the next eight weeks and they will, beautifully!

I think when and how often you weigh and measure yourself are important factors in success. People differ psychologically. Weighing only once a week is best for some because you do not lose pounds every day. Several days may pass before the scales show a loss of two or three pounds. If you are easily discouraged, weigh once a week.

On the other hand many readers and pupils have told me that they never succeeded until they weighed and recorded their weight every day. On my wall chart you can see your weight line go up or down. The advantage of this plan is that a gain of several pounds cannot slip up on you. Then too, some women need the help of a visual impact. Do whatever is most encouraging for you. Another way to keep the pressure on is to have a member of your family weigh you, preferably your husband.

Weigh the first thing in the morning after going to the bathroom and before dressing. If you do not weigh at home be sure to use the same scales and wear the same clothes each time.

You can measure every day if you wish but do not expect encouraging results for about two weeks.

Beatrice Street Proposal Is Advanced

Southeast nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — A proposed $370,000 improvement of East Court Street gained second-round approval Monday night and appeared headed for City Council passage at its next meeting.

There were no negative votes after the possibility of using federal funds was examined and rejected. Board of Public Works Chairman George Schmucker said it appeared that a federal allocation would result in greater expenditures and that the city "would lose a measure of control."

A letter on this possibility from the State Roads Department indicated that a federal project would probably mean the removal of all parking from the street.

Three abutting property owners indicated their support of the improvement but urged that the city as a whole pay a greater share than has been projected. Noting that the estimated assessment to individual property owners is $5 per front foot, Bill Johnson said this is disproportionate to the "$1 to $1.50 which has generally been assessed on other major arterials."

"This is the fourth repaving of thisroute in two generations," said Johnson. "It seems this council should have the courage to tap the general fund for more."

Councilman S. H. Shick said, however, that the measure already calls for 80 to 85% of the project as a general obligation. Mayor Bob Sargent also defended the project.

Joining Johnson were Clarence Hollman and George Fulton, both claiming that the improvement is "too heavy a burden" to property owners. Fulton said it would fall particularly hard on several elderly widows within the area.

Known as repaving district 52, the proposal calls for an asphalt overlay between 7th and 19th streets and a widening of a portion of the segment.

On another matter, the council voted to reopen the Youth Center in the City auditorium basement. A recent meeeting with the Mayor's Advisory Council resulted in an agreement which was ratified Monday night.

Steve Winter appeared before the council and said he and six other adult sponsors will supervise the center. It is to be open nightly and on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

The center was closed recently when it was discovered it was being operated without supervision.

The council briefly discussed one and six-year street plans for presentation at a public hearing Febr. 7. The one-year plan calls for $89,000 in improvements to eight segments.

The council also:

FROM FOUR FIRMS ON REE chief for recommendation. Apparent low was by Lentz Motors for ambler Ambassadors, $10,770.

Civil Defense Coordinators Attend Three-Day Seminar

Nearly 30 county and city Civil Defense coordinators are participating in a three-day seminar and workshop which opened Monday in Lincoln.

Local coordinators are being briefed by state and federal officials on changes in the Civil Defense (CD) structure to play a greater assistance role in the event of natural or man-caused disasters.

Robert Prentiss, state CD information officer, said the organization's traditional role in the event of nuclear attack is not being abandoned, but is evolving into a new concept of readiness and capability to assist in natural or man-made disasters such as blizzards, flooding, tornadoes and explosions.

In addition to briefings and workshops, Prentiss said the conferees will participate Tuesday in a simulated natural disaster training exercise involving widespread destruction from a tornado.

Prentiss said observers from North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas are attending the Nebraska conference because similar seminars are planned later in those states.

Parolee Dies In Denver of Head Wound

Denver (UPI) — A Nebraska State Penitentiary parolee died Sunday at Denver General Hospital of a gunshot wound to the head.

Police said the victim, Willie Nicolson, 35, had been living in Denver since his release from the prison at Lincoln.

Police were holding William Pruitt, 34, Denver, in connection with the shooting. Investigators said Nicolson shot Pruitt in the left hip last year, an incident which led to Nicolson being sent to the Nebraska prison.

Sister Paschala Elected Head Of Board Of Health

The acting chairman of the State Board of Health was unanimously selected as the Board's new chairman replacing the Rev. Elwin Bergstraesser of Blair.

Sister Paschala Noonan of McCook is believed to be the board's first female chairman. Dr. William Higgins of Lincoln was also elected to the post of vice-chairman.

In other action, the board went on record against LB1286 which would create a separate advisory council on cancer. Board members indicated an already existing over-abundance of such advisory groups.

Food Industry Report Issued In Nebraska

The State Department of Economic Development has released a comprehensive report on the food processing industry in Nebraska.

Research Director Ron Mertens described the report as one in a series of inventories and feasibility studies published by the division. The report is an inventory of resources in Nebraska which are available to the food processing industry.

Jerry Bahr, research analyst who supervised work on the study, said one of the conclusions drawn from the study was that Nebraska is presently producing a wide variety of raw materials at a record level.

"We further concluded that Nebraska's potential in agricultural production is far in excess of current production," he said. "The statistics also show that Nebraska's labor force is highly productive, that Nebraska has a high quality water supply and that the central location of the state allows ready access to manufacturing markets across the U.S. and overseas, and a large consumer market."

Bahr said the book has been distributed already to chambers of commerce and development groups in the state, and it will also be distributed to food processors, farmers and agribusinessmen.

Havelock Businessman Files For Lancaster County Commissioner

James Studnicka of 6837 Ballard said in filing that the "obvious dissension between the members of the county board and its general lack of cooperation has prompted me to file for candidacy."

Studnicka is the first person

to file for the post now held by Democrat William Grossman — the only commissioner post up for election this year.

Studnicka said he is running on the "premise of cooperation not only with other county commissioners but also with city and state governmental officials as well as for economy and efficiency in county government."

A third of the county budget now goes for administrative expenses, Studnicka said, noting that "through increased consolidation these unnecessary expenditures could be pared and the money rechanneled to those areas where it is so desperately needed."

A native Lincolnite, Studnicka is graduate of the University of Nebraska, taught at Pius X High School in 1963 and was a department store manager in Cheyenne, Wyo., from 1965 to 1969.

Studnicka is currently president of the Havelock Businessmen's Assn. and a member of the Lincoln Zoning Appeals Board.

JudgeDenney Rules Against Hide Away

Denney thus refused to prevent the city from enforcing its revocation of the lounge's liquor license.

"No substantial federal question" was involved, Denney's ruling said.

The City Council revoked the Hide Away license last month after Frank C. Paladino 3rd, lounge operator, challenged a city ordinance by having topless dancing at the lounge.

Last week, attorney Walter Matejka, representing the lounge, asked the federal court temporarily to reopen the lounge, pending a Douglas County District Court appeal of the city closing.

'ONE MORE YEAR—BUT THAT'S IT'

. . . Devaney Cites Ordinary Fans, Recruiting Commitments In Decision

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney had a telegram and a phone call from Gov. J J. Exon and he had a conversation with NU Chancellor D. B. Varner after indicating last week he was thinking of stepping down as the Husker football boss.

But in announcing Monday that he would remain at the Husker helm for one more year before retiring to become a full-time athletic director Devaney said the ordinary football fan had as much to do with his decision as anyone.

In his opening remarks before a full-house noon news conference in NU sports information director Don Bryant's office, Devaney had said, "Since indicating that I was considering retirement, I have had quite a few requests to remain as head football coach at Nebraska."

Asked to name some of the people making such a request, Devaney gave primary credit to the average fan.

"I had a lot of letters from the ordinary football fan which probably was the most important," he pointed out. "I talked to Chancellor Varner and to Gov. Exon and they both said they would respect my wishes, either way. I appreciated that."

But the nation's most successful coach with a record of 127 wins, 28 losses and six ties for a winning percentage of .819 in 15 years emphasized that 1972 would be his last

"Next fall will be it — win, lose or draw — but we are certainly planning on it being 'win'," Devaney asserted. "And if I get to thinking next year about continuing, I hope you remind me of what I said."

In an obvious move to provide a smooth transition when he steps down as the head football coach, Devaney Monday named Tom Osborne, a member of his staff since he came to Nebraska in 1962, as assistant head coach, a title no one has ever held in the Devaney set-up.

Devaney kept the couple of dozen writers, sportscasters and photographers waiting for nearly 15 minutes past the 12 o'clock time for which the press conference was scheduled.

"After two weeks of serious thought, I have arrived at an answer," he began. "I'm not sure it's the right one, but with one more year on my contract, I have decided to fulfill that contract."

The announcement sent radiomen and wire service reporters scurrying for telephones.

"I will remain through 1972, but that definitely will be it," Devaney added. "And it will not depend on what kind of season we have. After 1972, I hope I will be able to remain as athletic director."

The coach, who has won 92 games while losing only 13 and tying one in 10 years at Nebraska, said there were several factors involved in his decision

"One of the factors was that I had made commitments to some of the players when we were recruiting them," he pointed out. "Another factor was the challenge of trying to win another national championship.

"That we can win a third straight national championship is improbable, but not impossible No one has ever done that, but I'd like to be a part of trying to accomplish it."

Asked if he might consider leaving Nebraska for something higher up, Devaney asked the inquisitor, "What do you mean by higher up?"

When the questioner explained that he was referring to pro football, the Husker coach allowed. "I don't consider the pros higher up.

"I have considered the pros, but I have no ambitions to go into pro football. However, if someone made me a good enough offer, I would listen, at least"

In naming Osborne as assistant head coach, Devaney said he would recommend when he steps down that Osborne be named head coach

"All I can say is that I'll recommend him," Devaney asserted. "The naming of a coach is up to the Board of Regents, the chancellor and the president.

"I haven't discussed it with the Regents I have discussed it with Chancellor Varner and with the faculty committee on athletics"

Devaney also emphasized that his naming of Osborne to the position of assistant head coach would not change either his duties or the duties of his assistants as far as the coaching of the football team is concerned.

"I will still be the head coach," he noted, "And we'll operate the same as we've been operating. There's no reason to change a successful format.

"But I have made numerous commitments for clinics and banquets that will keep me busy during this important recruiting season and Tom will be making some decisions on recruiting that I normally would make."

Sports Editor, The Star

Primarily, It's Ironic

Some have called it a tragedy Some have called it a shame Some, whose vocabulary isn't large enough to include those two words, have called it other things that can't be printed in a family newspaper

We can recall nothing in our 10 years at the No 1 sports desk at this newspaper that has brought more telephone calls, both in number and in degree of outrage, than last week's announcement out of Hollywood, Fla., brought.

But we would not put the fact that Bob Devaney was again shunned by his fellow coaches in the Coach of The Year balloting in the tragedy class Nor would we classify it in the obscene category in which some chose to do

We might put it in the shame category

But we really think it belongs in a category stamped "Ironic"

The thing that makes it ironic is the reason Bob Devaney was not named Coach of The Year in 1971 And the reason he was not named Coach of The Year in 1970

Calling The Game Off Early

The thing that makes it ironic is that they called the game off with time still left on the clock

Some of Bob Devaney's greatest triumphs as Nebrasks's head football coach came in the closing minutes of the game, triumphs he could never have enjoyed had the officials blown the whistle with five or even with three minutes remaining and said, "That's all, the game's over"

Had the officials done that a year ago in the Orange Bowl, Nebraska wouldn't have beaten LSU and thus would never have won that first national championship in the school's history

Had they done it in this year's Oklahoma game, the Huskers unbeaten string would have ended and they'd have had no further chance to win a second national championship

And you can pick out other games of slightly lesser importance in his NU coaching career that would have wound up with him explaining why the Huskers lost rather than telling writers in those post-game sessions why they had won.

The North Carolina State game of 1962, the Minnesota game of 1961, the Colorado game of 1956, and the Kansas game of 1969 all went into the Husker victory column because those games were scheduled for 60 minutes and officials let them go for 60 minutes

Coaches Blew Early Whistle

The explanation as to why Bob Devaney was not named Coach of The Year in either 1970 or 1971 is a very simple one.

The American Football Coaches Association simply blew the whistle ending the ball game before the entire 60 minutes had been played.

No one, not even Bear Bryant's mother, Charlie McClendon's wife or Darrell Royal's uncle, would argue about Bob Devaney's deserving the honor the past two years after his coaching triumphs in the Orange Bowl that gave Nebraska a national championship both years

But the coaches took their vote with time still showing on the clock. They voted in late November or early December.

None of those coaches who voted would agree that the Nebraska-Oklahoma game should have been called off with the Sooners leading by 31-28 or that the Nebraska-LSU Orange Bowl game a year ago should have been called with LSU leading 12-10.

Yet that's exactly what they've done the past two years in their Coach of The Year poll — they've voted with time left on the scoreboard clock

Wouldn't it have been just as tragic, or those who want to use that word, or just as shameful had the coaches voted Bob Devaney Coach of The Year, then had Alabama's Bear Bryant win the Orange Bowl?

At the time they voted, they had no idea which team uld win in the Orange Bowl.

The tragic thing is not that Bob Devaney was not named Coach of The Year The tragic thing is that the coaches continue to insist on taking the vote before the game is over

Decision Pleases Players

. . . OSBORNE TERMED GOOD CHOICE AS SUCCESSOR

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Future Cornhusker football players were as unanimous in their pleasure that coach Bob Devaney will guide the 1972 team as they were in their praise of Tom Osborne.

Devaney, in a Monday press conference, announced he would coach NU for one more season and tabbed offensive end coach Osborne as his choice to succeed him in 1973.

I kind of thought he'd stick around for another season," said slotback Johnny Rodgers 'I really wasn't surprised that he made that decision — I was just hoping he'd still be coaching in my last year"

The junior from Omaha Tech said Osborne, who joined Devaney's staff as a graduate assistant in 1962, was "a fine choice"

"He'll do a great job," Rodgers predicted. "I was thinking either coach Selmer (offensive line coach Carl) or coach Osborne. I think everybody when they get the chance will run things their own way. I dont think there'll be much change in the way he (Osborne) will run things."

Rodgers recuperating from a short stay at an Omaha hospital for surgery on his right thumb, said he was feeling fine and ready for his last NU football campaign

'He's the type of person that would try for something special like that (seeking a third straight national championship,' said junior Tight end Jerry list 'You bet, I'm happy he decided to stay on another year"

Although List said he wasn't surprised at Devaney choosing Osborne as his successor, he said any of the assistant coaches would have been capable replacements.

'Coach Osborne has been initiating a few new ideas in the Nebraska offense," List added, 'He's an intelligent man and I m sure he'll do a good job'

Sophomore cornerback Randy Borg said he had guessed that the Deavaney era would end after the 1972 football season

"I sort of guessed that this would be his last year coaching from things he said during the season," the Alliance native says. 'Like he said he wouldn't come back to Norman (Okla.) as a coach again."

Borg, in praising Osborne as 'a fine coach", said knowing that this year will end Devaney's coaching reign at NU, will provide an incentive for this season's squad

"It will be an incentive to me personally and to the entire team — he's (Devaney) just been great to us — it will add to our attitude and efforts this season," Borg said 'We'll try as hard as we can to keep that national championship"

Terming Osborne a "fantastic coach," junior defensive end John Hyland said he thought Devaney was trying to set the stage for 1972 with the early announcement of his future plans.

"I think he was trying to get the state ready to accept his decision and also to give coach Osborne a little publicity," nerback Joe Blahak said he was "very happy" that he would stay on and I m real glad that he will'

Calling Osborne a 'logical choice" to replace Devaney, Hyland added that 'I m sure he's learned a lot from Devaney but a problem will be in trying to keep the assistant coaches. I hope they stay, but you never know"

Although not surprised by Devaney's decision, junior cornerback Joe Blahak said he was 'very heppy" that he woul finish playing under Devaney

'At first when he said he was thinking about retiring, I thought he might quit this season but I'm overly happy that he didn't quit now," the Columbus native said 'Coach Osborne is an exceptional football coach who I m sure will do a good job'

'But regardless of who is coaching, I'm sure the players will try their best,' he added

"Everybody wants him (Devaney) to stay on," the Lincolnite said 'But some of the things coach Osborne has come up with in diagrams and plays in the press box are just unbelievable It think everyone feels coach Osborne will do a great job"

Carpenter To Sponsor Naming Of Fieldhouse

By The Associated Press

Sen Terry Carpenter promised Monday to sponsor a resolution in the legislature asking that the proposed University of Nebraska fieldhouse be named after NU football coach Bob Devaney

Carpenter's promise of a rsolution was made after the Unicameral received a letter from Gov J. J. Exon including the proposal on the naming of the fieldhouse and suggesting that Devaney be named "as the No. 1 football coach of the universe."

Funding for the fieldhouse was provided when the 1971 legislature passed LB87, raising the cigarette tax five cents to 13 cents per pack and earmarking a portion of the funds for the fieldhouse

In response to Exon's request that a public hearing be held on the resolution, Carpenter suggested such a hearing could be held on a Saturday in the NU Coliseum 'to allow everyone to come who wanted to"

Before such a resolution is passed, however, Exon should address the legislature and reveal his plans for fieldhouse construction, said Omaha Sen. Duke Snyder.

"I took considerable heat in my district" for LB87 and a speech by Devaney to the legislature before the bill passed, Snyder explained, "and I think we should ask the governor over here to discuss what the compromise is he is considering."

Carpenter said he would take "sole responsibility for inviting Mr. Devaney to appear before us last year and I put this body in the position of not saying 'no'"

Referring to Snyder's proposal, Sen. William Hasebroock of West Point suggested "everyone will have a chance to be heard" when the resolution is introduced

Nixon Says Nebraska 'Best Ever'

President Nixon believes Nebraska's national champion football team to be the best college team ever

He said so in a letter to Cornhusker Coach Bob Devaney.

"When I presented the No 1 plaque to you as the coach of the No. 1 team in 1971 I called it a great team," Nixon wrote "After seeing your 1972 team against Alabama I would have to say it's the greatest team in college football history."

Mr. Nixon said he had read that Devaney had never been named coach of the year. "What is important," he wrote, "is that you have coached the team of the year."

Heir Apparent To NU Job A 10-Year Devaney Trainee

. . . OSBORNE JOINED STAFF IN 1962

The man who has been tapped by Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney as the man he wants to succeed him at the head of the Husker coaching reins in 1973 has gained all his coaching experience under Devaney

Tom Osborne, who was named assistant head coach by Devaney Monday and Devaney's recommended choice to succeed him when he steps down after the 1972 season, began his coaching career as a graduate assistant under Devaney when Devaney came to Nebraska from Wyoming in 1962.

While serving as a graduate assistant, Osborne worked on his Doctor of Philosophy degree and divided time between coaching and teaching educational psychology in the NU Teachers College

As a full-time Husker assistant, he has been in charge of the offensive ends and receivers

Osborne, who neither drinks nor smokes, started a Fellowship of Christian Athletes chapter at NU and may be one of the best conditioned coaches in the college ranks, running as much as three to five miles nearly every day.

A quarterback at Hastings High School and Hastings College and a flanker for three years with the San Francisco 49ers and Washington Redskins in the National Football League, Osborne was the first Nebraska collegian to be named the Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star's State College Athlete of The Year as a junior in 1958 and the only athlete ever to win the honor twice when he repeated in 1959

He was a three-sport star both in high school and college, lettering four years in football, basketball and track at Hastings College and playing baseball in the summer months.

Tom was the third generation of Osbornes to star at Hastings College His grandfather, Thomas, captained the 1900 football team and his father, Charles, played there in the late 1920s

'ONE MORE YEAR—BUT THAT'S IT'

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney had a telegram and a phone call from Gov. J. J. Exon and he had a conversation with NU Chancellor D. B. Varner after indicating last week he was thinking of stepping down as the Husker football boss.

But in announcing Monday that he would remain at the Husker helm for one more year before retiring to become a full-time athletic director Devaney said the ordinary football fan had as much to do with his decision as anyone.

In his opening remarks before a full-house noon news conference in NU sports information director Don Bryant's office, Devaney had said, "Since indicating that I was considering retirement, I have had quite a few requests to remain as head football coach at Nebraska."

Asked to name some of the people making such a request, Devaney gave primary credit to the average fan.

"I had a lot of letters from the ordinary football fan which probably was the m o s t important," he pointed out. "I talked to Chancellor Varner and to Gov. Exon and they both said they would respect my wishes, either w a y. I appreciated that."

But the nation's most successful coach with a record of 127 wins, 28 losses and six ties for a winning percentage of .819 in 15 years emphasized that 1972 would be his last.

"Next fall will be it — win, lose or draw — but we are certainly planning on it being 'win'," Devaney asserted. "And if I get to thinking next year about continuing, I hope you remind me of what I said."

In an obvious move to provide a smooth transition when he steps down as the head football coach, Devaney Monday named Tom Osborne, a member of his staff since he came to Nebraska in 1962, as assistant head coach, a title no one has ever held in the Devaney set-up.

Devaney kept the coupie of dozen writers, sportscasters and photographers waiting for nearly 15 minutes past the 12 o'clock time for which the press conference was scheduled.

"After two weeks of serious thought, I have arrived at an answer," he began. "I'm not sure it's the right one, but with one more year on my contract, I have decided to fulfill that contract."

The announcement sent radiomen and wire service reporters scurrying for telephones.

"I will remain through 1972, but that definitely will be it," Devaney added. "And it will not depend on what kind of season we have. After 1972, I hope I will be able to remain as athletic director."

The coach, who has won 92 games while losing only 18 and tying one in 10 years at Nebraska, said there were several factors involved in his decision.

"One of the factors was that I had made commitments to some of the players when we were recruiting them," he pointed out. "Another factor was the challenge of trying to win another national championship.

"That we can win a third straight national championship is improbable, but not impossible. No one has ever done that, but I'd like to be a part of trying to accomplish it."

Asked if he might consider leaving Nebraska for something higher up, Devaney asked the inquisitor, "What do you mean by higher up?"

When the questioner explained that he was referring to pro football, the Husker c o a c h allowed, "I don't consider the pros higher up.

"I have considered the pros, but I have no ambitions to go into pro football. However, if someone made me a good enough offer, I would listen, at least."

In naming Osborne as assistant head coach, Devaney said he would recommend when he steps down that Osborne be named head coach.

"All I can say is that I'll recommend him," Devaney asserted. "The naming of a coach is up to the Board of Regents, the chancellor and the president.

"I haven't discussed it with the Regents. I have discussed it with Chancellor Varner and with the faculty committee on athletics."

Devaney also emphasized that his naming of Osborne to the position of assistant head coach would not change either his duties or the duties of his assistants as far as the coaching of the football team is concerned.

"I will still be the head coach," he noted, "And we'll operate the same as we've been operating. There's no reason to change a successful format.

"But I have made numerous commitments for clinics and banquets that will keep me busy during this important recruiting season and Tom will be making some decisions on recruiting that I normally would make."

SPORT SIGNALS

By Hal Brown
Sports Editor, The Star

Primarily, It's Ironic

Some have called it a tragedy. Some have called it a shame. Some, whose vocabulary isn't large enough to include those two words, have called it other things that can't be printed in a family newspaper.

We can recall nothing in our 10 years at the No. 1 sports desk at this newspaper that has brought more telephone calls, both in number and in degree of outrage, than last week's announcement out of Hollywood, Fla., brought.

But we would not put the fact that Bob Devaney was again shunned by his fellow coaches in the Coach of The Year balloting in the tragedy class. Nor would we classify it in the obscene category in which some chose to do.

We might put it in the shame category.

The thing that makes it ironic is the reason Bob Devaney was not named Coach of The Year in 1971. And the reason he was not named Coach of The Year in 1970.

Calling The Game Off Early

Some of Bob Devaney's greatest triumphs as Nebrasks's head football coach came in the closing minutes of the game, triumphs he could never have enjoyed had the officials blown the whistle with five or even with three minutes remaining and said, "That's all, the game's over."

Had the officials done that a year ago in the Orange Bowl, Nebraska wouldn't have beaten LSU and thus would never have won that first national championship in the school's history.

Had they done it in this year's Oklahoma game, the Huskers unbeaten string would have ended and they'd have had no further chance to win a second national championship.

And you can pick out other games of slightly lesser importance in his NU coaching career that would have wound up with him explaining why the Huskers lost rather than telling writers in those post-game sessions why they had won.

The North Carolina State game of 1962, the Minnesota game of 1964, the Colorado game of 1966, and the Kansas game of 1969 all went into the Husker victory column because those games were scheduled for 60 minutes and officials let them go for 60 minutes.

Coaches Blew Early Whistle

The explanation as to why Bob Devaney was not named Coach of The Year in either 1970 or 1971 is a very simple one.

The American Football Coaches Association simply blew the whistle ending the ball game before the entire 60 minutes had been played.

No one, not even Bear Bryant's mother, Charlie McClendon's wife or Darrell Royal's uncle, would argue about Bob Devaney's deserving the honor the past two years after his coaching triumphs in the Orange Bowl that gave Nebraska a national championship both years.

None of those coaches who voted would agree that the Nebraska-Oklahoma game should have been called off with the Sooners leading by 31-28 or that the Nebraska-LSU Orange Bowl game a year ago should have been called with LSU leading 12-10.

Wouldn't it have been just as tragic, or those who want to use that word, or just as shameful had the coaches voted Bob Devaney Coach of The Year, then had Alabama's Bear Bryant win the Orange Bowl?

At the t i m e they voted, they had no idea which team uld win in the Orange Bowl.

The tragic thing is not that Bob Devaney was not named Coach of The Year. The tragic thing is that the coaches continue to insist on taking the vote before the game is over.

Decision Pleases Players

. . . OSBORNE TERMED GOOD CHOICE AS SUCCESSOR

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Future Cornhusker football players were as unanimous in their pleasure that coach Bob Devaney will guide the 1972 team as they were in their praise of Tom Osborne.

Devaney, in a Monday press conference, announced he would coach NU for one more season and tabbed offensive end coach Osborne as his choice to succeed him in 1973.

"I kind of thought he'd stick around for another season," said slotback Johnny Rodgers. 'I really wasn't surprised that he made that decision — I was just hoping he'd still be coaching in my last year."

The junior from Omaha Tech said Osborne, who joined Devaney's staff as a graduate assistant in 1962, was "a fine choice."

"He'll do a great job," Rodgers predicted. "I was thinking either coach Selmer (offensive line coach Carl) or coach Osborne. I think everybody when they get the chance will run things their own way, I dont think there'll be much change in the way he (Osborne) will run things."

Rodgers, recuperating from a short stay at an Omaha hospital for surgery on his right thumb, said he was feeling fine and ready for his last NU football campaign.

"He's the type of person that would try for something special like that (seeking a third straight national championship," said junior Tight end Jerry list. "You bet, I'm happy he decided to stay on another year."

Although List said he wasn't surprised at Devaney choosing Osborne as his successor, he said any of the assistant coaches would have been capable replacements.

"Coach Osborne has been initiating a few new ideas in the Nebraska offense," List added, "He's an intelligent man and I'm sure he'll do a good job."

Sophomore cornerback Randy Borg said he had guessed that the Deavaney era would end after the 1972 football season.

"I sort of guessed that this would be his last year coaching from things he said during the season," the Alliance native says, 'Like he said he wouldn't come back to Norman (Okla.) as a coach again."

Borg, in praising Osborne as "a fine coach", said knowing that this year will end Devaney's coaching reign at NU, will provide an incentive for this season's squad.

"It will be an incentive to me personally and to the entire team — he's (Devaney) just been great to us — it will add to our attitude and efforts this season," Borg said. "We'll try as hard as we can to keep that national championship."

Terming Osborne a "fantastic coach," junior defensive end John Hyland said he thought Devaney was trying to set the stage for 1972 with the early announcement of his future plans.

"I think he was trying to get the state ready to accept his decision and also to give coach Osborne a little publicity," nerback Joe Blahak said he was "very happy" that he would stay on and I'm real glad that he will."

Calling Osborne a "logical choice" to replace Devaney, Hyland added that "I'm sure he's learned a lot from Devaney but a problem will be in trying to keep the assistant coaches. I hope they stay, but you never know."

Although not surprised by Devaney's decision, junior cornerback Joe Blahak said he was ' very heppy" that he woul finish playing under Devaney.

"At first when he said he was thinking about retiring, I thought he might quit this season, but I'm overly happy that he didn't quit now," the Columbus native said. "Coach Osborne is an exceptional football coach who I'm sure will do a good job."

"But regardless of who is coaching, I'm sure the players will try their best," he added.

"Everybody wants him (Devaney) to stay on," the Lincolnite said. "But some of the things coach Osborne has come up with in diagrams and plays in the press box are just unbelievable. It think everyone feels coach Osborne will do a great job."

Carpenter To Sponsor Naming Of Fieldhouse

By The Associated Press

Sen. Terry Carpenter promised Monday to sponsor a resolution in the legislature asking that the p r o p o s e d University of N e b r a s k a fieldhouse be named after NU f o o t b a l l c o a c h Bob Devaney.

Carpenter's promise of a rsolution was made after the Unicameral received a letter from Gov· J. J. Exon including the proposal on the naming of the fieldhouse and suggesting that Devaney be named "as the No. 1 football coach of the universe."

Funding for the fieldhouse was provided when the 1971 legislature passed LB87, raising the cigarette tax five cents to 13 cents per pack and earmarking a portion of the funds for the fieldhouse.

In response to Exon's request that a public hearing be held on the resolution, Carpenter suggested such a hearing could be held on a Saturday in the NU Coliseum "to allow everyone to come who wanted to."

Before such a resolution is passed, however, Exon should address the legislature and reveal his plans for fieldhouse construction, said Omaha Sen. Duke Snyder.

"I took considerable heat in my district" for LB87 and a speech by Devaney to the legislature before the bill passed, Snyder explained, "and I think we should ask the governor over here to discuss what the compromise is he is considering."

Carpenter said he would take "sole responsibility for inviting Mr. Devaney to appear before us last year and I put this body in the position of not saying 'no.' "

Referring to Snyder's proposal. Sen. William Hasebroock of West Point suggested "everyone will have a chance to be heard" when the resolution is introduced.

Nixon Says Nebraska 'Best Ever'

He said so in a letter to C o r n h u s k e r Coach Bob Devaney.

"When I presented the No. 1 plaque to you as the coach of the No. 1 team in 1971 I called it a great team," Nixon wrote. "After seeing your 1972 team against Alabama I would have to say it's the greatest team in college football history."

Mr. Nixon said he had read that Devaney had never been named coach of the year. "What is important," he wrote, "is that you have coached the team of the year."

Heir Apparent To NU Job A 10-Year Devaney Trainee

. . . OSBORNE JOINED STAFF IN 1962

The man who has been tapped by Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney as the man he wants to succeed him at the head of the Husker coaching reins in 1973 has gained all his coaching experience under Devaney.

Tom Osborne, who was named assistant head coach by Devaney Monday and Devaney's recommended choice to succeed him when he steps down after the 1972 season, began his coaching career as a graduate assistant under Devaney when Devaney came to Nebraska from Wyoming in 1962.

While serving as a graduate assistant, Osborne worked on his Doctor of Philosophy degree and divided time between coaching and teaching educational psychology in the NU Teachers College.

As a full-time Husker assistant, he has been in charge of the offensive ends and receivers.

Osborne, who neither drinks nor smokes, started a Fellowship of Christian Athletes chapter at NU and may be one of the best conditioned coaches in the college ranks, running as much as three to five miles nearly every day.

A quarterback at Hastings High School and Hastings College and a flanker for three years with the San Francisco 49ers and Washington Redskins in the National Football League, Osborne was the first Nebraska collegian to be named the Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star's State College Athlete of The Year as a junior in 1958 and the only athlete ever to win the honor twice when he repeated in 1959.

He was a three-sport star both in high school and college, lettering four years in football, basketball and track at Hastings College and playing baseball in the summer months.

The 34-year-old coach is still about as trim as when he was carrying 190 pounds on his 6-3 frame as a collegian at Hastings.

Tom was the third generation of Osbornes to star at Hastings College. His grandfather, Thomas, captained the 1900 football team and his father, Charles, played there in the late 1920s.

A similar agreement between East Germany and Poland, in force since the first of this year, has already resulted in a travel boom of more than 100,000 tourists in both directions.

JC Coaches Wondering Who Will Stop Western

. . . OTHERS MAY BE PLAYING FOR 2ND

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Like other Nebraska Junior College Conference coaches, Platte's Gene Torczon expresses a concern over Nebraska Western.

The Scottsbluff team is threatening to run away with the NJCC basketball title and the season is only half over. Coach Bill Braunbeck's team is 6-0 in the NJCC and 12-0 overall.

"If some team doesn't beat Western soon all there will be to the conference race is a fight for second," Torczon said.

The Cougars have yet to play Platte this season with the two scheduled for two games, one in Columbus and the other in Scottsbluff. Torczon figures his club, 2-2 in conference games, must win the remainder of its NJCC games in order to be in contention for the title.

"Since Fairbury beat North Platte on Saturday, every conference team has at least two losses except Western,'' Torczon pointed out.

"If we're to have a chance at the title we'll have to play our best ball like we did in our tournament," he continued. Torczon was referring to Platte winning its Midwest Classic in which some good teams were defeated.

"Our team has been hurt by the absence of Brad McArdle and the lack of consistent play at one guard spot," Torczon explained.

McArdle, an Elkhorn product, was a team leader but went to active military duty and won't be back until next year. Torczon said he has tired four or five players at the troublesome guard position before settling on Scott Nelson.

"Our tallest starter is 6-5 and he just can't do the job against a 6-9 or 6-10 player," Torczon said. "When we had McArdle he not only provided the team with leadership, but also rebounded with the best."

This week's schedule worries Torczon as his team will host North Platte on Friday and then travel to McCook on Saturday.

"North Platte upset us in the conference tournament so we'd like to get even," Torczon said. "But it's that long road trip the next day that may bother us."

Fairbury, David City Still Pacing Class B, C Ratings

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Fairbury and David City continue as the No. 1 teams in the high school top ten basketball ratings for Classes B and C this week, with Cozad and Norfolk Catholic still playing the runner-up role in the two divisions.

But No. 3 a week ago on either list proved to be a bad luck spot. Alliance, third on the Class B list, lost to traditional rival Sidney and fell to sixth while Milford, No. 3 in Class C, suffered even more. Milford skids to seventh after losing by 16 points to pacesetter David City.

Grant, No. 4 in Class C, also had its problems. The Plainsmen suffered their first defeat of the season and slipped to eighth.

That allowed Henderson and Scribner to move up two notches each and newcomer Oakland to appear on the fifth rung of the Class C ratings ladder. Oakland's only loss has been a four-pointer at Scribner.

Howells gains one position, from seventh to sixth, while Elkhorn Valley remains ninth following Milford and Grant. The other Class C newcomer is Minatare, which takes over the final position from Louisville.

This week's Class B top ten also has two new faces, Superior and Elkhorn, which take over the final two spots.

Waverly, a loser to unrated Lincoln Pius X, and Grand Island Central Catholic, which lost last week to Lexington, both disappear from the top ten.

Lexington is a story in itself. Earlier Lex bombed Pius X by 18 points to keep the Thunderbolts from the select group, now they knock out GICC. Yet the Minutemen have dropped games to Loup City, Central City, Broken Bow and Omaha Paul VI—all unrated—and thus can't earn a spot themselves.

So, after Randolph and Holdrege move up, Superior and Elkhorn claim the two Class B openings this week.

Class B

1—Fairbury (11-0)	6—Alliance (7-3)
2—Cozad (10-0)	7—Randolph (8-0)

4—Omaha Cathedral (8-2)	9—Superior (7-2)
5—Sidney (7-2)	10—Elkhorn (9-2)

Comment—Lexington, which keeps winning all the "big" games and then losing to the unrated teams, is a serious challenger to the leaders, despite its 5-5 record. Superior and Elkhorn join the select group this week, replacing Waverly and Grand Island Central Catholic. Sidney moves up from ninth to fifth after beating Alliance for the biggest advancement.

Pheasant, Quail Seasons Finished On Quiet Notes

Those in the field reported seeing good numbers of birds, in most cases, but the ringnecks often flushed well beyond shotgun range. Meanwhile, ice fishermen began enjoying the benefits of the recent cold snap, as lakes in many parts of the state acquired a coating of ice sufficient to support anglers.

According to reports of Game and Parks Commission conservation officers in the field, outdoor activity across the state includes:

SOUTHEAST
Ice conditions on the Salt Valley reservoirs around Lincoln were good over the weekend as a result of the cold snap. Warm weather Sunday and Monday left patches of open water on some lakes, however, and farm ponds in Fillmore and Clay counties are unsafe. Hunting pressure over the weekend was light.

NORTHEAST
Lewis and Clark Lake and Cottonwood Lake, both near Crofton, have frozen over and are now hosting ice fishermen. Cottonwood Lake is providing good success on northern pike and occasional walleye, both up to 3 pounds. Ice conditions were good on Pibel Lake, Lake Ericson, and sandpits throughout the area, but angling pressure was light. The few pheasant hunters out for the final day of the season had fair success in Boone County.

SAND HILLS
Ice conditions throughout the area were good over the weekend. Valentine Refuge lakes had 10 inches of ice, and refuge personnel said the 60-degree temperatures Sunday and Monday would not hurt conditions appreciably.

PANHANDLE
Rainbow trout, up to 12 inches, are hitting well at West Kimball Reservoir. Best bait is salmon eggs. Whitney Lake is giving up walleye, averaging 2½ pounds, and 12-inch crappie, both on minnows. Hunting pressure was light, but gunners had fair success on pheasants in Box Butte County.

JC Coaches Wondering Who Will Stop Western

. . . OTHERS MAY BE PLAYING FOR 2ND

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Like other Nebraska Junior College Conference coaches, Platte's Gene Torczon expresses a concern over Nebraska Western.

The Scottsbluff team is threatening to run away with the NJCC basketball title and the season is only half over. Coach Bill Braunbeck's team is 6-0 in the NJCC and 12-0 overall.

"If some team doesn't beat Western soon all there will be to the conference race is a fight for second," Torczon said.

The Cougars have yet to play Platte this season with the two scheduled for two games, one in Columbus and the other in Scottsbluff. Torczon figures his club, 2-2 in conference games, must win the remainder of its NJCC games in order to be in contention for the title.

"Since Fairbury beat North Platte on Saturday, every conference team has at least two losses except Western,'' Torczon pointed out.

"If we're to have a chance at the title we'll have to play our best ball like we did in our tournament," he continued. Torczon was referring to Platte winning its Midwest Classic in which some good teams were defeated.

"Our team has been hurt by the absence of Brad McArdle and the lack of consistent play at one guard spot," Torczon explained.

McArdle, an Elkhorn product, was a team leader but went to active military duty and won't be back until next year. Torczon said he has tired four or five players at the troublesome guard position before settling on Scott Nelson.

Torczon feels Platte's weakest point has been rebounding.

"Our tallest starter is 6-5 and he just can't do the job against a 6-9 or 6-10 player," Torczon said. "When we had McArdle he not only provided the team with leadership, but also rebounded with the best."

This week's schedule worries Torczon as his team will host North Platte on Friday and then travel to McCook on Saturday.

"North Platte upset us in the conference tournament so we'd like to get even," Torczon said. "But it's that long road trip the next day that may bother us."

Fairbury, David City Still Pacing Class B, C Ratings

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Fairbury and David City continue as the No. 1 teams in the high school top ten basketball ratings for Classes B and C this week, with Cozad and Norfolk Catholic still playing the runner-up role in the two divisions.

But No. 3 a week ago on either list proved to be a bad luck spot. Alliance, third on the Class B list, lost to traditional rival Sidney and fell to sixth while Milford, No. 3 in Class C, suffered even more. Milford skids to seventh after losing by 16 points to pacesetter David City.

Grant, No. 4 in Class C, also had its problems. The Plainsmen suffered their first defeat of the season and slipped to eighth.

That allowed Henderson and Scribner to move up two notches each and newcomer Oakland to appear on the fifth rung of the Class C ratings ladder. Oakland's only loss has been a four-pointer at Scribner.

Howells gains one position, from seventh to sixth, while Elkhorn Valley remains ninth following Milford and Grant. The other Class C newcomer is Minatare, which takes over the final position from Louisville.

This week's Class B top ten also has two new faces, Superior and Elkhorn, which take over the final two spots.

Crete moved up from fourth to third at Alliance's expense, while Omaha Cathedral also advanced one notch.

Sidney, on the strength of its win over Alliance, jumps up from ninth to fifth.

Waverly, a loser to unrated Lincoln Pius X, and Grand Island Central Catholic, which lost last week to Lexington, both disappear from the top ten.

Lexington is a story in itself. Earlier Lex bombed Pius X by 18 points to keep the Thunderbolts from the select group, now they knock out GICC. Yet the Minutemen have dropped games to Loup City, Central City, Broken Bow and Omaha Paul VI—all unrated—and thus can't earn a spot themselves.

So, after Randolph and Holdrege move up, Superior and Elkhorn claim the two Class B openings this week.

Pheasant, Quail Seasons Finished On Quiet Notes

Nebraska's pheasant and quail seasons ended on a quiet note over the weekend, as only a few hunters ventured out in most parts of the state.

Those in the field reported seeing good numbers of birds, in most cases, but the ringnecks often flushed well beyond shotgun range. Meanwhile, ice fishermen began enjoying the benefits of the recent cold snap, as lakes in many parts of the state acquired a coating of ice sufficient to support anglers.

According to reports of Game and Parks Commission conservation officers in the field, outdoor activity across the state includes:

SOUTHEAST
Ice conditions on the Salt Valley reservoirs around Lincoln were good over the weekend as a result of the cold snap. Warm weather Sunday and Monday left patches of open water on some lakes, however, and farm ponds in Fillmore and Clay counties are unsafe. Hunting pressure over the weekend was light

NORTHEAST
Lewis and Clark Lake and Cottonwood Lake, both near Crofton, have frozen over and are now hosting ice fishermen. Cottonwood Lake is providing good success on northern pike and occasional walleye, both up to 3 pounds. Ice conditions were good on Pibel Lake, Lake Ericson, and sandpits throughout the area, but angling pressure was light. The few pheasant hunters out for the final day of the season had fair success in Boone County.

SAND HILLS
Ice conditions throughout the area were good over the weekend. Valentine Refuge lakes had 10 inches of ice, and refuge personnel said the 60-degree temperatures Sunday and Monday would not hurt conditions appreciably.

PANHANDLE
Rainbow trout, up to 12 inches, are hitting well at West Kimball Reservoir. Best bait is salmon eggs. Whitney Lake is giving up walleye, averaging 2½ pounds, and 12-inch crappie, both on minnows. Hunting pressure was light, but gunners had fair success on pheasants in Box Butte County.

KU Nips K-State, 66-63,

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) -- Bud Stallworth sank two second-overtime period field goals that gave underdog Kansas a 66-63 victory over bitter rival Kansas State Monday in a wild, pulsating Big Eight Conference basketball thriller.

Stallworth's two baskets gave the Jayhawks a 63-59 advantage with 2:39 remaining in the second overtime. With 19 seconds left, a pair of free throws by Ernie Kusnyer cut Kansas' edge in half. But the Wildcats could get no closer.

Chadron Defeats Peru State, 79-62

Chadron (AP) — Chadron took advantage of eight second-half turnovers and sharp outside shooting to claim a 79-62 Nebraska College Conference victory over Peru State Monday night.

Scott Jones scored 28 points and Russ Taylor 17 as Chadron moved to a 1-1 conference mark on the season and 8-8 overall.

Under the agreements with Poland and Czechoslovakia, East Germans can cross the boundaries into both countries carrying only normal identification papers. They no longer require passports, visas or registration at their local police precincts.

JUNEAU'S ROADS . . . go nowhere; legislators often go astray.

Solons Delayed, Sent Astray Traveling To Alaska Capital

Juneau, Alaska (AP) — Rep. Martin Moore left home a week early for last year's legislative session and arrived a day late. This year, Moore was on time, but his luggage wasn't. It was in Seattle.

Moore's problems are typical of those faced by legislators trying to reach the capital in the nation's largest state. The trek from outlying areas can involve car caravans, ferries and lengthy flights — all complicated by below-freezing temperatures, snow drifts, overcast skies and roads that don't go anywhere.

Three lawmakers missed the opening-day roll call of the 1972 session because of inclement weather. And as the session's first week neared a close, one legislator was still strandedon a wind-whipped Aleutian Island, 1500 miles away.

Part of the problem is that a patchwork of highways leading to Juneau ends 90 miles to the north, so air and water transportation must be relied on heavily.

When Moses finally arrived in Anchorage, he faced another 600-mile flight to Juneau.

All told, his journey equaled that which would be faced by a California lawmaker if that state's legislature were convened in Omaha, Neb., during a record-breaking cold spell spanning half the United States.

Legislators, and other travelers as well, often find themselves landing at stops other than their destination because Juneau has a low ceiling and the wintry overcast sends jetliners along their routes without making the scheduled stop in the state capital.

Alternate destinations are Seattle, 900 miles to the south of Anchorage.

5-Hop Flight

Moore, a Democratic representative from Emmonak on Alaska's Bering Sea coast, who arrived a day late for his swearing-in last year, had to take a five-hop flight over several days — from Emmonak to St. Mary's to Bethel to Anchorage and finally to Juneau. His wife and four children stayed home.

"I got to go home for a visit once last year," Moore said, "but I doubt if I can this year."

His luggage wound up in Seattle because of an overflight.

Lawmakers who travel to the session each year by car must ferry to Juneau from Haines, 90 miles to the north, because the capital city's 40-odd miles of road don't go anywhere.

800-Mile Drive

From Anchorage, the state's population center, is a three-day, 800-mile drive to Haines.

Car caravans of legislators and their families are common, primarily because winter travel alone is potentially dangerous due to isolation of many roads, bitterly cold winter temperatures and common snow-drifting that can close a road in an hour.

Sen. Chancy Croft, D-Anchorage, tried it alone last year.

Croft's car stalled in minus 70-degree temperatures north of Haines and the lawmaker, his wife, three children and their dog spent the night bundled in sleeping bags and extra clothing.

"Fortunately, nobody was frostbitten," Croft recalled, "and we got a ride the next day. Then we waited until it warmed to minus 50 and drove to Haines to catch the ferry."

Freeway Zips Over New School

Miami (UPI) — As in big cities, elevated freeways resembling carelessly tossed spaghetti twist above parts of Miami, helping motorists get to work quickly but adding to crowded conditions in the core city below.

But now a Dade County school official has come up with the idea to build a school on the unused land at a saving of $2 million and 150 homes.

One day, Dr. J. Harold Matteson, superintendent of school site planning, was driving along, worrying about finding a location for an elementary school in Miami's predominantly Cuban "Little Havana" section.

Wasted Land

"I looked over and thought, here's an awful lot of land going to waste — maybe we could put it to use," he said.

The school board approved the idea, the state transportation department agreed to lease six acres under Interstate 95 for one dollar a year and construction is set to begin this fall. The school is scheduled to open for 840 grade school pupils in September of 1972.

The Jose Marti elementary school will be the only school in the nation located under an expressway, but Matteson heartily recommends that other cities try it.

He points out that if the city had to condemn the land necessary for the school, it would cost $2 million and 150 families would have to be moved out of their homes.

Matteson said studies have shown that some anticipated drawbacks will not be serious problems.

Under Expressway

"All classrooms will be directly underneath the expressway itself and we're beefing up the guard rails to prevent anything from going over," he said. "We have found few incidents of any car doing that, anyway, and the expressway is straight at that point."

At one point officials considered constructing a cable net to catch any airborne vehicles, but the idea was discarded as probably not effective.

The guard rails are known as the "New Jersey barrier" and are curved in a design that throws any vehicles striking it outward. Matteson said the design has proved effective in New Jersey.

Smoking Causes Wrinkles, Says Surgeon General

Washington (AP) — The U.S. Surgeon General made his point in the strongest possible way when he told women of the Congressional Club that smoking causes wrinkles.

Dr. Jesse L. Steinfeld told the luncheon group that middle-aged women who smoke are as likely to be prominently wrinkled as nonsmokers 20 years their senior.

Steinfeld cited "A study in the Epidemiology of 'Crows Feet.' by Dr. Harry W. Daniell of Redding, Calif., which was published in the annals of International Medicine in December.

Indian Elected, Consecrated As Episcopal Bishop

Sioux Falls, S.D. (AP) — The Rev. Harold Jones was consecrated suffragan bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of South Dakota at a ceremony in Sioux Falls attended by an estimated 1,000 persons.

There was a strong ecumenical flavor to the ceremony, held at the Catholic cathedral. There were representatives of numerous other faiths as witnesses of the service.

Killing Thought IRA Execution

Belfast, Northern Ireland (AP) — A protestant reservist policeman was shot dead in a Roman Catholic area of Belfast raising to 210 the death toll in Northern Ireland's 29 months of violence.

The part-time police officer, electrician Raymond Denham, 43, was killed at work in a printer's shop by two men believed by police to belong to an Irish Republican Army execution squad. He was the second man shot dead in Belfast in two days.

Stock Mart Rises After Slow Start

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 4.44 to 911.12. Most of the advance came during the last hour and a half of trading.

Analysts said the market was bolstered in part by the prime interest-rate cuts by three major New York banks Friday and Monday.

Also, they explained, interest rates in general have been sliding in recent months, reducing the attractiveness of bonds and other investment outlets relative to stocks.

Furthermore, according to one analyst, foreign investors have been buying American stocks ever since monetary exchange rates stabilized a couple of months ago.

Consolidated Leasing was most-active on the Big Board, closing off ¼ at 10⅜. Trading was paced by a 318,600-share block which changed hands at 10, off ⅝.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 15.86 million shares, compared with 14.96 million shares Friday. The Big Board tape was running two minutes late at the closing bell.

Of the 1,760 stocks traded on the Big Board, 897 advanced, and 590 declined. There were 70 new highs and 4 new lows.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index closed at 103.70, up 0.31.

Airlines put in a particularly strong showing today. Of the 15 most-actively traded Big Board issues, 5 were airlines, and all posted gains.

Advances also ran through the rails, oils, chemicals, electronics, aircrafts, and electronics. Rubber issues and mail order-retail issues were off, and most other groups were mixed.

A total of 93 blocks of 10,000 shares or over were traded on the Big Bord, compared with a revised total of 106 on Friday.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index rose 0.13 to 26.66. Of the 1,229 stocks traded, 606 gained, and 374 slipped. Volume totaled 5.97 million shares, compared with 5.49 million shares Friday.

Government bonds were lower, and corporates were mixed.

Soybean Futures Post Strong Gain

Soybean oil prices pushed ahead some 60 points at one time and soybean meal advanced $2.50 a ton, but both came under late profit-taking and fell back.

When the session had ended, soybeans were 31⅛ to 9⅛ cents a bushel higher, January 3.12¼; wheat was ¾ lower to ⅝ higher, March 1.66¾; corn was ⅝ to 1 cent higher, March 1.21⅞; and oats were ⅜ to ⅞ higher, March 76¾ cents.

Stock Mart Rises After Slow Start

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 4.44 to 911.12. Most of the advance came during the last hour and a half of trading.

Analysts said the market was bolstered in part by the prime interest-rate cuts by three major New York banks Friday and Monday.

Also, they explained, interest rates in general have been sliding in recent months, reducing the attractiveness of bonds and other investment outlets relative to stocks.

Furthermore, according to one analyst, foreign investors have been buying American stocks ever since monetary exchange rates stabilized a couple of months ago.

Consolidated Leasing was most-active on the Big Board, closing off ¼ at 10⅜. Trading was paced by a 318,600-share block which changed hands at 10, off ⅝.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 15.86 million shares, compared with 14.96 million shares Friday. The Big Board tape was running two minutes late at the closing bell.

Of the 1,760 stocks traded on the Big Board, 897 advanced, and 590 declined. There were 70 new highs and 4 new lows.

The New York Stock Exchange Index of some 1,300 common stocks rose 0.17 to 57.39.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 1.1 to 333.1, with industrials up 1.8, rails up 1.0, and utilities unchanged.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index closed at 103.70, up 0.31.

Airlines put in a particularly strong showing today. Of the 15 most-actively traded Big Board issues, 5 were airlines, and all posted gains.

Advances also ran through the rails, oils, chemicals, electronics, aircrafts, and electronics Rubber issues and mail order-retail issues were off, and most other groups were mixed.

A total of 93 blocks of 10,000 shares or over were traded on the Big Board, compared with a revised total of 106 on Friday.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index rose 0.13 to 26.66. Of the 1,229 stocks traded, 606 gained, and 374 slipped. Volume totaled 5.97 million shares, compared with 5.49 million shares Friday.

Government bonds were lower, and corporates were mixed

Soybean Futures Post Strong Gain

Chicago (AP) — Soybeans futures advanced the daily limit of 10 cents a bushel for one session on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday, but there was some mild profit-taking at the close.

Because of the strength in soybeans, corn futures advanced nearly 2 cents and wheat and oats nearly 1½ cents.

Soybean oil prices pushed ahead some 60 points at one time and soybean meal advanced $2.50 a ton, but both came under late profit-taking and fell back.

When the session had ended, soybeans were 3¼ to 9¼ cents a bushel higher, January 3.12¼; wheat was ¾ lower to ⅝ higher, March 1.66¾; corn was ⅜ to 1 cent higher, March 1.21⅞; and oats were ⅜ to ¾ higher, March 76¾ cents.

JUNEAU'S ROADS . . . go nowhere; legislators often go astray.

Solons Delayed, Sent Astray Traveling To Alaska Capital

Juneau, Alaska (AP) — Rep. Martin Moore left home a week early for last year's legislative session and arrived a day late. This year, Moore was on time, but his luggage wasn't. It was in Seattle.

Moore's problems are typical of those faced by legislators trying to reach the capital in the nation's largest state. The trek from outlying areas can involve car caravans, ferries and lengthy flights — all complicated by below-freezing temperatues, snow drifts, overcast skies and roads that don't go anywhere.

Three lawmakers missed the opening-day roll call of the 1972 session because of inclement weather. And as the session's first week neared a close, one legislator was still strandedon a wind-whipped Aleutian Island, 1500 miles awav.

Part of the problem is that a patchwork of highways leading to Juneau ends 90 miles to the north, so air and water transportation must be relied on heavily.

Rep. Carl Moses, D-Alaska, spent the first week of the session waiting for a flight from his home in the Aleutian Chain to Anchorage, a distance of 850 miles.

All told, his journey equaled that which would be faced by a California lawmaker if that state's legislature were convened in Omaha, Neb., during a record-breaking cold spell spanning half the United States.

Legislators, and other travelers as well, often find themselves landing at stops other than their destination because Juneau has a low ceiling and the wintry overcast sends jetliners along their routes without making the scheduled stop in the state capital.

Alternate destinations are Seattle, 900 miles to the south of Anchorage.

5-Hop Flight

Moore, a Democratic representative from Emmonak on Alaska's Bering Sea coast, who arrived a day late for his swearing-in last year, had to take a five-hop flight over several days — from Emmonak to St. Mary's to Bethel to Anchorage and finally to Juneau. His wife and four children stayed home.

"I got to go home for a visit once last year," Moore said, "but I doubt if I can this year."

His luggage wound up in Seattle because of an overflight.

Lawmakers who travel to the session each year by car must ferry to Juneau from Haines, 90 miles to the north, because the capital city's 40-odd miles of road don't go anywhere.

800-Mile Drive

From Anchorage, the state's population center, is a three-day, 800-mile drive to Haines.

Car caravans of legislators and their families are common, primarily because winter travel alone is potentially dangerous due to isolation of many roads, bitterly cold winter temperatures and common snow-drifiting that can close a road in an hour.

Sen. Chancy Croft, D-Anchorage, tried it alone last year.

Croft's car stalled in minus 70-degree temperatures north of Haines and the lawmaker, his wife, three children and their dog spent the night bundled in sleeping bags and extra clothing.

"Fortunately, nobody was frostbitten," Croft recalled, "and we got a ride the next day. Then we waited until it warmed to minus 50 and drove to Haines to catch the ferry."

Freeway Zips Over New School

Miami (UPI) — As in big cities, elevated freeways resembling carelessly tossed spaghetti twist above parts of Miami, helping motorists get to work quickly but adding to crowded conditions in the core city below.

In the past, acres of land below the aerial expressways had to be cleared and could never be used again.

But now a Dade County school official has come up with the idea to build a school on the unused land at a saving of $2 million and 150 homes.

One day, Dr. J. Harold Matteson, superintendent of school site planning, was driving along, worrying about finding a location for an elementary school in Miami's predominantly Cuban "Little Havana" section.

Wasted Land

"I looked over and thought, here's an awful lot of land going to waste — maybe we could put it to use," he said.

The school board approved the idea, the state transportation department agreed to lease six acres under Interstate 95 for one dollar a year and construction is set to begin this fall. The school is scheduled to open for 840 grade school pupils in September of 1972.

The Jose Marti elementary school will be the only school in the nation located under an expressway, but Matteson heartily recommends that other cities try it.

He points out that if the city had to condemn the land necessary for the school, it would cost $2 million and 150 families would have to be moved out of their homes.

Under Expressway

"All classrooms will be directly underneath the expressway itself and we're beefing up the guard rails to prevent anything from going over," he said. "We have found few incidents of any car doing that, anyway, and the expressway is straight at that point."

At one point officials considered constructing a cable net to catch any airborne vehicles, but the idea was discarded as probably not effective.

The guard rails are known as the "New Jersey barrier" and are curved in a design that throws any vehicles striking it outward. Matteson said the design has proved effective in New Jersey.

Smoking Causes Wrinkles, Says Surgeon General

Washington (AP) — The U.S. Surgeon General made his point in the strongest possible way when he told women of the Congressional Club that smoking causes wrinkles.

Dr. Jesse L. Steinfeld told the luncheon group that middle-aged women who smoke are as likely to be prominently wrinkled as nonsmokers 20 years their senior.

"That did it, murmured one onlooker at the luncheon observing National Education Week on Smoking. "He just won them."

Steinfeld cited "A study in the Epidemiology of 'Crows Feet.' by Dr. Harry W. Daniell of Redding, Calif., which was published in the annals of International Medicine in December.

Indian Elected, Consecrated As Episcopal Bishop

Sioux Falls, S.D. (AP) — The Rev. Harold Jones was consecrated suffragan bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of South Dakota at a ceremony in Sioux Falls attended by an estimated 1,000 persons.

He is the first American Indian elected bishop of any Christian denomination.

There was a strong ecumenical flavor to the ceremony, held at the Catholic cathedral. There were representatives of numerous other faiths as witnesses of the service.

Killing Thought IRA Execution

Belfast, Northern Ireland (AP) — A protestant reservist policeman was shot dead in a Roman Catholic area of Belfast raising to 210 the death toll in Northern Ireland's 29 months of violence.

The part-time police officer, electrician Raymond Denham, 43, was killed at work in a printer's shop by two men believed by police to belong to an Irish Republican Army execution squad. He was the second man shot dead in Belfast in two days.

If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number.
